AN ATTACK ON LITTER

Ernest Maris (foreground), leader of a small conservationist group called Terra Nova, leads volunteers in a cleanup of a Strawberry Point beach at Richardson Bay. The youths turned out this morning and will be at the beach again tomorrow from about 9:30 a.m. Maris, of Kentfield, intends to lead the group in a beach cleanup all the way around San Francisco Bay, gathering volunteers as they go. About 15 persons were at work today. (Independent-Journal photo)

Fists, Words Fly Over Campus Turmoil; Students Go To Jail

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A fight closed a Southern California college, 45 students went to jail to study for final exams and a homespun philosopher entertained a Senate subcommittee as the nation's campuses by and large entered a peaceful weekend.

Forty-five Dartmouth College students yesterday were granted permission to take their textbooks along for a 30-day stay in the Grafton County, N.H., jail. The jail sentences, plus $100 fines, were meted out for the students' participation in a nightlong occupation of the Dartmouth administration building to protest the school's ROTC program. Nine others had their cases continued.

At Stanford University, members of the militant April 3rd Movement yesterday began preparations for a class boycott next week to coincide with a meeting of the school's board of trustees. Meanwhile, one of the trustees, William R. Hewlett, disclosed he has received two telephone death threats.

The April 3rd movement has held two sit-ins on the 11,000-student campus to protest war-related research. Seventy-two students were suspended after a May 1 seizure of Encina Hall.

A fistfight yesterday triggered a battle between 30 black and white students at Mount San Antonio College in the Los Angeles suburb of Walnut. Five white students were injured, one seriously.

A college spokesman said the fighting erupted during a meeting on a student body budget, including the proposed allocation of student body funds to minority groups on campus.

Some 20 sheriff's deputies were called to the campus after the disturbance broke out in the Student Center where about 1,000 of the school's 7,200 students were gathered. The school was closed for the remainder of the day.

Four of the injured students were treated at a hospital and released. The fifth, who was not identified, was in fair condition with a stab wound and a possible skull fracture.

Marin Advisers Draft Antidrug, Drink Drive

Two programs aimed at alcohol and drug problems in Marin will be presented to the board of supervisors this month by the Community Planning Group for Alcohol-Drug Addiction Problems.

One program is designed to reach teen-agers with drug use problems and would be run by Catholic Social Services. Teens would be served on a referral basis from agencies such as the courts and schools, Guy Bachelis, a member of the planning group, said.

The group gave preliminary approval to the plan at a meeting yesterday. Estimated cost, to be paid by the county, is $10,000. It would cover costs of lectures and other expenses for a series of eight seminars, Bachelis said.

The program is in response to a request from the county to find ways to decrease court costs resulting from drug problems, Bachelis said.

The second recommendation is for an interdepartment council of heads of government agencies for better utilization of resources.

In other business yesterday, the group heard A. Miguel Rodriguez of Point Reyes Station, representing the North Bay Human Development Corp., suggest using youthful counselors from the California Youth Authority to talk with drug suppliers in a program to try to screen drug sales.

Rodriguez said that suppliers and drug users would be located by the CYA counselors, who themselves would be former drug users.

State Urged To Moralize Its Schools

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A state Board of Education committee is studying a report linking some teaching techniques with "revolutionary groups" seeking to "destroy American culture and traditions."

The 31-page report was accepted by the board Thursday, but Board President Howard Day said the acceptance did not represent an endorsement.

The report, entitled "Guidelines For Moral Instruction in California's Schools," criticized "humanist" education, the work of educator John Dewey and anthropologist Margaret Meade, the United Nations, the film industry, group therapy and sensitivity training.

"There is much evidence that teachers are being trained in this (humanist) school and are

No $175,000 Federal Aid For Library

The anticipated $175,000 federal grant to help finance the new county library branch building in Novato has fallen through because there wasn't enough money in the pot.

Higher prioritites knocked the Novato project off the list, Asst. Marin County Administrator John F. Barrows reported.

OWNS SITE

The county already owns the 1.5-acre site and has been accumulating the balance of the $573,710 for the past three years by setting aside some of the county library tax proceeds in a capital inprovement fund.

County Librarian Bruce D. Bajema, saying the need for a large library in Novato was critical, explained there were now four alternative plans for financing the project.

These are that funds could be raised through an extra one-year tax; through an extra tax over a two-year period; by continuing to save money each year, though this would put the building off about three years; or through a loan from the county retirement fund, said Bajema.

'NO REAL RISK'

Borrowing from the retirement fund is probably the best overall method of providing the financing, he said. He said the procedure is legal and such a loan would be "no real risk."

Bajema reported circulation at the present Novato branch is going up "astoundingly" each month and would probably show an even more dramatic increase if there were an adequate building.

"A lot of people don't use it because it is so small they can't find what they want at this point," Bajema said. The library is located in the Tresch building on South Novato Boulevard. It is about one-fifth the size recommended for the North Marin area served, Bajema said.

Bomber Crashes, Crew Missing

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A B52 Stratofortress bomber crashed into the Pacific Ocean on takeoff from Anderson Air Force Base at Guam early today and the six-man crew was missing, the Strategic Air Command said.

A spokesman said the plane, loaded with 750 and 500-pound bombs, was starting on a strike against targets in South Vietnam.

The crew was from Fairchild AFB in Washington.

Agents Nab Tam Valley Suspects

A 24-year-old Tamalpais Valley man, who has been spending a weekend a month in jail for selling marijuana, was rearrested yesterday and accused by narcotics agents of being a large scale heroin dealer.

Federal, state and county drug agents surrounded the home of the suspect, Jan Daniel DeBruyn, at 240 Cleveland Avenue about 4 p.m. and nabbed him as he attempted to flee up a hill.

Arrested with him was a young woman who shares his home, Sandra Tsegeletos, 21, who was working in a garden when agents arrived.

SALE ALLEGED

A federal undercover agent said DeBruyn sold him a half ounce of extremely high quality heroin for $400 recently in a deal consummated in a car in Southern Marin. DeBruyn allegedly bragged that he could get him 50 ounces if the agent wanted it.

The agent said that the half ounce would "sell on the streets" for $7,000, making 50 ounces worth $700,000.

"This heroin was 55 per cent pure, compared to the usual 4 or 5 per cent quality we see," the agent said.

A second sale never was made, however.

James Schwedhelm, head of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, said that he had begun to hear rumors about DeBruyn's heroin business a couple of months ago.

'KIDS HOOKED'

"We also are hearing of more and more kids in Marin being hooked on heroin," he added.

Seized at DeBruyn's home yesterday were one plastic bag of heroin, several barbiturates and a small quantity of hashish.

Agents also found an assortment of television sets, stereo equipment and cameras which they believed could have been taken in payment for drugs.

Since the articles turned out to be stolen, DeBruyn and Miss Tsegeletos were also booked on suspicion of possessing stolen property as well as possessing heroin, hashish and dangerous drugs.

DeBruyn was taken to San Francisco to face the additional federal charge of selling heroin. He will be arraigned in U.S. District Court Monday.

Miss Tsegeletos was held in Marin County Jail with bail set

Marin Feels Ripples Of Welfare Cutback

The Marin County Department of Public Social Services took steps yesterday to deny welfare to unmarried persons under 21 and employable single men to obtain public assistance.

Betty Presley, director of the department, issued orders to tighten up on welfare aid to these groups, following San Francisco's decision to cut off aid to them.

"It is essential that we rigidly enforce the residence requirement of 'presence with intent to reside'," said Miss Presley. "Persons who do not have a fixed address in the county will not be granted aid, as intent to reside is not established."

Even when a residence address is given, a home visit will be made before any aid is given, said Miss Presley. Also, the recipient must go through the department's employment service to show his genuine intent to seek work before aid is granted.

Miss Presley instructed her staff to examine carefully an applicant's last place of residence with particular attention to those from San Francisco.

"I need to determine the extent to which the San Francisco situation affects us, and will have to so report to the board of supervisors with recommendations depending on the severity of the problem."

The San Francisco Social Services Commission said Thursday it had decided to strike the single and unmarried groups from the welfare rolls because a U.S Supreme Court decision which banned residence requirements for welfare had depleted the available funds.

The decision was challenged yesterday by the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation. Peter Sitkin, an attorney for the organization, said he objected "to this discrimination among persons who are equally in need of assistance."

Freeway Lanes Due Closure Tomorrow

The north and southbound center lanes of Highway 101 in San Rafael will be closed tomorrow and next Sunday from daylight to 11 a.m., according to Alan S. Hart, Division of Highways engineer.

The lanes will be closed to allow crews to repair damaged median guard rails, Hart said.

Reds Handed Heavy Loss At Da Nang

SAIGON (AP)— About 600 North Vietnamese were caught up in a fierce two-day battle with U.S. Marines south of Da Nang and by the time the last shot was fired today nearly one-fourth of the enemy was dead.

The fighting broke out yesterday in a stretch of scrub brush and banana groves about 18 miles southwest of Da Nang when some North Vietnamese were caught out in the open.

U.S. intelligence officers saw no connection between the battle and a suspected enemy buildup along the Laotian border, which came under heavy attack by U.S. B52 Stratofortresses yesterday and today.

Elsewhere, U.S. 25th Infantry Division troops blocking northwestern enemy approach routes to Saigon killed 92 North Vietnamese troops in two battles Friday raning from 23 to 37 miles northwest of Saigon. Two U.S. soldiers were killed and nine wounded.

The U.S. Command reported a U.S. OH6 observation helicopter had been shot down near the Cambodian border and its three crewmen were wounded. The loss raised to 2,609 the number of American helicopters lost to all causes in the Vietnam War.

An apparently stepped-up Viet Cong terrorist campaign in Saigon continued today. Two bombs exploded, one in a downtown area, and the other in the Chinese district of Cholon. Six Vietnamese were wounded.

Mark Issue Becomes Bonn Election Issue

By WELLINGTON LONG

BONN (UPI)—West Germany's governing coalition jittered today because of dissention over its decision against revaluing the mark.

Government sources said the dispute over whether to revalue had transferred strain from the currency to the regime itself.

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and his Christian Democrats won the struggle with Socialist coalition members over how to confront Europe's latest monetary crisis. But though the Socialists warned the decision could be disastrous, they stopped short of threatening to quit the government.

Both rival parties already are jockeying for September's general elections.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a Socialist, had demanded in a letter to Kiesinger that the mark be immediately raised in value by 7 per cent to avoid inflation and return economic stability to Europe.

But kiesinger and his Christian Democrats agreed with German industrialists that revaluation would severely crimp the country's foreign trade and could imperil the economy at home.

The vote against revaluation was down party lines, 10-9.

Conrad Ahler, Kiesinger's chief spokesman, said the decision was "final...forever and eternal. I do not know how I can say it any clearer than this."

He also tried to dampen rumors of a government crisis over the decision and termed the vote a blow to both currency and political speculators.

How the decision will stand up will not be known at least until Monday, when money markets reopen. They had closed before the government's announcement, though Ahler had indicated as much earlier in the day.

News that the Germans would not alter the mark did take its toll on American currency exchanges, however, where the mark dropped sharply in heavy trading.

East Bay Chain Collision Fatal To One, Injures 11

HAYWARD (UPI) — An accident involving seven vehicles claimed the life of a Hayward business man and critically injured his son last night on the A-Street offramp of the Nimitz Freeway near Hayward.

Dead was Mr. Robert Dale Swartz, about 45, who owned a Hayward concrete business and resided in San Lorenzo. His son, Robert Dale Jr., 22, was in serious condition at a Hayward hospital.

Police said the accident occurred when a cement truck in which the Swartz's were riding went out of control, smashed into a traffic island then piled into two autos moving in the opposite direction.

The big truck finally came to a halt by smashing into four autos waiting at a stop sign.

Charleston Curfew Hit By Minister

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—Charleston remained relatively calm under the ninth night of a dawn-to-dusk curfew last night, but a top civil rights leader warned the curfew "is splitting this town into two separate camps."

The Rev. Andrew Young, an official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) who is in the port city to lead striking Negro hospital workers, charged the curfew is "an attempt to suppress the workers' union."

Young told a news conference yesterday that during the previous seven nights police have arrested 151 Negroes for curfew violations and only eight whites.

There has been no break in the impasse in the seven-week-old labor dispute between the Negro hospital workers and two Charleston hospitals. A meeting between Gov. Robert E. McNair and union officials in Columbia failed to produce any results yesterday.

Belli To Enter Sirhan's Case

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—The attorney who defended Jack Ruby for killing President John F. Kennedy's assassin says he may handle the appeal for the man convicted of killing Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Melvin Belli of San Francisco announced yesterday he has been invited to handle Sirhan B. Sirhan's appeal of his murder conviction in the death of the late President's brother last June 5.

"They've (Sirhan's family) contacted me before," he said. "They want me to do the appeal."

However, Sirhan's mother, Mary, said in Pasadena, "I can't comment (on Belli's statement) because I don't know that much about it."

And Sirhan's chief defense counsel, Grant Cooper, said he knew nothing about Belli entering the case.

DOUGLAS LINKED TO FORTAS ISSUE

Justice On Payroll Of A Foundation Set Up By Wolfson's Business Partner

WASHINGTON UPI) — Tax records show that in 1967 Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas was the only paid officer of a Los Angeles foundation named for Albert Parvin, who reportedly was involved in the stock manipulation case that sent financier Louis E. Wolfson to jail.

The Albert Parvin Foundation's federal tax return for 1967 shows that Douglas, who is both president and a director of the organization, was paid $12,000 for a variety of services while none of the other foundation officers received compensation.

The Los Angeles Times said yesterday that Parvin had been named as a coconspirator but not a defendant in the Securities and Exchange Commission's case against Wolfson, who has been convicted on a charge of trading unregistered stock and is now serving a one-year prison term.

Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas confirmed last Sunday that in 1966 he received and returned an unspecified amount of money sent him by the Wolfson Family Foundation. He is said to have kept the money for 11 months, returning it only a few days after Douglas' connection with the Parvin Foundation was revealed and shortly after Wolfson was indicted.

The Parvin Foundation's 1967 tax return also shows that Fortas' wife, a noted tax lawyer who practices as Carolyn Agger with his former firm of Arnold and Porter, was retained in November, 1966, to evaluate the foundation's tax-free status.

Although her fee was not disclased, the foundation's 1966 return carries the entry: "Miscellaneous expense — professional fees —$16,058."

Douglas has come under severe criticism from several members of Congress, particularly Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., because of the Parvin Foundation's financial holdings in Nevada gambling casinos and his continued relationship with the foundation.

The 1967 return, latest the foundation has filed, shows it added $101,340 to its tax-exempt assets from the sale of its interest in "custodian accounts" held by the Hotel Flamingo, Las Vegas.

The foundation's return also shows that it owned about $500,000 worth of stock in the Parvin-Dohrmann Co., a hotel supply and equipment business which owned three Las Vegas casinos. Parvin was then a partner in the company.

Earlier this month, the Securities and Exchange Commission confirmed that its staff was conducting a "routine inquiry" into recent and current trading of Parvin-Dohrmann stock, according to a Wall Street Journal report. The newspaper said trading in the stock was suspended on the American Exchange until the investigation was concluded.

It was Williams who first called attention in 1966 to Douglas' connection with the Parvin foundation. At that time, Douglas wrote Chief Justice Earl Warren that "historically, many justices have had outside activities." He said in the letter that "there has been no conflict whatsoever between the foundation and my work on the court."

Douglas did not disclose in his letter how much he was being paid by the foundation, what his responsibilities were or how much of his time he devoted to it.

Panthers Doing Better Job Than U.S. Feeding Pupils?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "The Black Panthers are supplying more free breakfasts to California school children than the federal government does," says the top Democrat in California's lower legislative house.

Jess Unruh, former Assembly speaker and now minority leader, made the statement yesterday before the U.S. Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs as it held a one-day hearing here.

Unruh, D-Inglewood, criticized Gov. Ronald Reagan for what Unruh termed "purposely or blindly refusing to recognize that the problem of hunger exists."

"I think it's rather interesting that no representative of the governor's office is here today," he added.

The committee counsel said no reply was received to an invitation sent the Republican governor by the committee chairman, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Unruh's reference to the Black Panthers was in note that the militant Negro group supplies free breakfasts to hundreds of Negro needy children in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Robert L. Gnaizda, deputy director of the California Rural Legal Assistance organization, said only 10 per cent of the state's needy children get free school lunches and offered the community of Nipomo in San Luis Obispo County as an example.

He said there are 1,120 needy children in a unified school district there and that only 14 receive free lunches.

"The rest cannot afford the 30-cent subsidized lunches the middle class children buy," Gnaizda said.

Superviser Arley L. Howsden of Butte County in North Central California testified that unemployment has averaged 11 per cent there for the past 10 years and hit 23 per cent last winter. But a three-member majority of the board of supervisors has opposed all federal aid programs except subsidies for ranch owners, Howsden said.

Illness Stalls Court-Martial

FORT ORD (UPI) — The mutiny court-martial of 14 stockade prisoners from the Presidio of San Francisco will be delayed more than a week because of the illness of a court member.

The Army said yesterday that Lt. Col. Richard J. Potter, hospitalized with an attack of gall stones, will not require surgery and should be ready to return to duty on the court by May 19.

When the court-martial resumes, defense attorney Terence Hallinan will be winding up his case. The prosecution expects to take about a week in rebuttal and then the court-martial board will meet privately to reach a verdict.

The 14 GI's were among 27 charged with mutiny following a sit-down demonstration last Oct. 14. Eight soldiers have been convicted, three escaped before trial and two are undergoing medical treatment.

WASHINGTON UPI — A Civil Aeronautics Board hearing examiner has reaffirmed his approval of financier Howard Hughes' request to purchase Air West.

On April 14, hearing examiner Ross I. Newman recommended approval of the Hughes proposal. But a protest filed by Western Airlines remanded the case back to Newman for further hearings which ended this week.

DDT Peril Denied

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two state agencies say that contrary to comments by a pair of legislators, the amount of DDT in the edible portions of crabs is "negligible and not harmful to humans."

The fish and game and public health departments issued the joint statement yesterday in response to a bill aimed at prohibiting the sale and use of various pesticides in California.

When Republican Sens. John A. Nejedly of Walnut Creek and Lewis F. Sherman of Berkeley introduced the measure in the Senate Wednesday, they said it was prompted by recent reports that DDT is harming the state's crab industry.

Educator Quits

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The president of Brown University, who once said he was impressed by the importance of the decision made by the academic administration, has resigned because he does not "enjoy being a university president."

Dr. Ray L. Heffner, president of the Ivy League school for three years, announced his resignation from Brown to become professor of English and provost of the University of Iowa effective Aug. 1.

Heffner said the resignation had nothing whatsoever to do with recent campus unrest.

Assault Charge Filed Against Mrs. Brocco

LORRAINE BROCCO
Accused of assault

Mrs. Brocco — whose husband, Henry, is a former Larkspur councilman — was accompanied into court by her attoreny, Roger P. Garety, who waived formal arraignment and asked a two-week continuance for entry of plea. Judge Peter Allen Smith continued the case until May 23.

Mrs. Brocco, who is now living with her mother in another county and working as a pharmacist, according to Garety, was released on her own recognizance by Judge Smith.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest Zunino said that the long delay in filing a charge against Mrs. Brocco was because of an investigation into the nature of ilness suffered by her.

Brocco told police he awakened about 3 a.m to find his wife chopping at his head with a hatchet. One of the couple's children called an ambulance and police came to the house and found Mrs. Brocco unconscious from an overdose of pills.

Both were treated at Marin General Hospital, where Mrs. Brocco was a patient for almost a month.

In November both filed suits for divorce in Marin Superior Court.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

When To Keep Quiet

The law often frowns upon "meddlers" who offer their services when nobody asks them to. Yet in other situations the law encourages one to help those in distress.

Thus, Jones saw two men fighting a youth. Mistakenly thinking they were unlawfully beating up the youngster, he jumped into the fight. In the midst of it, one man got badly hurt. Imagine Jones' surprise: The men were plain clothes policemen lawfully trying to arrest the youth.

The officer, who sued Jones, won his case and a court awarded him damages. If Jones meant well but made a mistake, it is just too bad; he had to pay.

In some criminal cases, on the other hand, such a mistake is a good excuse in court.

These then are conflicting policies: (1) to encourage rescue and aid of one's fellow man, and (2) to discourage people from meddling in other people's business.

Suppose you carelessly started a fire which threatened a child. Smith, a bystander, who tried to rescue the child, got burned. The law may well hold you responsible for Smith's injuries. If you are at fault in starting a fire, in driving too fast, or in maintaining a defective building, then you may well be liable to injured rescuers who try to help out your "victims."

Doctors, nurses and those in the "healing professions" are encouraged to give aid in emergency situations ". . . outside their place and course of employment." They cannot be sued for negligent treatment in such emergencies unless they acted with "malice or in bad faith, or were grossly negligent."

The California Vehicle Code requires motorists involved in an accident to stop and render aid, if necessary to take an injured person to a hospital. Fail in this, and the motorist can be prosecuted for a felony.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

New Muffler Held Solution To Smog Woes

LOS ANGELES AP — A muffler claimed to be 100 per cent effective against oxides of nitrogen-an increasing element of smog not controlled by current anti-pollution devices was exhibited yesterday by a rocket scientist.

Milton Farber, president of Space Sciences, Inc., told a news conference the device chemically "scrubs" oxides of nitrogen, unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide from automobile exhaust.

Commented Louis J. Fuller, Los Angeles County air pollution control officer: "If this muffler works well in upcoming road tests, it certainly would spell the end of air pollution from cars."

Fuller said current devices placed on cars by manufacturers reduce hydrocarbons but increase the amount of oxides of nitrogen in the exhaust.

Traffic Toll Up For Part Of Year

SACRAMENTO UPI — Ninety more persons died in California traffic accidents during the first four months of this year than in the same period last year.

The highway patrol reported that in the January-April period, 1,585 persons were killed on the state's roads compared with 1,495 during the corresponding months in 1968.

Word Omitted Shifts Meaning Of Quote

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly quoted Marin City councilman Collie Gaines when the word "not" was dropped from her comments on housing in the community.

The sentence should have read, ". . . usually the gain in income was not enough to enable such persons to pay $150 a

Black Students Leader Scolded

LOS ANGELES (UPI — The president of the Black Students Union at San Fernando Valley State College was convicted yesterday of failing to heed an order to disperse during a campus demonstration last Jan. 9.

"If you are going to be a leader, then act like a leader," Municipal Court Judge Irwin J. Nebron told Archie Lee Chatman, 21.

Chatman, a paid student adviser at the school, was permitted to remain free on $625 bail pending a June 3 hearing on his request for probation.

Luggage Plant Plans Approved

The Corte Madera Board of Design yesterday approved an application for expansion of H. Koch and Sons luggage factory and forwarded the application to the planning commission.

The approval came late yesterday afternoon at an adjourned meeting of the three-man board in San Francisco.

The luggage company's expansion plans call for the addition of 72,000 square feet at 15 Koch Road.

Keeps Up Studies

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)— A mind honed on learning never retires, even though official retirement comes at a designated age for some men. Dr. Oliver S. Willham, 68, former president of Oklahoma State University, has re-enrolled in school. He is taking agriculture and home economics classes.

at $15,625. DeBruyn's bail in Marin was set at $25,000.

If convicted, DeBruyn will face a five-to-20-year sentence.

Agents said they had been unable to track down the source of DeBruyn's high quality heroin, which usually comes from Mexico or the Orient.

The search of his home was hampered, they said, by the wooded area surrounding the house in which "you could hide anything."

DeBruyn was convicted in December of selling marijuana last year, and Judge Samuel W. Gardiner sentenced him to 30 days in jail, followed by a year of weekends in jail.

Agents said yesterday they found nothing to indicate that DeBruyn himself is a heroin addict.

Tam Students Hold Campus Walk-Away

An estimated 150 students at Tamalpais High School conducted an orderly noon-hour walk off campus yesterday to protest the closed campus rule.

Handbills signed "Power to the students" appeared on campus at mid-morning calling for the walkout but setting strict rules. The walkout, following the instructions, was only through the back parking lot fence.

Principal Robert Prather said the pupils gathered along the fence without crossing the road and discussed the closed campus rule. There was no confrontation or violence, and pupils reenter the campus for afternoon classes, he said.

The campus was closed four years ago, Prather said, after neighbors petitioned in protest against students' littering, trespassing on neighbors' property, and fighting at C's Drive-in restaurant.

The handbills were illegal, Prather said, but "we don't know what punishment, if any, will be assessed" if the students responsible are caught.

The staff will meet Monday to discuss the closed campus rule, he said, and student government leaders have indicated they will try to meet the walkout leaders and discuss the situation.

Reagan Vows War On Dope

ANAHEIM (AP)—Gov. Ronald Reagan said today that his administration "is giving urgent priority to the solution of the drug problem" in California.

"Whatever steps it may take, whatever program must be developed, whatever legislation must be passed," Reagan said, "we pledge ourselves to act, to work with local officials, concerned parents, school, medical and law enforcement leaders . . ."

Reagan said about 90 communities in the state have asked the federal government to close the California-Mexico border to persons under 18 years of age unless they are accompanied by a responsible adult.

"A resolution with similar provisions has passed both houses of the California legislature and has been transmitted to Washington," he said.

"Wiping out the drug problem is possibly the greatest challenge in the area of crime control that has ever confronted California and this nation," Reagan said.

Woman Accused Of Shoplifting

A San Anselmo woman was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of shoplifting at Macy's in downtown San Rafael.

Judith Elaine Edison, 24, of 770 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, posted $315 bail to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Sylvia Benhke, a store security guard, performed a citizen's arrest after Miss Edison allegedly took a three-piece bathing suit, valued at $13, from the store.

Housewives Happy

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—Nearly 90 per cent of Dutch housewives are happy with their lot of running a home, according to a nationwide poll. Of dissidents, most were in the 30-50 age group. The highest dissatisfaction percentage was found in the city of Amsterdam.

Nixon Calls Key Cabinet Aides To Talks

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon began talks today with key cabinet advisers to iron out policies on a wide range of controversial domestic issues, including campus strife and the draft.

The chief executive began the meeting shortly after 10 a.m. EST with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Health and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch.

Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said there was no set agenda, and indicated there would be a free wheeling discussion on a variety of problems.

About three miles from the Nixon compound 17 placard carrying members of the Miami Dade Young Americans for Freedom walked a picket line in support of the president's antiballistic missile system.

The pro ABM demonstrators contrasted to "new party" pickets in the same spot yesterday who carried signs against HE "safeguard" system.

The placards today read: "Keep us alive—adopt ABM"; "The American Eagle is No Chicken"; "Doves are for the Birds" and "Better Ready Than Dead."

Teen-Ager Held On Money Order Believed Stolen

An 18-year-old San Rafael girl was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of forging a money order believed to be one of 3,000 to 5,000 pieces of mail said to have been stolen over a period of time by a former San Rafael postman.

San Rafael police said Juanita Litteral of 9 Taylor Street had endorsed and signed over an $85 Bank of America money order to Eugene Richard Rudnick, who endorsed and cashed the money order April 17 at the Montecito Branch of the Bank of America.

Rudnick was arrested Wednesday by San Rafael police for investigation of forging the money order. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

According to police, the money order apparently was given to Miss Litteral by Warren Sielsky, 32, also of 9 Taylor Street. Sielsky is awaiting trial on charges of stealing large quantities of mail while working at the Mill Valley Post Office.

Black Point Club Nominates Slate

The organization will elect new officers June 13.

Nominated for treasurer were Mrs. Maryann Gaebel, Frank Collins and Mrs. Edith Rivasplata. Nominated for the board of directors were Henry Torget, Gerald Merlant, Leo Nolan, Vera Stoner, Frank Miller, James Heatlie, Richard Baebel and Collins. Seven will be elected.

Running unopposed will be Robert Saunders for vice president, Clara Saunders for recording secretary and Anita Miller for corresponding secretary.

Novato Mishap Injures Youth

A 20-year-old San Aneslmo youth was in satisfactory condition today in Marin General Hospital after he was struck by a car last night in Novato

William Hickerson of 28 Woodside Avenue was struck by a car driven by an unidentified person about 10 p.m. in front of 1184 Cambridge Street.

Food Stamp Talks

Briefing sessions on the county's food stamp program will be held Monday at Novato Community House at 10 a.m. and at Lagunitas Elementary School in San Geronimo at 7 p.m. and on Wednesday at Central School auditorium, Sausalito, at 8 p. m.

MORALS

destined to become not disseminators of knowledge, but directors of a child's behavior and development," it said.

It charged that persons "who are in fact aligned with revolutionary groups acting contrary to public policy" used such techniques as group therapy and sensitivity training with the intent to "use the schools to destroy American culture and tradition."

The advisory committee which drew up the guidelines was appointed by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Max Rafferty, a conservative Republican who was defeated in his bid for the U.S. Senate last year.

It recommended using the "moral leadership" handbooks of the Navy and Marine Corps as "a prepared and tested outline of technique to teach young men the nature of man and his relationship to God, his neighbor, his country and his world." It called the handbooks a useful basis for content of moral education for school children.

One member of the committee that drew up the report, Mrs. Rosemary Howard, chairman of the Interfaith Congress on Religion and Education in San Jose, disagreed with the recommendations and refused to sign them.

Other members of the committee included three Republican state legislators, Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield of Downey, and Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes of San Diego, who is a former Navy chaplain and a clergyman.

While accepting the report, board member Dr. John Ford added a recommendation that evolution be taught as "theory, not fact."

He said creation should be taught from the scientific point of view and from the Bible, with the students being allowed to make up their own minds.

Evolution taught as fact "is limiting the power of God and thus decreases the moral values in schools," Ford said.

Dr. Edwin Klotz, who was removed as the board's special assistant last month on the grounds he made speeches that did not reflect the views of the whole board, directed much of the work on the report. He also submitted a six-point program for implementing the guidelines.

The board turned the proposals over to a board committee headed by the Rev. Donn Moomaw, a former UCLA All America football star and now a Presbyterian minister, for study.

Second Burglary Arrest For Youth

A 22-year-old San Rafael youth was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of burglary, 24 hours after he had been released from jail in connection with another burglary.

George Edwayd Myers, 22, was held without bail in Marin County Jail pending an appearance in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said evidence at the scene of a burglary at 304 Mission Avenue, where antique silverware and jewelry, valued at $1,300, were taken Sunday, linked Myers with the crime.

Myers had been arrested Thursday along with Paul Danny Cassidy, 22, of 1135 Fourth Street, San Rafael, after San Anselmo police found the two carrying a pillowcase containing stolen silverware and jewelry and credit cards in the name of Robert C. Caughell of 10 Marina Court, San Rafael, whose home had earlier been broken into.

Cassidy and Myers were released after the district attorney's office declined to file charges pending further investigation.

Narcotics, Club Case To Superior Court

Terry B. Samuels, 29, of Marin City, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on felony charges of possession of heroin and cocaine and possession of a billy club.

He was arrested in Sausalito last Aug. 3. Arraignment was set for May 20 in Superior Court.

OBITUARIES

Thomas Greenlees Dies At 80

Thomas Greenleees, a 10-year resident of Fairfax, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Greenlees, 80, had been a self-employed structural engineer for nearly 50 years prior to his retirement.

He moved to Marin County 12 years ago from Seattle, Wash.

He served with the famed 91st Infantry Division in France during World War 1. He was a member of Tamalpais Post No. 72 Veterans of Foreign Wars, and American Legion Post No. 1 of San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Rodney of Fairfax; two sisters, Mrs. Alex Cloke and Mrs. Margaret Baker, both of England, and a brother, James Greenlees, also of England.

Funeral will be Monday at 10 a.m. in the St. Augustine's Episcopal Church in Fairfax. Inurnment will be private.

ELISE JURGENSEN

An Independent-Journal headline incorrectly indicated yesterday that the first name of Elise Jurgensen, who died Thursday at her Petaluma home, was Elsie.

The funeral will be at 1 p.m. Monday at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

ALEXANDER E. WILLIAMS

Funeral for Alexander E. Williams of Mill Valley will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley.

Williams, 59, was killed Thursday after his car went ove ra guard rail into Richardson Bay from a Highway 101 frontage road.

A native of Oakland, Williams had lived in Mill Valley for the past six years.

He was the owner of the Molo Crafts Studio at 10 Locust Street which had been closed since the death of his first wife, Mary Lathrop (Molo) Williams, the store's founder.

Mrs. Williams started the children's arts and crafts school in San Francisco in 1938. Williams became a partner in the studio shortly after it opened.

In 1963, they moved the shop to its present location and in 1967 the two longtime partners were married.

Williams is survived by his second wife, Ethel of Mill Valley, and four brothers, Carroll of Los Angeles, Raymond of Hayward, Sydney of Walnut Creek and Roger Williams of San Francisco

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

STEPHEN ROWE

FORT ORD (UPI) — An accident on the hand grenade training range at Fort Ord has taken the life of Pvt. Stephen W. Rowe, son of a United Press International newsman.

The Army said yesterday that young Rowe was about to throw a grenade from a bunker when it exploded.

The victim was the son of David G. Rowe of UPI's San Francisco office and Mrs. Corrine M. Rowe, Pacoima, Calif.

The Army ordered a thorough investigation of the grenade's premature detonation. The victim joined the Army in January and was in the seventh week of advanced infantry training.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

vention of the California Junior Statesmen of America yesterday in Fresno, Reagan said "we know of an exact incident" in which money from Peking was channeled to the University of California at Berkeley.

Sen. Hugh M. Burns, chairman of the state Senate committee on un-American activities, made a similar statement last week in a television interview.

Reagan also said campus unrest is being promoted by a "handful of hard-core professional students between 28 and 38 whose names are known to us and whose travels are known by Communist governments."

Deputies Arrest More Sunbathers At Muir Beach

An assorted group of four men, two women and one baby—all nude—were hustled off to jail yesterday by sheriff's deputies in the latest raid on nude sunbathers at Muir Beach.

All except the baby were arrested on suspicion of disturbing the peace.

Sheriff's officers said that they saw other nudes on the beach but only arrested the one group, as they were badly outnumbered by the unclothed set.

Booked into jail—clothed—with bail set at $125 each were Gregory C. Arata, 20, of 6 Marinda Court, Fairfax; Robert V. Andrus, 24, of 1563 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael; Suzy R. Galluccio, 20, and Robert G. Rigler, 24, both of 809 Spring Drive, Mill Valley; John William Hulse, 44, of 1107 West California Street, Mill Valley, and Margaret Devera, 21, of 382 Irwin Street, San Rafael.

Pupils Compete In Spelling Bee

Terry Hasik, an eighth grade student at Our Lady of Loretto School, Novato, last night earned the title of best speller among 26 seventh and eighth graders from Marin's parochial schools.

Terry, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Hasik of 1211 Yukon Way, Novato, outspelled contestants in the seventh annual spelling bee sponsored by the Knights of Columbus at St. Anselm's Parish Hall, San Anselmo.

Second place winner was Tom Jasek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jasek of 70 Geldert Drive, Tiburon, and an eighth grader at St. Hilary's School, and third place went to Mark Bettini, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bettini of 130 Valley View Avenue, San Rafael, and a seventh grader at St. Raphael's School.

Principal To Talk On Volunteer Work

Ralph Azevedo, principal of Rohnert Park Junior High School, will speek to volunteers of the Sonoma State College Community Involvement Project at 10 a.m. Monday in the student lounge.

Azevedo will speek on "The Role of The Volunteer in Education." The campus volunteer program, in its second year, has 250 students who work as school aides, tutors and playground supervisors.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

Here's an addition to "What Is A Mother?"

A mother is the one who tells her engaged daughter she'll be completely on her own when she marries — and ends up giving her little extras, gifts for the house, invitations to dinner when the young couple goes slightly broke. But she never mentions why.

She's the one who would give the clothes off her back to make her kids happy. She even takes her birthday money to buy birthday clothes for her daughter.

She hollers her head off when the kids forget their vitamins yet she is forever forgetting her heart medicine.

She flips her cookies and grounds us once in a while, but if something terrific comes up, it's "I know you've learned your lesson, so you can go." (And we have!)

She's the one who worries about a little sniffle in her kids, but you can't drag her to the doctor!

The one who stayed up all night when you had measles, chicken pox, mumps. Then worked all day, as usual.

Who once let an older daughter walk to a ball game, but met her half way home with a butcherknife tucked up her sleeve. (" You can't tell who's walking the streets these days.")

She may have a couple of annoying habits like hollering when we don't do our rooms and expecting us to be perfect, but mainly she's an angel and we love her!

When you've had a mother-daughter spat because she won't let you date, get a job, go to a party, etc., stop and think: She may be off some place crying because of the bad things you said to her. —THANKS

DEAR HELEN:

Won't you please publish this letter to my Mother, for Mothers Day?

DEAR MOM: Sunday was for church. Oh, how I hated it. Then one day you said if I wasn't getting something from it, I needn't go. For a while I didn't. Now I go every Sunday — and listen. You let me make my own decision.

Monday and Tuesday are the nights you make me stay in, and though I groan, I'm really glad you insist I catch up on my ironing, sewing, cleaning, etc. then. You don't have a certain hour when I must be in bed — again, you let me decide.

On nights I go out, you aren't nosey, So I volunteer my whereabouts. The best part of the evening is talking it over with a terrific friend who understands.

When it comes to my report card, I'm never afraid to bring it home. Thanks, Mom, for not comparing me with brainier kids. You don't restrict me if you know I'm trying, even if my grades aren't that great.

You don't make me punch a timeclock. Your "reasonable hour" rules get me home just a little before you really expect me — or nudge me into calling if I may be late. And you don't blow up until you hear my side.

Mom, you've given me everything I could want. First and most important a happy home, and a life surrounded by love. —A VERY HAPPY DAUGHTER

DEAR HELEN:

Who says there's a generation gap? Every day I'm away at college I realize more how much my mother and dad have done for me. They'll always be "in my group," and maybe I forgot to tell them so when I was younger, but I won't any more. If all kids would say "You're great, Mom and Dad" at least once a day, they'd knock their brains out living up to it.—COLLEGE GIRL

Nancy Powell Sets August Nuptial Date

The engagement of Nancy Elizabeth Powell to Richard Tietz of New Orleans has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Powell Jr. of Honolulu and San Anselmo.

Nancy is the sister of Robert Powell, Mrs. Thomas Gondie and Georgia Powell and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Stanley Powell and Mrs. Walter Winstead, both of San Francisco.

She is a graduate of San Domenico School for Girls and attended Mt. Vernon Junior College in Washington, D.C.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tietz of New Orleans and the brother of Gary and Robert Tietz of New Orleans. He is a graduate of the University of California and is serving as an officer with the Army in Washington, D.C.

An August wedding in California is planned.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN SWART

Kathleen Budar Bride In San Anselmo Rite

Kathleen Anne Budar became the bride of John Swart May 3 in a ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Budar of San Rafael, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swart of Fairfax.

Mrs. Norman Rianda of King City, the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Johnson of Petaluma and Marilyn Jacobs of Mill Valley.

Best man was Tom Cook of San Rafael, and the bride's brother, Gordon Budar, and Norman Rianda ushered guests to their seats.

A reception at Dominic's restaurant followed the ceremony. The couple will live in San Rafael when they return from a wedding trip to Acapulco.

The bride is a graduate of San Rafael High School and Dominican College. She is employed by McGraw-Hill Book Company in Novato. Mrs. David Taylor of Mill Valley and Mrs. Arthur Budar of San Rafael are her grandmothers.

John was graduated from San Rafael High School and California Polytechnic State College in San Luis Obispo. He is employed by Blake, Moffitt and Towne in San Francisco. His grandmothers are Mrs. Milton Feig of San Francisco and Mrs. John Sandretto of Fairfax.

SEW SIMPLE

Slit Detail Technique Given For Coat Patterns

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE:

I saw a summer coat in a fashion magazine that intrigued me very much and yet I can't find a pattern that has the detail I admired. The coat had slits in the seams that were almost at the exact sides, otherwise the coat had very simple lines that can be copied in a pattern. Can I simply leave the lower part of the seam unstitched to obtain the same effect?—MRS. M.R.

DEAR MRS. M. R.:

This "slit detail" is very easy to achieve, especially if you decide upon it before you have cut your pattern. Simply cut a two inch seam allowance the length of the desired slit instead of the usual ⅝ inch. If you aren't sure just how high to make the slit, it is better to cut the seam extension higher than necessary, it can always be cut and stitched down further. This is really a "fun" detail to use on a coat.

ANN OWEN, Paducah, Ky., is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion:

"It is almost impossible to find a pattern that has sleeves in the dress as well as sleeves in a jacket or coat. For mature women a dress with sleeves is much more flattering than one that is sleeveless. I have been putting sleeves in my dresses (many of them with the new long sleeves) and then making the coat or jacket sleeveless.

DEAR EUNICE:

I was given a piece of cashmere for a coat and would like this to be my summer project. Can you give me any tips on working with this fabric? — MRS. W. D.

DEAR MRS. W. D.:

Cashmere is usually a fairly soft fabric; keep this in mind when selecting a pattern. Be sure you check the nap, it must run down. (As you smooth your fabric with your hand, it should feel smooth from the shoulder down toward the hem). All pieces of the garment must be cut in the same direction.

Be careful not to press on the right side of the fabric and I would also suggest you place a piece of cashmere over your pressing board so that the two pieces of cashmere will touch each other and avoid a hard or shiny look.

Because the fabric is soft, the front edges, collar edges, pockets etc. will usually not look as flat as you might wish, therefore, hand picking or machine top-stitching is recommended, it also adds a lovely touch to an otherwise plain fabric.

DEAR EUNICE:

Please tell us the "story" on white fabrics. I have an off-white wool suit and a long white coat and don't know just what time of year I may wear these. I live in the eastern part of the country.— MRS. N.R.

DEAR MRS. N. R.:

For the past few years white has been accepted as good fashion for any time of the year. You will find white used in all designer collections for each and every season.

DEAR EUNICE:

I am wondering if there is any disadvantage to stitching the sleeve into the armhole before stitching the side and sleeve seams? I must sew for four children as well as myself and find this is a much quicker method. —MRS. A. L. E.

DEAR MRS. A. L. E.:

This is a method that is seldom used when making custom clothes, however, it is used in most factory made garments simply because it does save time and we're all interested in that.

I usually recommend sewing all boys' and men's sleeves in this method as well as shirt type sleeves for women's clothes because the cap of the sleeve doesn't have to be shaped as it does for regular women's clothes. I would suggest you continue with your method for any "quickie" type clothes and insert the sleeves into the armhole after the underarm seams have been completed on your better garments.

You will find my leaflet "All About Sleeves" very helpful and you may obtain your copy by sending 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Engagement Is Told By Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Michel Marculescu Jr. of San Francisco announce the engagement of their daughter, Nicole Marculescu, to Lewis M. Lefcourt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Lefcourt of Foster City.

The Marculescus are former residents of San Anselmo. Nicole was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and San Jose State College, where she was a member of Sigma Kappa sorority and the Women's Student Executive Council. She is a graduate student at San Jose State. Michel Marculescu III of Palo Alto is her brother, and she is the sister of Mrs. Carroll Jones, who is traveling in Europe.

Lewis is the brother of Alan and Sandy Lefcourt. He was graduated from Aragon High School and is attending San Jose State.

Marin Pair Engaged

The Inverness summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Moore of Mill Valley was the setting for the nuptials May 3 of Judith Ann Moore and Jeremy Starr Niendorff of San Rafael.

Mrs. Robert J. Massad was her sister's matron of honor and Dr. Robert Massad of Mill Valley served as best man.

A reception followed at the Moore home and the couple left on a wedding trip to Mendocino. They will live in San Rafael.

Judith is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and Queen Margret's School in Duncan, B.C. She is employed at Patty's restaurant in Sausalito. She is the sister also of Mrs. David Skinner of Fourah Bay College, Freetown, Sierra Leone.

Mrs. Alex Whittemore of Canoga Park and Arthur S. Niendorff of Arlington, Va., are parents of the bridegroom. He is a graduate of Marshall High School and East Texas Baptist College in Marshall, Tex. He plans to enter San Francisco Art Institute in the fall.

Auxiliary Members Finalize Plans For Memorial Concert

Plans for the Memorial Day weekend Al Fresco Dinner Concert of the Marin Symphony will be completed at a meeting called by committee chairman Mrs. Lucien Mitchell for Monday at 10 a.m. at her home, 330 Molino Avenue in Mill Valley. The concert is scheduled for May 30 at 3 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

Termed a "Loose Ends Tie Up" by Mrs. Mitchell, the meeting will be attended by members of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary, the orchestra and the board.

The outdoors pops concert, conducted by Maestro Sandor Salgo, will be offered free to the public, according to the chairman, but dinners will be sold by reservation only, to benefit the symphony. Beer, wine and soft drinks will be sold during the concert.

Chairmen are Mrs. Barry Boland who will assist Mrs. Mitchell, and Mmes. Thomas Foris, Robert Mills, Evelyn Airth, Ralph Dewey, Kenneth Davis and John Collette. Members of the Marin Youth Orchestra will serve as ushers and hostesses.

A SALAD BOWL luncheon of Central Marin Welcome Wagon will be held under the trees of Maple Lawn at the Elks Club, 1312 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, on Tuesday. Members and guests will gather at 11 a.m. for cocktails and to view the art show and crafts display. Lunch will be served at noon.

Highlights of the morning will be the Madhatters Parade with "Husband's Occupation" as its theme. A prize will be awarded for the most creative hat.

Proceeds of the day will benefit trainable mentally retarded children in San Rafael.

"HUMAN RIGHTS" will be the topic discussed by Hank Waschow Tuesday at the luncheon meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church of Mill Valley

A business meeting at 11 a.m. in the Youth Room will be followed by luncheon in Fellowship Hall at noon with the program at 1 p.m.

Mr. Waschow is executive director of Outer City branch of the San Francisco YMCA and also a member of the Mill Valley church.

Hostesses will be Mmes. Charles Henson, J. E. Christian and William Henry with Mrs. Jack Shapiro in charge of devotions.

THE HOLY Family Guild of Marin will hold its annual luncheon at St. Patrick's Church Hall in Larkspur on Wednesday at noon for the benefit of the Novitiate Motherhouse in Mission San Jose. Entertainment will be provided by a group of Postulants and Novices from the Novitiate.

Mrs. Dolores Sutton, president of the guild, states that the Singing Nuns will render folk songs with guitar accompaniment.

Reservations chairmen are Mrs. Herbert Neal, 239 Harvard Drive, and Mrs. F. J. Buscher, 7 William Street, both of Larkspur.

MRS. RAY McDUFFEE of Penngrove will present a demonstration-lecture on "Herbs: Their Culture and Use" Tuesday for members of the Novato Garden Club, Inc.

Although a serious gardener for many years, Mrs. McDuffee didn't become interested in herbs until a decade ago while living in London. Her own herb garden was a significant factor in her being named Sonoma County Woman Gardener of the Year last summer during the Sonoma County Fair. She is a member of both the Redwood Garden Club and the Santa Rosa Garden Club, and serves as leader of two herb groups for the latter.

Novato Garden Club members will participate in their annual crazy hat contest during the luncheon hour which begins at noon at the Community House. Assisting chairman Mrs. John Sloat are Mmes. Joseph Amato, George Barnes, Jackson Bunker, Ben Collier, H. B. Beadle, Ralph Michener and Walter von Tagen.

Mrs. Noel E. Turner, first vice president, will conduct the business meeting at 1 o'clock, and will make recognition of the club past presidents in a special ceremony.

Mrs. Beadle, tour chairman, will accept reservations for the organization's June 10 outing to the Peninsula. The itinerary includes the Sunnyside Nursery and an elephant-train tour of the General Motors plant at Pleasanton where visitors observe the assembly of an automobile. Husbands of members are encouraged to join the tour, Mrs. Beadle indicated.

THE MILL VALLEY Tennis Club is having a cocktail party tonight following play in the 44-45 National Men's Doubles and Singles Tournament honoring participants in the tournament going on at the club.

Party chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kearney. Tournament chairman Earl Kissinger is being assisted by Mmes. Kenneth Stevens, Larry Brink, Eleanor Tierney and Bertrand Hirsch.

A Marin barbershop quartet will provide entertainment and will feature a song about tennis written by Mr. Kearney.

THE FINAL meeting of flower arrangement classes, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the San Francisco Yacht Club, will be held on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to noon at the Belvedere clubhouse. Mrs. Curtis Knowles of Ross is the instructor.

MARIN INTER-CITY Council of Beta Sigma Phi sorority will present its Boutique Bouquet fashion show and luncheon at Ondine Restaurant in Sausalito on Wednesday. Proceeds from the annual benefit will be presented to two speech and hearing clinics.

Chairmen for the event are Mrs. Oliver Hanger and Bette Porter. Committee chairmen are Mmes. George Kipgen, tickets and reservations; Leonard Mergseth, programs; David Blodget and Larry Stanley, prizes; Lawson Wood, publicity, and Neal Harding, models.

Modeling will be Mmes. Claudia Hocker, William Poate, Larry Stanley, Harry Ibsen, Donald Sutherland, Donald Heinitz, Al Sims, Marvin Clement, Charles Aby and Robert Martin.

THREE FILMS will be shown for the public May 14 at 8 p.m. in the little theater at Redwood High School in Larkspur by the Education for Childbirth Association. The films are "A Story About Childbirth" by Dr. John S. Miller, "Natural Childbirth" by Dr. Robert T. Bailey and "Postnatal Care" by Dr. Earle Marsh.

MRS BEATRICE ATWOOD, the grand guardian of the state of California, will make her official visit to Bethel 119 of Mill Valley and Bethel 246 of Larkspur, International Order of Job's Daughters, on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Mill Valley Masonic Temple.

She will be accompanied by Mr. Fay Bates, associate grand guardian of the state of California, International Order of Job's Daughters.

In their honor an initiation meeting will be held with honored queens Marsha Phipps and Kathy Frakes presiding, and ritualistic work will be shared by the bethels.

Teachers Receive Training

INDIANA, Pa. (UPI)—In an effort to better prepare those who teach in urban areas, Indiana University of Pennsylvania is offering a sequence of summer school courses in urban education.

The program is for teachers who have already completed their undergraduate work and want specialized training in urban education.

The program will be flexible, with six of the 12 weeks devoted to student teaching in Pittsburgh schools.

Preceeding the student teaching experience is a three-week course in orientation to teaching in urban centers. The course will be taught by instructors currently engaged in urban teaching.

Following the student teaching, the students will review their experiences in a three-week course in interpreting urban teaching experiences.

Program planners say they hope to emphasize physical characteristics of the community, background and aspirations of the children and specialized teaching competencies.

School officials say emphasis will be given to developing an understanding of the special needs of the disadvantaged child and how the origin of attitudes and values affects the relationship which exists between students and teachers.

Buffet Supper To Celebrate Half-Century Of Marriage

Family and friends will be on hand tonight for the golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Robison of Kentfield. An informal buffet supper will be served at 7:30 p.m. at the family home, with the couple's two daughters and Mrs. Robison's sister assisting.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gromm of Bethel Island, their son Robert Gromm Jr. and daughter Claudia and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cockerline of San Bruno and their daughter Ann and son John will come for the weekend. The girls will assist their mother with preparations for the anniversary fete as will Mrs. Robison's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Smith of San Rafael. Mr. Robison's brother, H. Edgar Robison of Lagunitas, will also be on hand, along with other family members and their friends.

Married May 10, 1919, in San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Robison have lived most of their married life in Marin County; Kentfield has been their address the past 19 years. Mr. Robison, who is semi-retired, continues to operate his own public accountant business "just to keep himself busy and out of mischief," says his wife.

San Francisco is the bride's home town. "My folks were born there also," she said in explaining how deep the family roots go in the City.

"But I don't want to be married 50 years. Now I'll commence to feel old," she observed as she reminisced over half a century of wedded life.

Kelly Sparrow To Wed Joy Diane Blackmore

Mr. and Mrs. George Blackmore of Mill Valley announce the engagement of their daughter, Joy Diane Blackmore, to Kelly Ray Sparrow of Ogden, Utah.

They will be married on Sept. 4 in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School and the Marinello School of Beauty, Joy attended Ricks College in Idaho, where she announced her engagement to her sorority, Lambda Delta Sigma, in a traditional candle passing ceremony.

Kelly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sparrow and the brother of Karla, Terry and Steven Sparrow of Ogden.

A graduate of Ben Lomond High School in Ogden, Kelly is in his junior year at Weber State College in Ogden. He is a member of the Army reserves.

He served two and a half years as a Mormon missionary in Peru and Equador.

JOY BLACKMORE

Miss Younger Is Engaged

The engangement of Helen (Lorrie) Younger of Ione, who formerly lived in Novato while attending the College of Marin, to Herman Gunther III has been announced.

Lorrie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Younger of Ione. She is a graduate of Ione High School and attended San Joaquin Delta College in Stockton as well as College of Marin. While in Marin she made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Donald M. Parker of Novato. She is employed with Pacific Telephone Co. in Sacramento.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gunther II of Los Angeles. A graduate of Birmingham High School in Van Nuys, he attended Pierce Junior College in Woodland Hills and is a student at California Polytechnic College. He served with the Army for three years.

A late August wedding is planned.

ART REVIEW

Maturity In Students' Exhibition

By LAURA DEVENDORF

In many areas, the College of Marin student art exhibition, through June 20 in the college gallery, is a lot more exciting than most so-called professional artists' exhibits that vie for space in banks, restaurants and galleries throughout Marin.

True, the word student is deceptive. It does include adults. Many of these are successful working artists and familiar names crop up as in graphics, where the really good looking prints usually turn out to be Nelcy Tarics'.

But adults are by no means responsible for all the better parts of this show. In graphics again, there are skilled and inventive drawings by many students that more nearly fit the college age idea. And at any level, the sculpture would be impressive.

UNLIKE CLASS WORK

Much of the maturity this show has is attributalbe to the large sculpture entry which simply does not come on like class work. There are a few junior editions of the instructor's work and in spite of the fact that they are all class projects, these carefully crafted pieces are imaginative individual statements.

In wood, Raymond Schrutz does great things with casual chunks of it, especially where he joins them simply with a massive steel bolt. John Nordstrang's "Head Flowers," meanwhile, is a more involved structure of carved and painted wood.

Jan Portugal moves easily from the thoughtful to the sublime with a tripel-sided ceramic head reflecting a family to a gigantic workable replica of a light bulb. Other ceramics worth note are Glen Kersey's mine-like horns, bursting through overlapping sheets and John Ossa's red, bug-like "Lunar Gunship."

Mary Bowles' two bronze pieces show the metal first in a serene, smooth state and then as a rough, knobbed orb mixed with tacks and pins. And in mixed media inventions that lime with a triple-sized veramic tests extensive knowledge of Rogers is of particular interest.

OTHER WORKS

Pots, plates and other ceramics share an unobtrusive quality with a group of subdued photo- with a groug of subdued photographs. And in addition there is a little jewelry, weaving and stitchery plus some interesting stitchey plus some interesting design projects such as Jimm Dait's cool and cleanly crafted chess set.

If painting seems overlooked, what little there is, at least, is stronger and more confident than last year. If it was a matter of weeding out the usual mass of potboilers, then this show is even more recommendable for what we have been spared as well as given to enjoy.

Restaurant Still Shut After Fire

Fire which damaged Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley Sunday apparently caused more kitchen damage than originally thought, firemen said yesterday. The restaurant will be closed until the middle of next week.

After the fire, an employee said the restaurant might be open for the Mother's Day weekend, but that apparently was not possible. A telephone call to the restaurant now produces a recorded announcement saying the restaurant will be closed for a week.

The fir originated in or near a deep fat fryer and damaged the stoves and ranges, which are being replaced. Firemen said no damage estimate will be available until the new equipment is installed.

Dope Possession Charge Lodged

A 22-year-old Petaluma man is to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment on two counts of possessing marijuana and LSD for sale.

Frank Joseph Bonomolo, of 921 First Street, Petaluma, was arrested Thursday night by Novato police who said he had two bags of marijuana and a container of LSD pills in his automobile. Police said the arrest was the result of a tip.

Bonomolo is free on $625 bail.

Work Furlough Case To Superior Court

Morlin Smith, 21, of Marin City, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of failing to return to the county jail from a work furlough last June 28.

He was serving a one-year sentence for burglary when he disappeared. He is to be arraigned in Superior Court May 19.

Sentencing Due In Auto Theft

A second charge of possessing a hypodermic needle at the time of his arrest was dismissed by Judge Harold J. Haley. Sentencing was set for June 2.

Acosta was arrested by a California Highway Patrol officer who spotted him in the stolen car on Highway 101 near Marin City. Acosta abandoned the car after a chase but was arrested on foot in Sausalito.

Teener Admits Tangle With Patrolman

Terrence Scott Borrman, 19, of Mill Valley, admitted yesterday in Marin Superior Court that he ran a highway patrolman off Lucas Valley Road March 27 while driving a stolen car.

At a pretrial conference before Judge Harold J. Haley, Borrman pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon on an officer and car theft. He had been scheduled to go to trial next week.

Borrman, who has a previous burglary conviction, had attempted to outrun Officer Harold Drady, who was chasing him on a motorcycle because of a traffic violation.

As Drady pulled alongside Borrman, the youth swerved and hit the motorcycle, sending it into a ditch. The officer was not seriously hurt.

Borrman and a companion were arrested later in the day after they abandoned the car and hiked across the hills to Nicasio. No charges were pressed against the companion.

Judge Haley set sentencing for June 9.

West Berlin Grim On The Eve Of Blockade Break Anniversary

BERLIN (UPI)—The 20th anniversary this week of the lifting of the Berlin blockade might be expected to find this Western outpost in happy, confident mood. But it is not.

In the past 20 years West Berlin has survived attempt after attempt by the Russians to undermine Western rights here and pave the way for a Communist takeover.

The Russians have not succeeded and West Berlin has not only survived, it has prospered. A modern city, the greatest industrial city in Germany, has risen on the ruins that still were everywhere when the 11-month Soviet blockade of West Berlin ended shortly after midnight on May 12, 1949.

MANY EXPORTS

Today, West Berlin sends airport radar systems to India, complete factories for making synthetic fibers to the Soviet Union and Italy, a carbon dioxide plant to Beirut. And every fourth dress bought in West Germany is made here.

Yet despite the prosperity that far overshadows advances made in East Berlin, the city is not at ease. It has nagging doubts about the future and is vaguely discontented with its present.

Internal discord, much of it caused by leftist students, is one factor that worries Berliners, and some in fact feel that domestic dissension could pose more of a threat to the city's future in the long run than Communist harrassment.

A sign of the times is the fact that the fear of student demonstrations blocked plans to bring Gen. Lucius D. Clay here for a ceremony on the 20th anniversary of the end of the blockade.

CREDIT TO CLAY

If one man can be credited with saving West Berlin it is Clay, who was the post-war American military governor for Germany.

When the Russians shortly before midnight on June 18, 1948, announced that the borders of the Soviet zone of occupation would be closed to all inter-zonal traffic effective at 0100 hours June 19, Clay spoke for the Western world.

"We will not be bluffed," he said. "We will not be intimidated. We have a right to stay in Berlin and we are going to stay."

In their effort to starve the Western allies out and bring West Berlin to its knees the Russians halted all rail, road and canal traffic running through East Germany to and from West Berlin.

As an answer Clay organized the Anglo-American airlift that was given the job of bringing in all the supplies necessary to feed and keep operating a city of more than 2 million. It was a job that many thought impossible, a view shared by the Russians.

DID THE JOB

But the airlift did the job. In flights made around the clock American and British pilots brought into the city in 276,926 flights a total of 2,323,067 tons of supplies—about a ton for every West Berliner.

Clay again came to the city's aid when the wall was built on the East-West Berlin border, Aug. 13, 1961. That time, when the city so badly needed a moral boost, Clay came back as the Berlin advisor of President John F. Kennedy. His presence reassured the city of American determination to stand by it.

Today, West Berlin is accused of having become provincial since it no longer is Germany's capital. In fact most other German cities are hicktowns compared to West Berlin. Yet it also is a city that is asking questions about its future and seeking a new role to play.

GERMAN 'CAPITAL'

West German political leaders in their speeches still often refer to Berlin as the "capital of Germany." By this they mean that it used to be the capital of a unified Germany and it again will be the capital one day.

But with each passing year the prospect of reunifying the Western "Federal Republic of Germany" and the Eastern "German Democratic Republic" becomes dimmer, and West Berlin knows it.

The city's population has been dropping since the wall went up and cut off the refugee flow from the East. In January 1969, West Berlin had 2,141,441 people, a drop of 20,000 since Januard 1968. It has lost 60,000 people since 1965.

It is estimated by 1980 the population might fall below 2 million.

Deaths exceed births and 21 per cent of the people in West Berlin are more than 65 years old, compared to 12 per cent in West Germany. Almost half West Berlin's population is older than 45.

POPULATION DRIVE

The city is carrying on a well oraganized campaign to get West Germans to come here. In 1968, 18,662 persons moved to West Berlin. But 22,244 moved out.

Its location inside East Germany is not a help in recruiting new citizens. A public opinion survey disclosed that half the young people in West Germany consider West Berlin a more dangerous place to live than West Germany.

There is a movement here, very small but growing, that advocates that West Berlin play down its ties to the West and reach some sort of accommodation with East Germany based on the recognition of East Germany.

But West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz asserts that this is a dangerous dream. He says the only basis upon which the city can survive is by cultivating its legal, financial and economic ties to West Germany under the umbrella of Western allied security guarantees.

"Events in Czechoslovakia show what happens to those who fall in the eastern sphere," he said.

One-Way Tolls Saving Money, Directors Told

One-way toll collection on the Golden Gate Bridge will save $173,088 a year because fewer collectors are needed, Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported yesterday.

The toll collection force now has 48 officers, he said, compared with 64 authorized under the old, two-way collection system. The force was not up to full strength when the one-way system began last October, and the reductions have come about by normal attrition and by shifting some men to other work.

The directors of the bridge and highway district voted in March to make the one-way system permanent. However, it will be reversed to collect from northbound traffic after completion of a project to expand the toll plaza.

Luehring also reported to directors, who met yesterday, that maintenance work on the east sidewalk of the bridge had been completed. It was reopened last week to pedestrian traffic during weekdays, he reported.

Breakfasts Offered For Mother's Day

A Mother's Day breakfast will be serived tomorrow by the Marin County Foster Parents Association at Blessed Sacrament Church, 160 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

Gari H. Ketcham, president of the foster parents group, announced that complete breakfasts will be served for both adults and children, from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

MARIN NAMES

David Curtis Earns Eagle Scout Honors

David Curtis of 335 Golden Gate Avenue, Belvedere, a member of Boy Scout Troop 9, recently was given the Eagle Scout Award, one of scouting's highest honors.

Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Curtis, was presented the award in ceremonies at St. Stephen's Church. He is a freshman at Redwood High School.

DEGREE — Robert G. Little, son of Mrs. Lucretia Little of Mill Valley and a candidate for a doctorate degree in chemistry at New York State University at Buffalo, has been awarded a research grant by the National Science Foundation for research this summer at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Long Island, N.Y.

PACIFIC DUTY — Fireman Apprentice James I. Sloan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byrl Sloan of 623 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, is serving in the Western Pacific aboard the Vega, a refrigerated stores ship.

JET TRAINING — Ensign Michael C. Crabtree, son of Mrs. Mary C. Crabtree of 86 Brookmead Court, San Anselmo, recently completed basic jet flight training at the Naval Air Station, Meridian, Miss.

GRADUATE — Claire H. Hansen of San Anselmo received a bachelor's degree in education at the end of the winter quarter at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Wash.

EUROPEAN TRAINING — Stephen J. Coates, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Coates, 380 Riviera Drive, San Rafael, a senior at San Jose State College, will be in Copenhagen, Denmark, for eight weeks this summer as a trainee with the International Association of Students in Economics and Commerce.

DEPARTING — David Stevens of Vallejo, who has directed the Marin group of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, is leaving the Bay Area to assist in the arrangement of music at the national headquarters of SPEBSQSA in Kenosha, Wis.

SERVICE SPEAKER — Muriel Alstrom of 383 Cascade Drive, Fairfax, will be guest speaker at the Divine Science Hawaii service Sunday at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel, Waikiki, Honolulu. Mrs. Alstrom is director of Creative Thinking, San Francisco.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER — Radarman 3/c Michael E. Walraven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Walraven of 316 G Street, San Rafael, is serving aboard the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise in the South China Sea.

IN VIETNAM — Marine Lance Cpl. Peter M. M. Kukla, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf S. Kukla of 77 Glenwood Drive, San Rafael, is serving with the First Marine Aircraft Wing in Vietnam.

AIR FORCE TRAINING — Airman James W. Myers, son of Col. and Mrs. Jefferson H. Myers of 350 Irwin Street, San Rafael, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex., for training in accounting and finance after completing basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

IN THAILAND — Second Lt. Walter L. Mann, son of Ma. and Mrs. Raymond Mann, 59 Balboa Avenue, San Rafael, is on duty at Udorn Royal Thai Air Force Base, Thailand.

WRITING AWARD — Tim Dolan, a journalism senior at California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo, won first place recently in statewide college publications competition for his editorial calling for stricter control of the Cal Poly student court. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Dolan Jr. of 16 Elena Circle, San Rafael.

VIETNAM DUTY — Pfc. Jack L. Nicholson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Nicholson, 16 Janet Way, Tiburon, has been assigned to the 17th Cavalry in Vietnam as a communications specialist.

HONOR SOCIETY — Gloria J. Burns of 121 Birch Way, Santa Venetia, has qualified for membership in the freshman women's honor society at Oregon State University.

TOP AIRMAN — T/Sgt. James E. Whitson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whitson of 2031 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, has been named man of the month at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., for his work as a Minuteman missile facility manager.

MECHANIC SCHOOL — Airman Michael E. Tonini, son of Mrs. Janice Cauch of 1958 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, recently was graduated from a course for aircraft mechanics at Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex., and scheduled for duty in Okinawa.

SEABEE DUTY — Construction Electrician 3/c David A. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Smith of 542 Rowland Boulevard, Novato, is serving with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 7 at Davisville, R.I.

IN KANSAS — Sgt. Charles M. Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Maxwell of 127 Wilson Way, Larkspur, a radio repairman, has been assigned to duty at McConnell Air Force Base, Japan.

FINISHES BASIC — Airman Stuart D. Saunders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Saunders of 235 Via La Cumbre, Greenbrae, has completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., and has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., for training in aircraft maintenance.

Two Terra Linda Youths Accused Of Dope Sales

Two alleged teen-age drug pushers who attend Terra Linda High School have been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall and charged with peddling narcotics to other youngsters, juvenile officers said yesterday.

Kevin Walsh, 16, of 632 Bamboo Terrace, Terra Linda, is accused of selling 22 lids of marijuana for about $200 to another Terra Linda student. He would not say where he obtained the weed, according to Inspector Charles Prandi of the sheriff's juvenile bureau.

This was Walsh's first arrest, Prandi added.

Scott Susman, 15, of 668 Knocknaboul Way, Terra Linda, already on probation for selling wine-soaked marijuana cigarettes earlier this year, was accused of having 15 capsules which Prandi thought might be LSD but which the youth said were THC. Prandi said he was selling the capsules.

Prandi said that a search of Susman's room produced a shotgun, pellet rifle, pellet pistol, syringe and a small quantity of suspected methedrine — all confiscated. A pellet gun was also found in Walsh's room.

Guilty Plea Entered On Check Forgery

Alvester Jackson, 23, of Corte Madera, yesterday pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to one charge of forging a check April 11 in San Anselmo. A second similar count was dismissed.

Judge Harold J. Haley set sentencing for June 2.

Blackout's Cause

A coiled clothesline — which cut off power to 25 San Anselmo homes Tuesday when it landed on a power line — was thrown by Mario E. Watkins of 448 Scenic Avenue, not Watkins' son, as the Independent-Journal said Thursday. Watkins reported the correction.

STORM OVER SAINTS

Travelers Stoutly Back Christopher

COMBINED AP & UPI

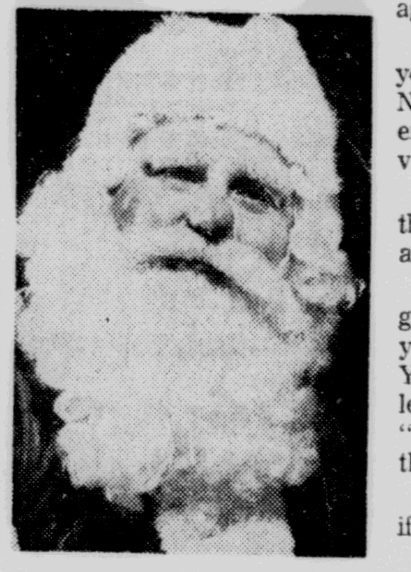
VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican sounded alarmed today at confusion and protests exploding in the wake of the newly issued Church calendar dropped and downgrading dozens of saints.

A terse editorial in the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano sought to reassure Roman Catholics that no saints have actually been abolished and that saints removed from the calendar may still be venerated on local levels.

The explosion of reaction that followed the appearance of the new Calendarium Romanum—Roman Calendar — yesterday under Pope Paul VI's decree had been expected. But even Vatican authorities who had predicted that it would cause discomfort and trouble apparently were not prepared for such a swift outburst.

In Rome, the calendar, published in Latin, became a runaway best seller at the lire equovalen of $4.80 a copy.

ST. CHRISTOPHER
Travelers bereft?



ST. NICHOLAS
Virginia mourns

Motorists still can hang St. Christopher medals from dashboards, artillerymen still can pray to St. Barbara and the British still can venerate dragon killer St. George despite the Vatican's demotion of dozens of saints Roman Catholics have honored for centuries.

Among the heirarchy of sainthood demoted yesterday were St. Nicholas, St. Valentine, St. Barbara, St. George and perhaps the most popular saint in Christendom, St. Christopher.

The Vatican cannot be sure any of them ever lived.

The names will disappear from the church calendar of approved and recognized saints whom Catholics must honor on special days. But all will remain saints and Catholics may name them in prayers.

The reform was approved by Pope Paul VI last Feb. 14 but it was not announced until yesterday by the Rev. Pierre Journel.

The idea is to downgrade the role of saints, particularly ones the Vatican is not sure ever existed and emphasize the importance of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

St. Christopher is considered by millions the patron of travelers. Medals hearing his picture are a big business in Rome.

"I don't care what the Pope says," said a clerk in Billi's souvenir shop a block from St. Peter's Basilica. "We will always sell a lot of St. Christopher medals."

The English countryside is dotted with hundreds of statues to St. George, a patron saint in Britain long before the Reformation split the country.

Santa Claus' demotion by the Vatican left Mrs. Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas in the same spirit as the "Yes Virginia" letter written to her 72 years ago.

"Oh," Mrs. Douglas said yesterday when she was told St. Nicholas would no longer be entitled to special prayers and veneration by Roman Catholics.

She quickly added, however, that "what is Christmas is always there."

Mrs. Douglas, now 78 and a great-grandmother, was 8-years-old and living in New York City when she wrote a letter to a newspaper asking, "please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

The issue attacked even a California city, Santa Barbara.

Anyone for a name change? Such as Oilville, in honor of a leaky off-shore well?

Not so far as Mayor Gerald Firestone is concerned.

"I don't think," he said, "that the Pope's decision will have any effect whatsoever as far as the name of our city is concerned."

Marines Refuse To Prosecute In Arrest Case

CAMP PENDLETON (UPI)—A Marine sergeant accused of using undue force to remove an alleged AWOL Marine from a church "sanctuary" will not be court-martialed, the Corps announced yesterday.

A Marine spokesman said the recruit, Lance Cpl. Austin Craig Murphy, 18, refused to testify against Sgt. Winster Minton, who was to have gone on trial Tuesday.

The Corps said Murphy's attorney advised him not to testify under the self-incrimination clause of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

Minton and Lance Cpl. Ronald E. Rawls arrested Murphy, of Miami, at a Whittier Unitarian church while returning from leave in Los Angeles March 20. No charges were filed against Rawls.

Since then, the church has granted "symbolic sanctuary" to three other servicemen, two of whom are still living in the church's education building.

Scientists Study Mystery Water

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — After all the centuries of research, scientists are suddenly hung-up on one of the world's most common substances: Water.

The trouble is that there seems to be a new kind of water, four times as heavy as it should be, and exhibiting some of the characteristics of liquid plastic instead of plain old H2O.

No one is yet talking much in public about the stuff — called anomalous water — because its existence is completely counter to the usual thinking about water, and no one wants to make a fool of himself. But workers in at least three nations are quietly excited by it. They might have the problem solved by now except that only miniscule amounts of the stuff can be made at a time.

The anomalous water, which in some measurements appears to show a high viscosity and a molecular weight about four times that of ordinary water, was first noticed by Dr. Boris V. Derjaguin, who is director of the department of surface phenomena in the Institute of Physical Chemistry of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

He was studying forces extending from solid surfaces in liquids condensed in tubes when he came across a water condensate that showed abnormal properties. His report was greeted with a good deal of skepticism but with some effort he was at last able to persuade groups at two British laboratories to check his work.

There was and still is a large group of skeptics, but the U.S. Navy is interested in finding out what's there. "I'm uncertain at the moment where I stand," says Harry Fox of the Office of Naval Research, but he adds that a meeting on the finding is planned for Washington, D.C., at the end of February: a small working group, "a dozen and a half observers, mainly Navy."

"We've got to find out whether there is something there," says the Navy's Dr. Ralph A. Burton. "If not we'll clear the air." But he goes on to say that nobody can think of any explanation except that there is something new. People have racked their brains for explanations in terms of known materials. Peroxide mixed with water would have the viscosity but not the molecular weight, for example. "Until someone is able to give a mechanism for this it's an annoying mystery," he says.

It's annoying to theorists, whose current theories of liquids don't predict this sort of behavior. The implications go far beyond water. Some observers feel that if water shows this anomalous state, so might other substances and a new field of research into materials with unusual properties may open up.

Early measurements seemed to show that the anomalous water had a molecular weight of 72. This is four times that of an ordinary water molecule and leads some people to suggest that the anomalous water may be some kind of polymer, like a plastic, built of four ordinary water molecules.

Anomalous water is not technologically very difficult to make. The apparatus is so simple that one English boy is preparing to duplicate the experiments as a science fair project.

The explanation, as Dr. Derjaguin sees it, is that the water condenses on the glass walls of a tube in a manner similar to certain kinds of crystals. This mode of growth forms "a network of hydrogen bonds of unusual structure" in the liquid.

Though the glass tube seems to be necessary in forming anomalous water, once the substance is formed it can be taken away from the tube and will still retain its structure. It appears to be quite stable against heating, cooling and aging. There are reports that samples have been carried from Russia to Britain and still retained their anomalous properties at the end of the trip.

Very little has yet been published on the subject. Possibly the only public paper is Dr. Derjaguin's "Effect of Lyophile Surfaces on the Properties of Boundary Liquid Films," published in 1966 on page 110 of volume 42 of Discussions of the Faraday Society. There are some U.S. Navy preliminary reports, but they are for "internal consideration only."

Barnard Has Experiments For Space

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the world's heart transplant pioneer, has proposed a series of space experiments to study cell growth and development for possible application to organ transplants.

Barnard said the tests would study the effect of weightlessness on cell development. They also may give some indication, he said, on how a lack of gravity would affect the body's rejection process — one of the main hazards of organ transplant operations.

Birkhead, a consulting scientist

Barnard and Dr. N. C. with General Electric Co.'s Reentry Systems Organization here, have outlined to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration a series of six experiments. They would be flown in something like Ge's biosattelite, an earth-orbiting satellite that studies weightlessness on various organisms.

Bernard recently testified before the House subcommittee on Space Science and Applications. He outlined his views on how the space program can be used for basic biological research. GE released their proposals Saturday.

Drs. Barnard and Birkhard said "gravity has been shown to play a part in maintaining the genetic character of living cells.

"If cells in weightlessness lose some of their discrimination in regard to their own character, it is possible they will discriminate less sharply against cells from another organism. If so we can then find ways to disturb the integrating influence of gravity on earth."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Measles Vaccine Being Rushed To Protect Unborn Children

VAN DELLEN

German measles (rubella) is not a serious disease except when it develops in women in the first three months of pregnancy. It is a major threat because many of these babies are born with defects involving the eye, ear, and heart.

In 1964 more than 20,000 infants came into the world with defects traceable to a mother who had measles while pregnant.

STUDIES SHOWED that rubella was responsible, because babies retain the causative virus for as long as a year after birth. In some instances, susceptible nurses and doctors contracted the disease while caring for the child.

German measles tends to occur in epidemic proportions every five to seven years. The last outbreak in the United States took place in the 1963-64 season; the next is expected in the spring of 1970. The date is significant because several protective vaccines now being used experimentally are awaiting government approval.

Because time is of the essence, how can the vaccine be used most effectively? Some authorities believe mass immunization of all pre-schoolers and those in the elementary grades is the answer. This will reduce the chance of children getting and transmitting the German measles virus to their mothers. By protecting children, the chance of susceptible adults getting the disease is remote.

AN ALTERNATIVE is immunizing adolescent girls and women of childbearing potential who have never had rubella. In this way, the group with which we are concerned would be protected. After the vaccine is licensed, we hope that enough will be manufactured so that all women and children can be immunized.

The new vaccine is made from live, but weakened, viruses. The government is cautious, because health officials do not want the virus from vaccines to spread to vulnerable unvaccinated persons. Tests on thousands of children have shown that the product is highly effective and well tolerated. There is no instance in which the vaccinated person has passed along the virus even though he developed a very mild form of the disease.

GALL BLADDER BOUT

R. C. writes: Does a gall bladder attack call for immediate surgery?

REPLY

No, but much depends on what you mean by a gall bladder attack. Surgery seldom is recommended when a stone is being passed. However, if the attack is being caused by acute inflammation of the organ, some physicians recommend immediate surgery. The problem is handled in much the same way as appendicitis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on gall bladder disease.

DRINKING AND DRIVING

S. B. writes: My husband maintains that, in a comparatively short period of time — two to three hours — it is perfectly safe to drink approximately eight ounces of bourbon, eat a good meal, and then take to the highway. True or false?

REPLY

False, even though individual tolerances vary.

CIRRHOSIS FAVORS MEN

Mr. K. writes: Do women get cirrhosis of the liver?

REPLY

Yes, but two out of every three sufferers are men.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

This Routine Bridge Crime Discouraging To A Detective

"Very discouraging, Watson," Sherlock Holmes grumbled as he stalked out of the Baker Street Bridge Club. "Crime is becoming more and more a matter of routine." Dr. Watson followed the great detective in a puzzled mood; he hadn't seen any sign of a crime.

WATCHING PLAY

The two had been watching the play of the hand shown today. West opened the king of spades, and East ruffed dummy's ace. East returned the queen of diamonds, and South eventually lost two clubs and a spade. Down one.

Since you're much cleverer than Dr. Watson you have surely noticed the bridge crime that annoyed Sherlock Holmes. See if you can spot the crime and the criminal before you read on.

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN

South was the criminal since he should have made his contract by proper play. He should have known that West had a six-card spade suit for his jump to two spades. This meant that East had no spades at all and that East would ruff the ace of spades if given a chance to do so.

The way to make the hand is to give East no chance to ruff dummy's ace of spades. South must play a low spade from dummy at the first trick, allowing West to win with the king of spades. West continues with the queen of spades, and South must again play low from the dummy.

BEST DEFENSE

When West then continues with the jack of spades (the best defense), South plays a third low spade from the dummy and ruffs in his own hand. Now declarer can draw all of the missing trumps, enter dummy with the ace of clubs and discard a club on the ace of spades. South eventually gives up one club, but his contract is safe since he takes six trumps, the three side aces, and the king of clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♦ A 7 4
♣ A 8 6

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and one point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than to pass because a borderline hand with three aces should be opened and also because a borderline hand with a five-card spade suit should be bid. Two reasons to bid are easily enough.

On this day in history:

In 1865 Confederate President Jefferson Davis was captured as he fled Irwinville, Ga. Davis was sentenced to two years in prison.

In 1940 German army divisions invaded Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Last year the United States and North Vietnam met for their first formal conference in Paris.

A thought for the day: British Chaplain Jeremy Taylor said, "No man ever repented that he rose from the table sober, healthful and with his wits about him."

Health Jobs Soar Compared To Others

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)— A study by the University of Michigan school of public health showed the labor force growth in health occupations is much higher than any other occupation.

The study revealed that the projected growth of the labor force in health occupations from 1960-70 is 83.5 per cent of the total labor force growth in the United States.

Mennonites Practice Simplicity Of Life

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Can you name a Protestant denomination which is more than four centuries old; which established its first American congregations in Pennsylvania; and which places great emphasis on pacifism and simplicity of life?

If you said, "the Quakers," you're wrong. They're only 300 years old. The correct answer is: the Mennonites.

The Mennonite movement has never been large in numbers. Today it has about 250,000 adherents in the United States, and perhpas as many more scattered around the rest of the world.

But historically it ranks alongside the Lutherans, Calvinists and Anglicans as one of the original Reformation churches.

The first Mennonite congregation was organized in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1525—just eight years after Martin Luther performed history's most important act of tackhammer carpentry on that church door in Wittenberg.

The first Mennonites were inspired by the preaching of the Swiss reformer Ulrich Zwingli. But they disagreed with Zwingli (and with Calvin and Luther) about church-state relations, which they felt should be as near nil as possible.

They also denied the validity of infant baptism, and insisted that only an adult believer could be baptized. Because they rebaptized adults who had been baptized as infants, they became known as Anabaptists.

They also went far beyond Luther and Calvin in repudiating other doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church, such as the sacramental view of Holy Communion. Their uncompromising insistence on reuturning to the "simple Christianity" of the primitive church placed them at the far left wing of the Reformation, and made them as unpopular in Protestant countries as in Roman Catholic countries.

No religious body has ever been subjected to a more relentless and bloody persecution than was inflicted upon the Anabaptists. They were hounded with equal zeal by Roman Catholics, by Lutherans and by Calvinists. They were hanged, burned at the stake, and drowned—a form of death which Swiss Calvinists considered particularly appropriate for persons with "heretical" views about baptism. Within the space of 10 years, more than five thousand Anabpatist were martryed in Europe.

Some of the survivors fled to North Germany under the leadership of a former Roman Catholic priest named Menno Simons (from whom came the name "Mennonites.") They later moved from Germany into Central Eruope, where they settled on wastelands which no one else wanted and brought them into fruitful cultivation through their great skill as farmers.

Eventually, their prosperity attracted envious eyes and the governments which had welcomed them to wastelands began to look covetously upon their flourishing farms. So the Mennonites had to hunt another home.

In 1683, the great Quaker founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, offered them a haven there. The first immigrants were a group of 13 Mennonite families who settled in Germantown, Pa., not far from Philadelphia. Other Mennonite immigrants followed during the next few years, and by the time of the American Revolution there were Mennonite communities spread across the frontier in Ohio, Virginia, Indiana, Illinois and even farther west. These states, with Kansas and the Dakotas, remain the principal centers of Mennonite strength today.

Although all Mennonites share the same basic heritage, they differ on details. There are about 20 distinct groupings within the Mennonite family.

The largest body — about 80,000—belongs to a denomination known as the Mennonite Church. Second in size is the Central conference Mennonite Church with some 50,000 members. Both of these denominations are relatively "liberal" by Mennonite standards, particlarly with regard to dress and appearance. The men are clean-shaven and wear ordinary business suits. The women dress modestly, without make-up or jewelry, but are rarely seen in "quaint" costumes.

The most colorful and widely publicized branches of the movement is the old order Amish colony of Pennsylvania, whose 20,000 members (to the delight of the chambers of commerce promoting tourism in the "Pennsylvania Dutch Country") wear a highly distinctive black garb, use hooks-and-eyes instead of buttons on their clothing, and insist on riding in horse-drawn buggies instead of automobiles.

Another relatively small branch which attracts a lot of public attention because of its unusual customs is the Hutterian Brethren, a colony of about 5,000 living in isolated agricultural communities in South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana. They are similar to the old order Amish in many of their folkways, with one notable addition: they practice communal ownership of property.

Mennonite worship, even in the more "liberal" branches, is simple and austere. It is built around exposition of biblical texts, which are interpreted literally as the "inspired, inerrant, authoritative word of God."

Church membership is never regarded as a mere social convention; it is a serious pledge of commitment to Christian discipleship, and anyone who willfully disobey's Christ's teachings, as the Mennonites undertsand them, is liable to "banning" or expulsion from the fellowship.

Mennonites contend that Christ meant exactly what he said when he told his disciples to love their enemies, to turn the other cheek when struck, and to offer no resistance to those who would do them evil.

They believe that any use of force—particularly the waging of war—is totally incompatible they are uncompromising pacifists, refusing not only to hold arms but also to hold office as magistrates or policemen.

Mennonite youths discharge their service obligations in noncombatant jobs which do not violate their conscience, including very hazardous service as medical aides in combat areas.

Mennonites disapprove of drinking, smoking, dancing, card-playing and movies. But these prohibitions are regarded as incidental aspects of a holy life. Theirs is not essentially a "shalt not" religion. Their main emphasis always is on one mighty shalt—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart . . . and thy neighbor as thyself."

In obedience to this commandment, Mennonites operate in Vietnam and other areas of human suffering a vast relief program which requires extremely sacrificial giving for so small a body to support.

Mother's Day Debut For Men's Chorus

A 25-voice Men's chorus, composed mostly of fledgling choir singers, will debut at the Church of All Faiths, (American Baptist Convention), Corte Madera, tomorrow during the morning worship service.

The chorus, under the direction of Norman Clayton, minister of music, will perform the religious standards, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," and "How Great Thou Art."

Only three of the members have previous chorus experience.

Clayton also is scheduled to sing Malott's "For My Mother."

The chorus has practiced regularly for the Mother's Day service on Sunday mornings for several weeks. Rev. Joseph L. Hughes, pastor, reported one nearby resident, upon awakening to the chorus' strains, exclaimed she though she had died and gone to her reward.

Hughes will preach on "The Heart of the Home."

State Gives Cloister Back To Church

SOFIA (UPI)—With the naming of the Vicar of Sofia, Archimandirt Joan, as abbot, the world famous Bulgarian Rila cloister is back in the hands of the Orthodox Church.

Thousands of worshippers are again gathering at the national shrine which was seized by the government shortly after the Communist takeover in World War II, church authorities said.

The 1000-year-old cloister was built at the time of, or shortly after, the death of Saint Ivan Rilski and was a symbol for Bulgarian nationalism through numerous invasions and some five centuries of Ottoman rule.

One of the largest cloisters in the Balkans, Rila is a huge square building which can house more than 2,000 people. An ancient church stands in the monastery yard next to a stone battle tower built in the 14th Century by the then district chief Khrelyu.

After World War II the shrine was turned into a national museum in which visitors could admire the cloister's many art treasures.

The government first spoke of turning the cloister back to the church during the visit to Bulgaria of the Orthodox leader Patriarch Athenagoras I in the fall of 1967.

The newly named abbot, Archimandrit Joan, was a monk in Rila for some years before it was seized by the government. He served in recent years as assistant to Patriarch Kyrill of Sofia and was observer for the Bulgarian Orthodox Church at the Second Vatican Council.

During the time the cloister was in government hands, it was completely restored, and running water and central heating were installed. At the same time, shops, a new hotel and first class roads were added, making life easier for the cloister monks and tourists alike.

VOICES RAISED IN SONG — A 25-voice men's chorus will sing out tomorrow at the morning service at Church of All Faiths, Corte Madera. The group, shown at a practice, is making its debut.

New Vicar For Church In Inverness

Rev. David Schofield, a graduate of the General Theological Seminary in New York has been called as a vicar of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness.

Schofield, who will replace Rev. Francis Read, who is retiring, however, will not assume his duties until the fall. Read will deliver his final sermon on Trinity Sunday, June 1.

Upon retirement Read will become associated with the American Church Union in Pelham Manor, N.Y.

Schofield, who was ordained into the priesthood in 1963 at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin in San Francisco, is currently associated with the Holy Redeemer Clergy House in London.

Until Schofield's arrival on Oct. 1, St. Columba's will be supplied with visiting priests from the diocese.

Two Marinite Delegates To Presbyterian Assembly

Dr. Neill Hamilton, professor of New Testament at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, and Charles A. Black of Tiburon will be among Synod of the Golden Gate delegates to the United Presbyterian Church, USA, annual General Assembly, opening Wednesday in San Antonio, Tex.

During the week-long meeting delegates will be asked to act on the following subject: tax exempt status of churches; ghetto investment policies; conscientious objection to war; world hunger; the "brown power" movement; ecumenical involvements and church reorganization

One of the first orders of business will be election of a moderator (the presiding officer of the General Assembly and titular head of the donomination) to succeed Rev. John Coventry Smith.

The four candidates are Rev. George M. Docherty, Presbytery of Washington City (D.C.); John Park Lee, layman, Presbytery of the Palisades, New Jersey; Rev. David A. MacLennan, Presbytery of South Florida, and Rev. George M. Sweazey of the Presbytery of St. Louis.

Church Plans Aid In Poverty Areas

NEW YORK (UPI) — The overseas missionary board of the United Church of Christ, which owns securities valued at $30 million, has decided to invest part of its capital in projects for social and economic improvement of developing nations, including food production and distribution and housing construction.

Dr. Everett A. Babcock, treasurer, said the United Church Board of World Ministries "feels obligated to make responsible use of some of its investment capital to bring about basic improvements in the economy of underdeveloped countries.

Annual Banquet Is Set Tonight

The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet at the First Baptist Church, Mill Valley, is being presented today at 6:30 p.m. in the church's Fellowship Hall.

Featured speaker will be Mrs. Larry Orman, who will recount her family's adventures during a vacation missionary encounter with Oklahoma Indians.

Reservations for the event, sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society, may be made by telephoning the church.

To Lead Church

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nominating committee of the United Church of Christ has unanimously nominated Dr. Robert V. Moss, Jr., president of Lancaster Pa. Theological Seminary, as president of the church.

Defiance Of Bible Ban Rule Sweeping Through Pennsylvania

CLAIRTON, Pa. (AP) — Open defiance of the Supreme Court rule banning Bible and prayer reading in the nation's schools is sweeping through Pennsylvania.

A grass-roots movement has so far brought a revival of Bible reading in four school districts comprising almost 18,000 children.

In several other communities requests to reinstate Bible reading are before school boards. And a bill that would allow Bible reading five minutes before the start of school has been introduced in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. It was sponsored by 53 House members.

"People are saying the day the Supreme Court banned God was the day that led to moral degeneracy in the country," says Dr. Robert LaFrankie, superintendent of schools in Clairton, a smoky, Monongahela River steel town near Pittsburgh.

He says he has received more than 1,000 letters from across the country commending the Clairton school board's unanimous decision to reinstate Bible reading earlier this year.

"The people here have taken so much from government over the past eight to 10 years in the form of mandates that they feel the individual is suffering at the expense of the majority," says LaFrankie, a 40-year-old former Englewood, N.J., school principal. "They're saying, 'Who's the state? The people are the state. Who's the Supreme Court to serve? It's to serve the people.'"

Morning prayer and Bible reading are also back in the Phillipsburg-Osceola School District in central Pennsylvania and the Albert-Gallatin and Brownsville school districts in Fayette County, which touches the West Virginia border.

While all four school boards voted to bring back the Bible against the advice of board attorneys, there has been little commotion. The American Civil Liberties Union in Pittsburgh says it has been trying for two months to find someone willing to file suit against the Clairton board. They say they can't, despite a 1964 case against a Lebanon, Pa., school board where a federal court upheld the Supreme Court Bible ruling.

Some of the school board resolutions made Bible and prayer reading mandatory. However, the school superintendents have interpreted the decisions as allowing teachers and students to be excused if they wish. Few have.

"I think if there were anybody against it, they would have come forth," LaFrankie says, "I'm sure I would have heard from religious leaders by now."

A minifundamentalism has apparently sprouted in Clairton since the resurgence of classroom Bible reading. "Welcome to Clairton—The City of Prayer" signs now dot entrances to the town of 19,000. And the first of a series of "Youth Crusade for Christ Days" packed about 1,000 persons into high school auditorium in March.

But to the south, on the edge of Appalachia, fundamentalism has always been a way of life.

Symposium On German Pastor Set

Eberhard Bethge, biographer of underground German preacher Dietrich Bonhoeffer, will be a participant Thursday, May 22, in a symposium on Bonhoeffer at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

Bethge, one of Bonhoeffer's students during the final years of the Hitler regime, is the author of the biography "Dietrich Bonhoeffer," published last year in Germany.

The scholar, who is married to Bonhoeffer's niece, also draws his expertise from letters smuggled to him from Bonhoeffer's prison cell, which later were included in the work, "Letters and Papers from Prison."

Joining Bethge in the afternoon-evening program will be Benjamin A. Reist, Stewart Professor of Systematic Theology, and author of "The Promise of Bonhoeffer."

The symposium, presented by the San Francisco Theological Seminary, will begin at 2 p.m. in the First Church Sanctuary. An evening session will start at 8.

Kid Giants Frolic, 11-1

CHICAGO (UPI)—The frisky youngsters of the San Francisco Giants love to play in the rain. They may get another chance to do it again today.

Rookie Bob Burda clubbed his first major league homer and drove in four runs and young Don Mason contributed three singles and three RBI's yesterday to pace the Giants to an 11-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs in a game that was delayed four times by rain for a total of two hours and three minutes.

San Francisco teed off on six Chicago pitchers for 16 hits with Ken Henderson and Hal Lanier each adding three to the totals of Burda and Mason.

With Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Bobby Bonds on the ailing list, manager Clyde King has been forced to go with the youngsters. They haven't disappointed.

Burda clouted his homer off reliever Phil Regan in the seventh to wind up a five-run inning for the Giants.

Bob Bolin worked seven innings and gained credit for the win, his second in four decisions. Joe Gibbon blanked the Cubs over the last two frames on two hits.

Juan Marichal, who was slated to start, suffered a slight muscle pull in the rib cage. The injury is not considered serious and he is expected to take his turn on the mound in the rotation.

Ray Sadecki (2-3) gets the San Francisco call today against Ken Holtzman (4-1).

The lone Cub run yesterday off Bolin was a leadoff homer in the fourth by Willie Smith. Bolin yielded to a pinch hitter in the eighth after giving up nine hits and fanning six.

"My arm got awfully tired and almost went to sleep after the last rain delay. That's why I didn't warm up. I threw a lot of pitches but still didn't get a complete game."

"I'm no home run hitter like McCovey," Burda said. "When Willie hits 'em they're gone. When I hit 'em, I just run and hope the ball goes over the fielder's head."

Ken Henderson slammed a two-run, bases-loaded single in the three-run sixth to knock out Cub starter Bill Hands.

Houston Fans Pick Their All-Time Team

Baseball writers will select the game's all-time team and the game's greatest player later in the year to commemorate Baesball's Centennial 1869-1969.

Houston fans have beaten the writers to the punch. They already are balloting on an all-time team and "The Greatest Player Ever." Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are dominating the balloting. The Houston balloting ends May 15.

Ruth, baseball's all-time home run champion (714), has received 432 votes as the No. 1 player and outfielder on the all-time team. Gehrig, baseball's Iron Man, dominated balloting for first base with 426 votes.

Ruth Leads Cobb In Voting

In the "Greatest Player Ever" vote, Ruth leads Ty Cobb 242-140. Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle received a sprinkling of votes for this unique honor.

Houston fans are voting for eight players, plus a righthanded and lefthanded pitcher. Six of the 10 positions have just about been clinched — Gehrig at first, Rogers Hornsby at second, Honus Wagner at short, Ruth and Cobb in the outfield and Sandy Koufax as the southpaw pitcher.

Balloting for catcher is especially close with Bill Dickey (162 votes) and Yogi Berra (153) running one-two. Leading, but not yet cinches, are Pie Traynor at third, Walter Johnson as the righthanded pitcher and Ted Williams as the third outfielder.

Tough Positions To Choose

Third base (where 17 players received at least one vote) and second base (with 16 getting votes) were the most difficult position for Astro fans to pick. By contrast, only six first basemen other than Gehrig received a single vote.
about that

The leaders in the Houston fan vote:

Third base — Traynor has 160 votes. His closest competitor is Brooks Robinson with 94. Pepper Martin is a distant third with 35.

Shortstop — Wagner is making it a runaway with 329 votes, far ahead of Pee Wee Reese (52) and Phil Rizzuto (38).

Willie Mays Running Fourth

Outfield — Ruth (432), Cobb (258), Williams (221). Mays (189), Joe DiMaggio (142), Mantle (73) and Stan Musial (68) also have their admirers in the Astrodome.

Catcher — A one-two race for the Yankees with Dickey holding only a nine-vote edge (162-153) over Berra. Mickey Cochrane (99) and Roy Campanella (62) received more than token acknowledgement.

Righthanded pitcher — Johnson with 253 votes has a solid margin over Bob Feller (91) Cy Young (57) and Dizzy Dean (48).

REALIGNMENT TALKS

Pro Grid Owners Struggling On

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's tireless club owners struggled through the night with the problem of realignment, continuing past the 19th hour mark early today in an attempt to find three National Football League teams to move into the American Football League.

With dawn approaching, the owners still were closeted in pro football's plush Park Avenue offices trying to meet both the requirements of realignmnt and today's afternoon deadline set by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle said pointedly before the beginning of yesterday's session: "One way or another we'll have a decision by Saturday afternoon."

The owners went into session at 1 p.m. yesterday and were locked in virtually continuous meetings throughout the day in an attempt to break the impasse that now has lasted through 13 days of talk.

Rozelle had also said he might be forced to pick the three teams himself, but there was no indication that he had either asked or been given the power necessary to resolve the problem in that manner.

The problem revolved around the selection of the three teams that have to be moved from the 16-team NFL into what is now the 10-team AFL to force the two 13-team conferences that will make up the structure of pro football beginning in 1970.

The franchises most prominently mentioned as the leading candidates to shift are Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, Atlanta, Minnesota and St. Louis.

There was virtually no word whatsoever from the pro football offices during the entire day and night on what progress, if any, had been made or whether the stalemate could be broken.

But the fact the owners were staying at the conference table was interpreted as a sign that there had been movement.

Favorites Win In Table Tennis Championships

Competiton continues today with finals scheduled tomorrow.

National men's singles champion Dal-Joon Lee of Cleveland and formerly all-Asian champ from South Korea, joined other top seeds, including four-time Open winner Erwin Klein of Los Angeles.

Also remaining in contention were national junior titleholder Glenn Cowan of Los Angeles and the No. 2 and 3 seeds, Dell Sweeris of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Jack Howard of Los Angeles.

A's Tumble Wild Yanks

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Hank Bauer of the Oakland A's had to admit that the New York Yankees didn't play baseball when he was with them like they did at Oakland Coliseum last night.

The Yankees committed five errors—all in one inning—as the Oakland A's came from behind to win 3-2.

Bauer, who starred on nine Yankee pennant-winning teams was amazed the way his old team threw the ball wildly around the field.

"We wouldn't have been up there every year if we played like that," he said.

Rookie third-baseman Bobby Murcer made two of the errors and pitcher Mel Stottlemyre, first baseman Joe Pepitone, and second baseman Horace Clarke each made one.

Despite all the errors one of the two Oakland runs in the fifth inning was earned. Sandwiched in with all the goofs were a pair of singles and a walk. One of the singles came off the bat of Tommy Reynolds who has hit safely in 12 straight games.

The winning pitcher was Chuck Dobson who never before defeated the Yankees in his four seasons in the majors. He had lost three straight to New York.

"Sure, I knew I hadn't beaten them before," Dobson said. "Everytime I faced them I'm aware of it and usually try too hard. This time I was more relaxed."

Dobson gave up eight hits but did not walk a man in evening his season record at 3-3. Dobson couldn't recall any other game in his career in which he did not walk a batter.

Novato Assured Of Tie For Title

Novato High School's baseball team is only a Dillon away from the 1969 Marin County Athletic League baseball title.

As it is, the Hornets have already clinched at least a share of the title as of yesterday, with only three games left, and Russ Dillon, their unbeaten (6-0) and stingy (0.00 earned run average) pitcher is bound to see duty in one of those games.

The Hornets clinched the title by stepping by San Marin, 6-3, yesterday, doing about enough hitting to win and letting the Mustangs do the rest. The win gave them a 10-1 record

Terra Linda kept some faint glimmer of hope alive by downing San Rafael, 3-1, to keep three games off the pace while Tamalpais fell right out of the picture and close to the second division, losing to Drake, 9-6. And in a battle for last place, Redwood's hitless wonders won without hitting, almost, getting a 4-3 win over luckless Marin Catholic, on just one hit.

The Novato—San Marin game was over after two innings, but they played the rest of the game anyway. That's when the Hornets scored all of their six runs, with run-scoring singles by Dee Federick and Barry Berring doing some of the damage and four San Marin errors finishing the job. The Mustangs came back with two runs themselves but it wasn't enough, although they outhit the Hornets, 9-5. Jim Morrow won it for Novato.

Jerry Goodrick came through with a clutch three-hit performance on the mound for the Trojans, who again waited until the seventh inning to win. The only breathers Trojan pitchers seem to have is the heavy kind.

This time, with the score tied 1-1, the Trojans got two runs in the top of the seventh inning on a walk, a stolen base, an error and a run-scoring single by Craig Logan. Gary Trono had stolen home to account for the first run.

Drake pounded out 10 hits against two Tamalpais pitchers as Clark Jamison scored four runs and got two hits while Dave Alvarado, Fred Westcott and Al Tyler drove in two runs each.

The Pirates got off to a 9-0 lead before the Indians woke up to score a run in the sixth and five big ones in a last-gasp rally in the seventh, capped by Mike Locati's three-run homer.

Meanwhile, Frank Pomilia is turning out to be the biggest kill-joy in the league and Redwood's one and only weapon at the plate. Pomilia, who ruined Novato pitcher Steve McNally's bid for a no-hitter earlier in the season with a two-out single in the seventh inning, did it again this time, getting a two-out two-strike single that drove in the winning run in the Giants' win over Marin Catholic. It was the only hit of Rick Thomas, who had a long day, throwing 112 pitches. The Giants had scored their first three runs on errors and walks.

GOOD GUY AWARD – WHATTA GUY!

Charles S. "Chub" Feeney, vice president and general manager of the San Francisco Giants, seemed to be enjoying himself immensely after presenting Giants' Boosters Club's "Good Guy Award" to Anne Kelly (left) at a banquet at Rubini's Restaurant in Fairfax Wednesday night. Miss Kelly, an American Airlines stewardess, was cited for her service as "Miss Booster" during the club's numerous functions and tours. And you ought to see this "guy" in a mini-skirt!

Stars Next In Western Track Relays

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The "preliminaries" are over and the open and intercollegiate trackmen move onto center stage tonight for the final phase of the 43rd edition of the West Coast Relays.

Competition belongs to John Carlos, Bob Seagren, Willie Davenport, and relay teams from San Jose State and Villanova.

Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, set two meet records yesterday to edge Occidental, 45-41½, for the collegiate team title. Cal Poly's two-mile and 440-yard relay teams scooted to records with clockings of 7:34.4 and 40.8, respectively.

Carlos runs into a top field in his continuing quest for a sub-nine second victory. The San Jose State speedster logged a wind-aided nine-flat in the 100-yard dash last week and has predicted he eventually will get into the eight second bracket. The world record is 9.1.

Seagren, the world record holder at 17-9, faces a field of four other pole vaulters who have been over 17-feet this year, led by Dick Railbacks and Erkii Mustakari.

Davenport will be out for the oldest standing meet record, the 13.5 time in the 120-high hurdles, set in 1950. Davenport was a gold medal winner in the Olympic Games' 110-meter highs.

Villanova has been coming on strong in the mile and the two-mile relays. The Easterners will be pressed by UCLA in the mile and the University of Texas at el Paso in the two-mile.

'Withdrawal Pains' Brought Cousy Back

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bob Cousy, new coach of the Cincinnati Royals, says he intended to stay out of basketball when he left the Boston College helm—"but I was going through some horrendous withdrawal symptoms."

The withdrawal was short, beginning with the end of the past season after a six-year stretch with Boston College. His teams produced a 117-34 record.

Surprise registered on the faces of some reporters when Cousy strolled into the Cincinnati Club yesterday with Royals' owner Max Jacobs—who had said on several occasions there would be no changes within the year in the head coaching department.

Cousy said, "I can't tell you exactly when I changed my mind. I was kidding myself I could be out of it and be happy. I'm so damned competitive."

He said the Royals would sit on the bench less and would concentrate on a running game. Then he went into a huddle with players Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas.

RUNNING GAME

"I feel that the way this game is played, you've got to capitalize constantly on a running game. We've got the best middle man in the game today in Oscar," said the man who was known as the quarterback of the Boston Celtics' fast break.

Cousy replaced Ed Jucker, who had a year left on a three-year contract and whose salary was in the $25,000-a-year bracket.

Cousy's salary was not disclosed, but it was learned that his three-year contract has a clause dealing with stock options and gives him complete control over trades.

Another Snead Is Coming

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Turn back the clock a couple of decades, put a brightly-banned straw hat on his head and he'd look for all the world like his Uncle Sam.

"He's helped me quite a lot," Jesse Carlyle Snead said of his famous uncle, Sam Snead.

"He'd get kinda impatient at times, though, said it was kinda like trying to train a bear."

Snead, a husky, 200-pounder, who abandoned pro baseball for the golf tour, shot a three-under-par 68 yesterday and was just one shot off the pace of leading Steve Reid going into today's second round of the $100,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

The test, on the 7,138-yard, par 71 Pecan Valley Country Club course was passed up by most of the top names in the game, including Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Billy Casper and Julius Boros, with the younger pros leaping to the forefront.

STILL SOGGY

The course was still soggy, with casual water from the violent thunderstorm that forced postponement of the first round Thursday still puddling the fairways when Reid and Snead came in.

It was considerably more dry in the afternoon when 20-year-old South African Bobby Cole matched Snead's 68 and tied for second place.

Seven others, including veteran Doug Sanders, were tied at 69 going into today's second round. Because of the postponement, a 36-hole windup is scheduled Sunday.

Pre-tourney favorite Frank Beard still is in contention with a 71, while U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and Chi Chi Rodriguez, who won this event the last time it was played, in 1967, each had a 74, well back.

Snead hasn't made the cut yet this season, but said in his opening round "all the things my uncle Sam and others have told me kinda fell into place."

Saints' Owner Rejects Franchise Switch Offer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Times-Picayune reported last night in a dispatch from New York that New Orleans Saints' owner John W. Mecom Jr. had turned down a $3 million offer to move his team "lock, stock, crawds and halo" into pro football's new American Conference.

The story, by the newspaper's sports editor, Bob Roesler, also quoted Mecom as saying, "late Thursday night I was offered a sum of money comparable to what the Philadelphia franchise went for. It came from a non-New Orleans group which I believe would be acceptable to the commissioners.

I gave them an emphatic no," the story, which was copyrighted, quoted Mecom. The Philadelphia Eagles recently were purchased for $16.5 million. Mecom paid $9.5 million for the New Orleans franchise two years ago.

BASKETBALL

OAKLAND — Eleven Oakland Oaks players are $4,545 richer today as the result of winning the American Basketball Association championship.

The championship pot came to $50,195 which was 10 per cent higher than the 1967-68 payoff.

Those collecting full shares were Gary Bradds, Doug Moe, Ira Harge, Larry Brown, Warren Armstrong, Jim Eakins, Henry Logan, Russ Critchfield, John Clawson, Mel Peterson and Rick Barry.

TRACK AND FIELD

COOS BAY, Ore. — Steve Prefonaine, holder of the national prep two-mile record, ran the mile in 4:06.9 yesterday fastest high school time in the nation this year.

The 5-9½, 145-pound runner from Marshfield High School in Coos Bay established the national prep mark in the two-mile two weeks ago with a time of 8:41.5. His mile time was the 16th best in prep history. Jim Rynu, now a senior at Kansas, holds the prep record of 3:55.3.

GOLF

DALLAS, Tex. — Sandra Palmer posted a five-under-par 66 for the first round lead in the Civitan Open.

ATLANTA — Bobbie Jo Gabrielsen of Athens, Ga. defeated Cameron Chapman, Yazoo City, Miss. 2 and 1 and Mrs. Mary Ann Rathmell, Houston, Tex. beat Mrs. Scott Probasco, Chattanooga, 1 up on the 20th hole in the match play semifinals of the Women's Southern Amateur Tournament.

They Love Kosco In Los Angeles

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Andy Kosco can finally unpack his bags. They love him in Los Angeles.

Kosco, who "hates to move around," staked a strong claim to permanent residence in the City of the Angels with two homers and a single last night as he paced the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 13-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In other, mostly rain-soaked, NL games, San Francisco whipped Chicago, 11-1, Cincinnati beat Montreal, 8-5, in an abbreviated 6½ inning game, and St. Louis edged San Diego, 7-6. Houston at New York and Atlanta at Philadelphia were postponed because of rain.

Kosco started a wild, nine-run second-inning Los Angeles uprising with a single. Key blows in the inning included back-to-back doubles by Bill Sudakis and Ron Fairly, and a bases-loaded triple by Ted Sizemore. Kosco ended the scoring on his second time at bat in the inning with a two-run homer. He hit his second homer of the game—a three-run shot—in the sixth. Bill Singer allowed five hits in a six-inning stint to boost his record to 5-2.

Bob Tolan batted in four runs with a homer, triple and single for Cincinnati against the Expos. His two-run triple in the second inning snapped a 2-2 tie and put the Reds ahead for good. He banged a two-run homer in the sixth.

Run-scoring singles by the Cardinals' Curt Flood, Joe Torre and Bill White highlighted a five-run sixth inning that wiped out a four-run San Diego lead. Shortstop Jose Arcia received severe lacerations and a broken nose on Torre's smash in the inning. Later in the game, catcher Tim McCarver split his middle finger. Both may be out about a week.

AL ROUNDUP

Lost Birds Return To Haunt Orioles

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of Baltimore's lost baby birds has come home to roost—and prey on the startled Orioles.

Mike Fiore, a promising young slugger who migrated from Baltimore to Kansas City in the American League expansion draft, pinch hit a two-run ninth inning double as the scrappy Royals rallied for three runs and a 4-2 victory over the Orioles last night.

The loss, third for the Orioles in as many games against West Division clubs, trimmed their East Division lead to one game over the streaking Boston Red Sox, who whipped California 7-2.

Fiore's double off reliever Dick Hall overcame a 2-1 Baltimore lead and pitcher Dick Drago squeezed home another run before finishing a fancy four-hitter for his second major league victory.

TWO-HITTER

Mike Marshall fired a two-hitter as Seattle blanked Washington 2-0, Minnesota slugged Detroit 6-2 and Oakland edged the fumbling New York Yankees 3-2 in other AL action. The Chicago White Sox' game at Cleveland was rained out.

Drago, a 23-year-old right-hander drafted from the Detroit organization, held the Orioles hitless until the seventh, when Paul Blair and Frank Robinson drilled singles and Boog Powell doubled them home for a 2-1 edge.

THREE HITS

"Hall pitched to Fiore exactly as he was told," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver. "Fiore played for me two years in Rochester, and he never went with the outside pitch."

The 24-year-old first baseman hit 19 homers for the Orioles' Rochester farm club last season, but with Powell entrenched at first he became expendable in the draft.

He had a .250 batting average and one RBI—having hit the Royals' first homer on April 13—before delivering in the pinch against his ex-mates.

Lou Piniella, another of the six former Orioles on the Kansas City roster, collected three hits as the Royals came from behind for the 13th time in 15 winning games.

Peace Hopes, Anti-Inflation Trends Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks got a helping hand this week from a new Viet Cong peace proposal to end the Vietnam war and closed higher although traders "cooled it" a bit when reports trickled in that the Nixon administration is beginning to win the war against domestic inflation.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said a slowdown in the booming economy is detectable from Commerce Department statistics during the past month on business spending and activity. However, it will "take a while" for any major downturn to show up in the wage-price picture, he cautioned.

Private economists, meanwhile, said plant and equipment spending this year will rise considerably less than a recent government estimate. They also looked for a slower increase in the current quarter's gross national product versus the first quarter.

A slower growth rate for consumer installment credit in March, and the sizable drop in new factory orders for the same period also strengthened the administration's view that the economy is slowing.

The nation's unemployment rate, another key economic indicator, also increased last month. But Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, refused to predict whether the figures might indicate a cooling of the economy.

European monetary jitters had little adverse impact on the market, especially since traders seemed pretty well satisfied that the dollar would escape unharmed.

In fact, International Monetary Fund Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer said the crisis is strictly centered on Germany, and does not reflect softness on the part of any other currency.

Pacific Basin Business Forum Due In Bay Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson heads speakers next week at a meeting of an Organization of the United States and four other Pacific nations which did nearly $50 billion worth of trading in 1968.

The second general meeting of the Pacific Basin Economic Cooperation Committee will being together more than 150 business leaders from this country and Australia, Canada, Japan and New Zealand.

The participants will explore ways to strengthen economical and cultural ties and generate greater economic activity in developing countries of the Pacific.

Shigeo Nagano, president of Fuji Iron and Steel Co. of Japan, is president. National committee chairmen are Sir Edward Warren of Australia, A. Olaf Wolff of Canada, R. G. Speirs of New Zealand and Ransom M. Cook of the United States.

The organization was founded in a two-day meeting in Sydney Australia, last year, and is supported by private firms.

Extra Hearing Offered On Flood Control Design

The next phase of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project will get an added public hearing June 16 before the Marin County Board of Supervisors, and that will be the opportunity for any who oppose the work to have their say.

It is to be hoped they will be present as the Civic Center that day, to argue their case rationally, and will not wait until bulldozers pull into their neighborhoods, then to stage futile demonstrations.

The third phase will take the flood control project through the College of Marin property and the remainder of Kentfield, and clear through Ross to the Ross-San Anselmo line. Besides the major work on Corte Madera Creek, it includes some work in Ross Creek similar to that under way in Tamalpais Creek. No other tributary stream is involved.

THERE ARE SEVERAL things to bear in mind regarding the project — things which some Marin residents seem to have forgotten or never learned:

1. The project has already been approved through Ross. It has the approval of the Ross Town Council, the Marin Junior College District trustees, and the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

2. Design for the concrete channel which will run through Ross was shown in drawings which were on exhibit at the Ross Town Hall prior to the town council's approval in 1966.

3. All the necessary legal procedures have been completed so the Army Corps of Engineers can go ahead with contracts for the third phase.

However, to put away all possibility of charges of proceeding without someone's knowing about it, the board of supervisors scheduled the June 16 hearing. The Army Corps of Engineers has agreed to participate.

4. The Corps of Engineers, at the insistence of Marin County, has allocated 7 per cent of the project cost to its esthetic improvement. The corps has agreed to fencing and plantings which will help to blend the creek with the landscape. This is quite radical departure from the corps' usual practice, and was forced upon it by Marin County.

Details of the appearance are still open for discussion. The Army Corps of Engineers, having departed from its hard stand of the past that esthetics was none of its affair, may be willing to go farther than it has already in trying to make the completed project inoffensive in appearance. It cannot do so, however, if this would increase the total cost, as it is limited by the funds made available by Congress.

THERE ARE SOME THINGS about the need for the project that also should be kept in mind — things which some Marin residents seem to have forgotten or never learned:

1. Flooding in Ross and Kentfield has been extensive and expensive. It is impossible for the meandering creek, with trees and brush growing down into it, to carry off the water during heavy rains.

2. The first two phases of the project can do little to alleviate flooding above College Avenue in Kentfield as long as the creek from there up remains in its present condition.

3. The project was sought by the county. It was not proposed by the Army. It came as result of long agitation. Federal funds were obtained because it appeared too great an expense for the property owners benefitted to bear. And because it is a federal project, it comes under jurisdiction of the Corps of Engineers, whose duties include flood control.

IT SHOULD BE OBVIOUS to all that, if Corte Madera Creek is to be kept from flooding Ross and Kentfield, its channel must be both enlarged and straightened. Talk of rip-rapping a few bends in the creek is just talk. While that might enhance the appearance, it would not solve the flood problem.

If the capacity of the stream is to be enlarged, it must be either widened or deepened — or both. The design in the part of the project already completed to considerable extent limits the depth to which the upper portion can be cut without causing a backup — and flooding.

If all these things are kept in mind, the question of how the appearance of the project might be improved can be approached rationally.

WE SINCERELY HOPE the Corps of Engineers can be prevailed upon to go farther than it has already in beautifying the project design — although, as mentioned before, it has gone much farther with esthetic considerations on this project than it does customarily.

We sincerely hope that those who appear at the June 16 hearing will do so prepared to offer constructive suggestions rather than emotional orations. We hope they will all recognize that the things at stake are the protection of life and property from flooding — as well as the protection of the landscape.

The Lazy Birdwatcher

There are birdwatchers and there are birdwatchers. Birdwatching was once regarded as a hobby of tweedy eccentrics. In the days between the two World Wars, it took a fairly rugged individualist to "waste one's time" in such a "useless" way. Golf was exercise; dancing and the movies were fun; reading was educational; birdwatching was nothing.

Today, most people recognize that birdwatching can be exercise, fun and educational. In our growing awareness that all living creatures are more closely related than we imagined, and that what afflicts one affects another, people have flocked to the banner of the birdwatchers in droves. Today, it is one of Marin's most popular hobbies.

Instead of venturing forth to meet the birds in the woods, most Marinites prefer to do their birdwatching while seated. Bird feeders and other means of attracting the birds are often favored over barging out into the forests and meadows in the dawn hours.

As charter members of the Lazy Birdwatchers Society, this is our preferred method. It may not be so good for the health as the hiking method, but it does permit a more intimate acquaintance to develop between man and bird.

Do you think politicians' set speeches today leave something to be desired? Have a look at what Senator William McAdoo once said about the perorations of President Warren Harding: His speeches leave the impression of army of pompous phrases moving over the landscape in search of an idea. Somethimes these meandering words actually capture a straggling thought and bear it triumphantly, a prisoner in their midst, until it dies of servitude and overwork."

Fire Bond Issue Got Long Study

In your column of May 7 a letter referred to the special bond election next Tuesday in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District.

It is most interesting that the wirter (Mrs. Yobuo Tanaka) indicates, on the eve of election, that she is possessed with such expertese in the science and administration of fire protection that she could develop a superior program for providing the requirements of our fire department.

One wonders why this lady and the few others who, only now, voice their opposition to this proposal failed to appear at the regularly scheduled public meetings of the board of directors of the district where, during the past five years, their objections, recommendations and questions would have been considered along with those of the concerned residents and taxpayers of the district who took the trouble to attend.

The Citizens' Committee for Fire Protection are making every possible effort to bring the facts to the electorate, assured that an informed public will adopt this most practical method of meeting the needs of the fire district.

Poignant Concern Of Young People

It worries me when I read in the papers about the seals being washed with oil, our dying bay, creeks being filled and lined with cement, and marshes being killed. I am expressing the thoughts of a young confused person who feels that we are killing off nature's beauty and resourcefulness.

Everyone should stop and think twice, think about the air they are breathing; the water they are drinking, which is so filled with chlorine that we've forgotten what real spring water tastes like. Everyone is contributing to the death of themselves and the death of their own land (whichever comes first). I also feel very strongly that the young people of today want to work and they would rather work to save their country than contribute to its destruction. Not in war, but in the battle for its preservation.

The ocean provides much of the food we eat. The plants in the forests produce the oxygen we breathe. The uses of chemicals in tha air and water are killing them slowly but surely. This has to be stopped now before it's too late. There may not be places for all of the young people who want and need jobs in your commercial businesses, but there are many, many areas where we can help in saving the world for we who will live in it tomorrow. But we also need your help — you who are shaping the society for us to fulfill.

Violence Serves No Cause Well

Thank you for your Saturday editorial (May 3) on the "unprintable" abuse used by extremists at the recent College of Marin meeting. You might have added, however, that white extremists on the college scene indulge themselves in the same manner — many of them wearing "peace" and "love" symbols, and apparently oblivious to the contradiction of their behavior and their symbolism. Dr. Hayakawa, the semanticist, could probably point out that the same kind of put-down can be and is practiced by some of our most socially correct citizens without the use of objectionable language: the snide remark will serve.

We should all observe that violence serves no cause well, whether it is verbal violence or physical.

LINES ON LIVING

Man Alone Compelled To Spiritual Growth

By Rabbi
HAIM KEMELMAN

What is a person's greatest need in life? After satisfying his physiological being and biological needs, his greatest compulsion is growth: to become. But whereas a beast of burden, a flower, a tree, develop simply by existing, a person has to nourish the deepest roots of his being in order to become. To fulfill his destiny, he must transcend himself by extending his relationships beyond the narrow world and life of himself.

Fulfilling growth — in soul more than in body — is a necessary condition of human life and human happiness. And it is not measured in pounds and in inches but by the intangibles of the spirit.

IN A TRUE sense, this constantly new-found rediscovery of a person's hidden powers and his freshly gained perspectives are a process of continual rebirth and self-resurrection. The human elements, the potentials are always there; only by turning our visionary powers inwardly and by rearranging the kaleidoscopic bits and pieces, we design the ever-changing and ever-glinting mosaics of renewed beauty and ecstasy. It's as if we would turn the mind's light upon itself the way a cell would look at itself.

And this can prove to be the profoundest joy of all human experiences: the superlative qualities of human encounter that allow us not only to "be lived" like the lower forms of life but to live as gods; not only to love in the flesh but also to be loved in soul: not only to be creatures of God, but also to be creators with God, in fashioning things of beauty and in glimpsing moments of truth.

We can extend ourselves into the lives and loves of others. We can reason, not only know. We can feel with other, not only for ourselves. We have a soul, a conscience, an intelligence and an impluse, if not always the inclination, for good. We are personalities seeking not only God but also endeavoring to imitate His eternal qualities by being God-like. However, this kind of human being demands the uninterrupted growth of becoming.

OF ALL the animal kingdom, man is the only bored creature — the most restless and searching, the most curious and uninhibited. He would literally die from the boredom of keeping his own company, or turn insane by the maddening routine of daily chores, were it not for his powers of self-innovation. His ability to gain a sense of newness, a feeling of "being born again" in the revealing reality of change and revitalization, is his only mitigating redemption.

Man with an experiencing soul must have the power to re-create himself, daily. And when he does, he fulfills the destiny of that selfhood within him that cries out for redeeming growth — for the miracle of a personal exodus, free and unshackled.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Simple Argument Serves Laird In Raging ABM Controversy

WASHINGTON — Melvin Laird's round, cheerful face, which wears at times an expression that can be described only as Puckish, goes oddly with the pronouncements of threatening doom that come from him. The secretary of defense, a shrewd and able operator with the Republican minority in the House, is in the advance command post in the fight over the anti-ballistic missile and not altogether happy as the shot and shell burst over his head.

MELVIN LAIRD
Puckish?

His is perhaps the most demanding position in the government next to the presidency itself. And, as Laird has been telling all and sundry from the first day he moved into the Pentagon, far from seeking the office he gave President Nixon 22 reasons why he should not get it.

He had thought, as one of the president-elect's hard-working arrangers, that the job would go to a Democrat, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington. But Jackson in the end declined the honor. He ranks fourth on the Senate Armed Services Committee, and from that vantage point he champions the advanced weapons systems the generals and admirals come up with.

FOR ALL HIS ability the defense assignment is for Laird cruel and unusual punishment. He must cope with issues so complex that they defy the understanding of even the most brilliant and knowledgeable scientist-technicians steeped in the lore of mass annihilation. The language they use is so esoteric that it is difficult, if not impossible, to translate it into terms the ordinary citizen comprehends. So narrow is the choice between life or death, not for a few million humans but for civilization itself, that the Archangel Gabriel might be hard pressed to come up with an answer.

In this bind Laird has developed a fundamental position which he steadfastly maintains both in public and private. The Soviet Union is building a first-strike capability with the deployment of giant 25 megaton (25 million tons of TNT) SS-9S. A first strike can destroy America's ability to retaliate and leave the Russians winners in the first all-out nuclear exchange. Therefore, the United States must build a missile defense, named Safeguard by the Nixon administration, to protect the intercontinental missiles that can hit back.

He brooks no argument on this score. American intelligence, above all the Samos satellites, has shown the SS-9S being put in place. That is the word Laird means to carry to every corner of the country as the crucial head count in the Senate on the ABM draws nearer with a mid-June date likely.

Laird's simple view of the matter has its advantages. It is familiar in that it poses the good guys, who want only to defend themselves, against the bad guys who want to reduce America to a desert. While the experts shoot holes in Laird's position, as Ralph Lapp did so effectively in a recent analysis, what it lacks in sophistication it makes up in emotional thrust.

THE SECRETARY of defense is vulnerable. That has been the history of the office. Nine men have occupied the post since it was created in 1947 — 10 with Laird — and the roster is hardly a reason for celebration.

The first secretary of defnse, James Forrestal, overwhelmed by service infighting and the effort to hold the defense establishment together at the end of the war, suffered a mental breakdown ending in suicide. The average tenure has been a year and a half to two years. Robert S. McNamara's seven years were a record.

Laird is unique — The first politican out of Congress to hold the office. If he can get on top of the job — and the head count on ABM in the Senate will not be the ultimate test — he will have demonstrated that Congress provides a more formidable conditioning than anyone suspected.

Younger Generation Loses All –The Mothers Have Revolted

WASHINGTON — My wife was writing furiously the other night, and I asked her what she was up to.

"I've been very much impressed by the student demonstrations and since Mother's Day is coming up I've decided to make certain demands for mothers that the country will have 24 hours to accept."

"But you can't do that," I said. "That's an ultimatum."

"Exactly," she replied, "and we're not fooling around."

"WHAT ARE the demands?"

"The first is that amnesty be given to all mothers for anything they have done in the past year which might have annoyed or offended their children. And since having children is punishment enough for all mothers, that no further penalties be imposed on us for any irrational acts we may have committed."

"I don't know if the kids will go for that," I said.

"WE FURTHER demand that mothers have an equal voice with their children in all decisions that affect the lives of the family and that teenagers may not arbitrarily make rules affecting their mothers without the mother's prior consent."

"That could lead to anarchy."

My wife continued reading from her list: "We demand that the continual testing of mothers by their children be abolished. Instead, a 'pass-fail system' for grading mothers must be adopted. This would be much fairer and would also take the pressure off us so far as competing with other mothers goes."

"You're asking for the moon."

"WE FURTHER demand a full Mother Studies Program at all schools, where they would emphasize the affirmative things about mothers and spell out the contributions they have made to the world. This program would be an answer to the lies put out by Philip Wylie and Philip Roth. The object of the course would be to give mothers new pride in themselves and prove once and for all that 'birth is beautiful'."

"What else?" I asked nervously.

"We demand that the system be changed so we can sleep in the morning once a week, stay out in the evening and have some time to ourselves on weekends."

"NOW YOU'RE GOING too far," I warned.

"We also believe that if we're the official chauffeurs of the family, society should provide parking space for us and all illegal-parking tickets should be rescinded so we can start out with a new slate."

"These demands are preposterous."

"In confrontations between mothers and children, we are serving notice that if fathers take the side of the children we will close the kitchen down until someone listens to us."

"You're putting fathers in a terrible spot," I said.

"WE ARE ALSO sick and tired of Mother's Day, which is just a form of tokenism to keep us in our place. We demand to be treated like mothers 365 days of the year."

"Is that all?"

"No. There's one more thing," she said, as she handed the paper to me. "These demands are not negotiable, and I expect an answer by Sunday."

See Page M2

1,500 Different Kinds Of Seashells

Dominican Biology Professor Has An Outstanding Scientific Collection

Two gifts back in 1942 were responsible, says Sister M. Aquinas, O.P., for the start of her now extensive collection of shells, a part of which is currently on display at Archibishop Alemany Library on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael.

The other was a copy of Hyatt Verrill's book, "Strange Sea Shells and Their Stories," given to her by her mother, Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz.

THESE LED, the Dominican College professor of biology recalls, to a visit to the U. S. National Museum to check the rare specimens. And from that blossomed a life-long interest in conchology.

Her shell collection grew rapidly from 1942 to 1952, she says, and she lists her sources including:

1. Beachcombing efforts by family and friends. And as the daughter of World War II hero Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, she had both acquaintances and kin who visited the farflung beaches of the world.

2. Exchanges with collectors overseas, many of them resulting from a picture of her collection in The National Geographic of July, 1949. These contacts, she says, included a Scottish school teacher "from whom I still hear," plus collectors in Uruguay, the Netherlands, Belgium and Germany. One of these was of particular value in that he had access to shells from the Congo.

3. A gift of the collection of shells of Christopher Holmes of Hawaii. "But, alas, he was not a scientific collector, and so many of these shells are without vital locality information."

4. Another gift of shells from the duplicate collection of W. J. Raymond of Southern California. "These," says Sister Aquinas, "plus the cabinet in which the entire collection is normally housed on the Guzman lecture hall balcony, came to me through the kindness of Allyn Smith, also a shell collector and my next-door neighbor for five years. Before the cabinet arrived, I kept the shells in my bureau drawers with clothing relegated to closet shelves."

5. And wages earned in the summer of 1947 working at the U. S. National Museum in Washington, D.C. "For every hour of work, I could choose three lots of shells from their collection of duplicates."

SISTER AQUINAS, to whom a book on shells was once so important, recommends for beginning collectors today "Sea Treasures" by Kathleen Johnstone, which, she notes, is available in the Archbishop Alemany Library.

And she adds: "Along with collecting shells, acquiring beautiful books about them is a very satisfactory side feature of the hobby. Many of the most beautiful are in Japanese (with Latin subtitles)."

Some of Sister Aquinas' books simply were purchased. But one came from a bombed-out library at Palau. And another, by Hirose, was found only after a two-year search through the Pacific.

Fleet Admiral Nimitz took an active interest in helping his daughter with her collection of shells and books.

THE CURRENT exhibit in the Dominican College library, which continues through May and is open daily to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., includes a rare Golden Cowry from the vicinity of Ponape in the South Pacific. Permission to wear such a cowry as an ornament is a mark of the highest distinction among Friendly Islanders.

The collection also includes a West Indian murex, the left-handed whelk, "Nautilus pompilius," "Spondylus" from the Gulf of California, tiger cowries, auger shells, the queen conch and pearl oyster, and various cones such as "Conus imperialis" and "marmoreus."

The shells come from nearby northern California beaches such as Bodega Bay, Monterey and Dillon Beach, as well as such diverse locations as Zeeland, Nassau, Belgium, Connecticut, Netherlands, Mexico, West Indies and other points around the globe.

nas, her huge collection includes some 1,500 species "which isn't so very many, considering that there are about 100,000 species."

However, it is impressive, even when only a part of it is on display as is the case now at Alemany Library. Each shell is identified and labeled with the genera and region (if known) from whence it came.

Sister Aquinas received her master's degree from the University of California at Berkeley and her bachelor and Ph. D degrees from Stanford University.

She is currently engaged in research on the relationship of nutrition to the reproductive cycles in marine invertebrates, working under a U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare grant.

IN HER LABORATORY on the Dominican College, the biologist, now in her fifth year of federally supported research, is seeking to localize fat and carbohydrate reserves in the tissues of two types of crabs and two species of starfish, while determining any changes in the amounts of reserve substances at various locations and their correlation with the reproductive cycle. The effects of long-term starvation on the quantity and quality of sperm and eggs is a key part of the study.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department funds enabled the college to purchase needed equipment and supplies for the project, and to provide salaries for two students working 10 hours a week as "micro-technical" assistants.

For Sister Aquinas, her profession is a continuation of the same scientific interest and curiosity that demonstrated itself back in 1942 when gifts of shells and a book sent her scurrying to the museum to learn still more about the fascinating subject of conchology.

Her Special Cake For Mother's Day

Popular Dessert Had Its Beginnings In Hawaii Trip

A host of memories, a few rolls of film, a mumu; these are the usual souvenirs most tourists bring back from Hawaii.

Mrs. Ted Weitzel acquired these, but she also brought back a dream.

Formless and fragile, it had to do with the islands' lush plentitude of fruits and coconuts. What was ordinary fare for Hawaiians would seem a tropical fantasy to Mainlanders, she reasoned. It should be a dessert, probably a cake. But how?

For months the dream was forgotten. Evie Weitzel had more pressing demands.

Besides running a home and raising two daughters, she was the secretary - treasurer for her husband's bakery business in San Francisco. Still, the dream refused to be ignored. One night it awakened her from a sound sleep.

"THAT'S THE honest truth," she says. "I'll never forget it".

Even though it was 2 a.m., she had to tell her husband. Dutifully, Weitzel listened. He listened again over his morning coffee. Conceding that his wife's recipe was a great idea, he agreed to try it that day. The whole staff tasted it and loved it.

They could have called it Evie's Dream, instead they named it the Fruit Basket Cake.

That was 16 years ago. It was first introduced to Marinites in 1955 when Weitzel opened the first Lady Baltimore Bakery at 1914 Fourth Street, San Rafael. Today, it's the firm's leading item, out-selling all other cakes. Because of its universal appeal, the Fruit Basket is baked daily in seven and eight-inch sizes, but is easily adapted to larger layers and the popular sheet cake form for birthdays.

TOMORROW, the Fruit Basket cake will be the sweet treat at hundreds of Mother's Day celebrations, not only in Marin, but all over the Bay Area. Former Weitzel customers still list it as their favorite and willingly make a special trip to this county for their order.

The Fruit Basket eschews the traditional sugar and spice combination to make it nice. Rather, it begins and ends with lavish amounts of whipped cream.

Starting with four layers of gold chiffon, each heavily laden with cream, the cake takes on an island magic with the addition of pineapple filling, fresh strawberries or fresh frozen peaches, depending on the season, and bananas. It's then wrapped in a cloud of moist coconut.

MORE FRESH fruit and whipped cream swirls decorate the top.

"We never dreamed the Fruit Basket would be so popular," Mrs. Weitzel comments. "It caught on instantly. Sometimes it's called the Fruit Bowl or the Fruit Cake, but once a customer mentions 'the cake with the fresh fruits' we know what she wants."

A frank and forthright person, Evie lives by and believes in her creed: "I like to work hard and play hard." And she has a ball doing both.

Still a slim size 10, auburn haired and a model's height of five feet seven inches, the former Evelyn Mefford was born and raised in San Francisco. As a youngster her main interest was competitive swimming.

BEGINNING with the playground at North Beach, Evie swam with the Crystal Palace, Fleishhacker, Fairmont Hotel and Neptune Beach clubs. Six years later, at 17, she set the record for the Golden Gate long-distance swim from Lime Point to Fort Point.

LADY BALTIMORE cake decorator Werner Schmidt gets some help with one of the firm's specialties, the Fruit Basket Cake, in special demand at Mother's Day time, from Mrs. Ted Weitzel, who originated the fruit-filled dessert. Mrs. Weitzel is the wife of the Lady Baltimore Bakery Corp. founder and is herself the firm's secretary-treasurer. (Independent-Journal photos)

A brief career in the trust department of the Bank of America followed. By 1931 Evelyn had met and married Ted Weitzel. It has been a long and happy marriage. Two weeks ago the Weitzels celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary.

"My business career was brief because in the depression days married women weren't allowed to work. But on the day I lost my job Ted also lost his. We went back to Ted's hometown of Walla Walla, Wash., and started our first bakery. Two years later we opened a store in San Francisco's Mission District."

LEARNING ALL the facets of her husband's business, Evie began the day at 6 o'clock by opening the store, served a shift as a counter girl and helped Ted close up at midnight. A session with the books kept her busy until 3 a.m.

"It had to be that way so I did it" is the realistic way Evie sums up those years.

As their business grew to include a chain of bakeries, so too did the Weitzel family. After their two daughters, Kitty and Teddy, arrived, Ted and Evelyn moved to Fairfax where they resided for 20 years. Both girls are married now.

Kitty (Mrs. Rod McKnew) lives in Blackburg, Va., and is the mother of two girls. Teddy and her husband, Bruce Rosentreter, who recently joined the family firm, are the parents of 3-year-old Jeffery.

IN 1953, WEITZEL retired. Restless after two idle months, he decided to launch a whole new career, and with Evie's help, began planning Marin's first drive-in bakery. As president of the Lady Baltimore Bakery Corp., which in 14 years has grown to eight branches, Weitzel is now in semi-retirement. Evie is also. But as corporation secretary - treasurer, she still manages the books. So their time is divided between a Lake County home and an apartment

'What Made The Yellow Streaks On My White Dress?"

Your concern frequently occurs. The streaking results from contact with dye from another acetate garment. This is observed, often, after a white or light-colored garment is stored in a closet next to a dark colored acetate fiber. Wet or dampness has nothing to do with the streaking.

In most instances your drycleaner can remove the streaks. However, if the dye in the light-colored garment is "fugitive" it would be impossible to remove the yellow streaks without damaging the entire garment. The same would be true if the garment has a special finish such as a white satin in which the delusterizing finish would be removed in treating the streaks.

Be careful not to store colored and white acetates next to each other for any period of time.

Working Mother, But No Neglect In Weitzel Home

in Ignacio.

Still, Mrs. Weitzel has energy to spare. As sports-minded as ever, she's an avid golfer with a 16-stroke handicap, and she prefers dominoes or cribbage to bridge. Sewing is another avocation.

Mastering the difficult craft of tailoring came naturally to Evie. "I love the detail work, it offers more of a challenge," she says.

At this point daughter Teddy asked to be heard. "There's a lot of discussion these days about working mothers. May I say that my mom worked from the day she brought me home from the hospital. Yet never once did I ever know a feeling of neglect. Mom was always there, always involved in our lives. Don't ask me how she did it, she just did."

Her mother smiled, looking very pleased. Then Teddy teased, "I really don't like you very much, mom."

OBVIOUSLY, every day is Mother's Day in the Weitzel family circle. Ted and his brother Bing, Lady Baltimore vice president, describe Evie as their balance wheel. "Before we get too carried away with an idea we ask Evie's opinion. Thank heavens she's vetoed a lot of them."

Matter-of-factly, Evie counters that she's the bookkeeper, not the baker of the family. And as she turns back to balance a ledger or type a letter at a fast-paced 80 words a minute, she adds, "It's been a great and fulfilling life. If I could do it all over again, I wouldn't change a bit."

And how will the Weitzels celebrate Mother's Day? Their dinner plans are still indefinite, but there's no doubt about their choice of dessert. "Of course we'll have a Fruit Basket. Even if we go to a restaurant, we always take one with us."

Scores of Marinites echo the sentiment.

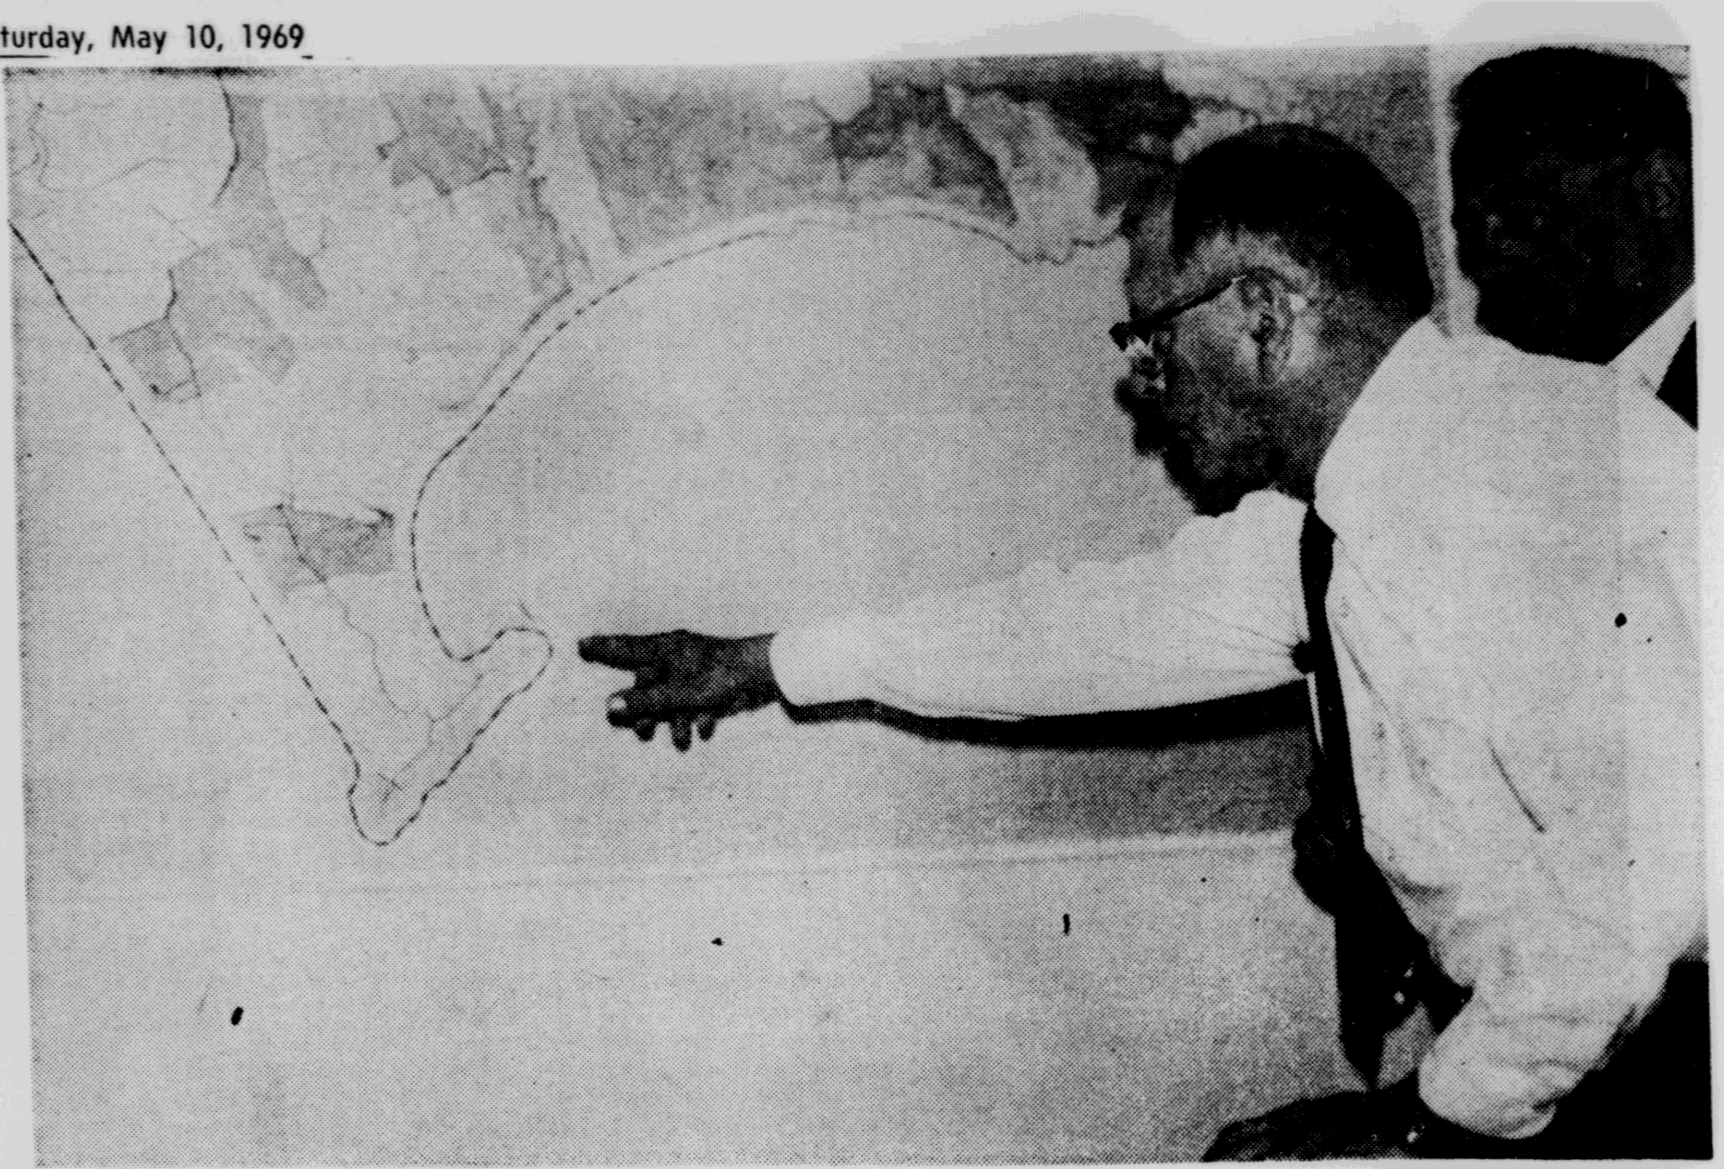
A Report On The Seashore

Point Reyes Is Awaiting More Funds

By GIL PEARSON



EDWARD J. KURTZ, left, superintendent of the Point Reyes National Seashore and a career man with the National Park Service, points out to writer Gil Pearson, himself a former ranger, an area on the point of the peninsula where history has been enlivened by explorations, shipwrecks and bootlegging.

The assignment — "pin down the current situation at Point Reyes National Seashore" — touched off twinges of nostalgia in this reporter.

The idea of meeting with Point Reyes rangers and other personnel was especially stimulating, for 40 years ago, this writer was himself a Yellowstone National Park ranger.

By way of comparison, Yellowstone, established in 1872, is our oldest National Park Service administered facility, whereas Point Reyes National Seashore, created in 1962, is one of our youngest.

BUT FOR national parks, seashores, monuments and forests, young and old, large and small, the matter of funds, particularly for land acquisition, is always a major hurdle. This has been particularly so at Point Reyes.

Asked to list recent progress and improvements, Edward J. Kurtz, superintendent of the national seashore, ticked these off:

"Two and a half years ago we completed access roads from the Sir Francis Drake Highway to Point Reyes Beach North and to Point Reyes Beach South.

"TWO YEARS ago we provided a bathhouse with shower facilities at Drake Beach and developed parking for 450 cars.

"Eighteen months ago we constructed three 'back-country' campgrounds in the Bear Valley area. These include restrooms, fireplaces, picnic tables and water. Visitors hike in to reach these facilities. The hiking distance along the Bear Valley trail to the Pacific coastline is four and four-tenths miles.

"And that is it — there will be no more improvements until we get more land."

THERE IS some hope (but not much) that hearings will be held at the current session of Congress on bills to increase the spending-limit previously set for Point Reyes land acquisitions, according to Rep. Jeffery Cohelan of Berkeley.

The 1962 legislation which created the seashore established a 14 million dollar spending limit. In 1966 Congress raised the limit by another five million plus — to 19 million dollars — to buy additional lands whose purchase was mandatory under court order.

Cohelan's present bill would add another 38 million dollars to boost the total authorization to 57.5 million dollars — hopefully enough to buy the still-private portions of the 53,000 acre peninsula on the Marin coastline north of Bolinas. The government now holds about 20,000 acres.

THE USUAL July appropriation for the operating costs for Point Reyes is about $250,000, with slight increases each year.

Superintendent Kurtz, who majored in forestry at Colorado State University, is a career man who worked up from ranger to chief ranger to superintendent over 22 years at various national parks across the nation. Six rangers and nine maintenance personnel assist him in

He reports that visitations to Point Reyes National Seashore increase annually at the rate of 10 to 20 per cent. The total for 1968 was about 600,000 visitors.

Of these, 127,000 hiked on 60 miles of trails. Some 11,000 used the campgrounds.

The trails are the main attraction and are used by horseback riders as well as hikers. Bicycles are suitable on the Bear Valley and Coast trails.

New paths include Earthquake Trail which follows the St. Andreas Fault line, and the Woodpecker Trail, noted for flowers and birds.

There are three backpack camps. Each camp has 12 campsites, each of which can serve 10 people with water and cooking pits.

SOME SIX beaches are accessible by the trail system or by public roads.

Picnicking and surf fishing are enjoyed at all beaches. A California fishing license is required. Since the stream waters are not potable, visitors should carry canteens.

The ocean strongly influences e weather of Point Reyes. Its ean beaches are frequently ggy and windy enough to ake warm clothing very welme indeed. Throughout the mmer these beaches experiice more days of fog than sunine, but spring and autumn in be mild and pleasant.

The country east of Inverness idge, accessible by hiking ails, is free of summer fog but does have heavy rains in winr and spring.

The spring flower season lasts from February to late July, reflecting the mild temperatures and the considerable moisture from fogs and winter storms.

WHEN YOU decide to explore these treasures of scenery and nature you can approach Point Reyes National Seashore from various routes. Only an hour's drive from the Golden Gate, you take the Panoramic Highway to Stinson Beach then along Route 1 to the Point Reyes headquarters just beyond Olema.

GRASSY MEADOWS and green forests line the Bear Valley Trail, the most popular of the several hiking trails that lure outdoor-lovers to Point Reyes National Seashore.

Come To Cymru, Invite The Welsh

By DON KEOWN

Too many visitors to the United Kingdom omit Wales from their itineraries.

There will be fewer tourists making that mistake this year, for the July 1 investiture by which Prince Charles accepts his responsibilities as the Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, plus attendant festivities, are certain to attract throngs from the United States and other countries.

Wales, however, has a lot to offer its guests besides this year's special pageantry.

IT IS A land of green valleys and gushing streams, of wooded mountains and picturesque seacoast, of impressive castles and charming villages.

We spent some time in North Wales a year ago, and our stay provided some of the most pleasant memories of a six-weeks tour.

Our sightseeing included a visit to Caernarvon Castle in the town of Caernarvon where the July ceremonies will take place. It is a mighty fortress, fully restored, and houses among other things an interesting military museum of the Welsh Fusiliers.

SOMEHOW, however, the nearby castle at Conway impressed us more. Those fortifications have been only partially restored. But the semi-ruin state of the ramparts and dungeons lends a romantic and historic touch.

Conway, itself, is an enchanting old town of narrow streets and a harbor that looks very much like a small Mediterranean fishing village.

Edward I, 1272 to 1307, was the monarch responsible for most of the formidable castles or strongholds that dot Wales. Most famous of all is Harlech, which we did not get to see.

What we did tour at length was Snowdonia National Park with its Snowdon Mountain, the highest peak in Wales.

WE SIGNED up for a bus tour of the huge national park, and our fellow passengers proved to be members of an "over 60" club from Aberdeen, Scotland. A jolly lot they were, giving the lie to the old chestnut of the dour Scot. They enjoyed themselves wholeheartedly, and were most anxious that the two Americans who had joined them temporarily do the same.

When the scenery was not all-engrossing, which was rare, they broke out in songfests that included spirited renditions of "California, Here I Come" as a salute to the Yankee couple.

The bus carried us past small azure lakes and emerald meadows, along side rushing rivers (not even Scotland can equal Wales when it comes to the beauty of its streams), through peaceful villages with colorful names such as Bettws-y-Coed and Ffestiniog where the neat cottages were wholly or predominately slate.

OCCASIONALLY, just occasionally, there was a jarring note as the bus passed through a town whose hillsides had been mined and reduced to ugly slag, a reminder that Americans don't have a monopoly on spoiling nature although they do it oftener and more completely.

All the time the bus was winding its way up Mount Snowdon on lightly trafficked roads. Then at a little country station everybody piled out of the bus and boarded a fairyland narrow gauge railway train that carried us to the 3,360-foot crest through magnificent wooded and craggy terrain.

IT'S LONG, sandy beach and blue waters would do any Riviera resort proud. There's a promenade along the ocean front, and a rather sedate boardwalk or entertainment area that manages not to intrude upon the natural beauty, since it sits upon a high cliff overlooking the water.

All along the beach, fronting on the ocean, are several blocks of big, old, handsome hotels.

Llandudno, itself, is a pretty city with a wide main thoroughfare and lots of flowers.

DESPITE ITS beauty, its shoreline, its proximity to the national park and to history, Llandudno is not an expensive resort. This, no doubt, is because it is scarcely known to Americans. Most of its tourist trade comes from other sections of Great Britain and from Ireland. Prices range somewhat higher than in Ireland, but lower than in England and on most of the continent.

It is great sports country with its fishing, hunting, golf, riding, hiking, climbing, boating and swimming. There are good shops, too, for such purchases as the delicate Welsh love spoons, carved wood, basketry, textiles, dolls, etc.

Wales is not great gourmet country. The food tends to be plain though substantial. We can, however, personally recommend the dining room of the North Western Hotel in Llandudo where both the meals and service were outstanding.

WE MADE certain Wales was on our itinerary because of ancestral ties. And everywhere we went, there were Joneses (grandmother's family) and Hughses (grandfather's side). In some villages it seemed like two of every three storefronts bore the name of Jones. But you need not have Welsh lineage to justify and enjoy a visit to this jewel of a country which is well worth several days of anybody's time.

One last tip: To the Welsh themselves, their country is not Wales but Cymru (pronounced cumry), meaning the land of comrades or friends. And friendly people they are.

And the tongue-twisting Welsh names you sometimes encounter are just an added fillip to remind you that you are not in your own country, but in a land with rich traditions, history and culture all its own.

THE SANTA CRUZ Small Craft Harbor, maintained by the city, is bidding for the attention of boat-loving vacationers. The sheltered harbor on Monterey Bay has 334 berth and a six-lane launching ramp. It also offers complete repair, maintenance and storage facilities. Because the channel is subject to shoaling, kippers are advised to ask for local instructions in entering.

Two New Highways Await Visitor To British Columbia This Year

By DARRY BROADFOOT

Two brand new highways, slicing through a vast and untapped recreationland, open up new opportunities for tourists to British Columbia this year.

The major new highway is called the Yellowhead Route, running about 215 miles north from the interior hub city of Kamloops to a juncture with the northern Trans-Provincial Highway running west from the famous mountain resort of Jasper.

The second route is the completion of the northern Trans-Provincial Highway from its juncture with the Yellowhead Route and running west about 160 miles to the booming central interior city of Prince George.

SEEN ON A map, the two new routes joining 66 miles west of Jasper appear as a great sloppily-drawn letter "Y" enclosing about 150,000 square miles of towering mountain ranges, miles upon miles of forest land, lakes and streams beyond count — a vacationer's paradise.

The Yellowhead Route has been partially paved for about half its route for years, but the finishing touches of new blacktop and the bridges have only recently been completed.

The northern Trans-Provincial — also known as Highway 16 and running to Prince Rupert on the Pacific Ocean — has only recently been completed in its middle sections, and is now open to travel.

SO NEW ARE these two routes — vital to the economy of the province and to tourism — that they have not yet been officially dedicated.

However, they are in excellent condition and speeds of 60 miles per hour (the legal limit) are as comfortable as on any freeway.

The traveler wishing to pass through new country could break his journey into one of two trips assuming he makes his headquarters at Kamloops, a city with many excellent motels, hotels and restaurants Each trip would be three days in length, and take the visitor through a wide variety of country and experiences.

TRIP NO. 1 could be from Kamloops up the Yellowhead Route, through its pass and into the resort town of Jasper in one day. The second day would be an exciting drive south on the Jasper-Banff Highway through the grey ramparts of the Rockies and past the Columbia Ice Fields to Lake Louise. End of second day.

The third day would consist of a run through Yoho National Park and over the famed Rogers Pass, down through Glacier National Park, along Shuswap Lake and into Kamloops again that evening.

Trip No. 2 is shorter on spectacular scenery, but heavy on gentler beauty.

TRIP NO. 2 follows No. 1 to the juncture of Highway 16 and then turns northwest, roughly following the famous Fraser River, a small and placid stream there compared to rivers nearer the coast. The new highway runs through logging country and vast areas untouched by progress until it reaches Prince George, a hustling, bustling city very much aware of progress.

After a night in one of the city's numerous motels and hotels, take Highway 97 south 260 miles to Cache Creek and then turn east on the Trans-Canada Highway through 50 miles of ranching and lake country back into Kamloops on the third day.

On Trip No. 1, the traveler could continue east from Jasper into Alberta or south from Golden at the east end of the Rogers Pass, down the infinitely interesting Windermere Valley, or one could turn south into the Okanagan Valley, called the California of Canada.

OR ON TRIP No. 2, Highway 16 leads 467 miles west to Prince Rupert through an amazing variety of scenery. From Prince Rupert, an ultra-modern ferry connects thrice-weekly with Vancouver Island. But arrange reservations first.

Or at Cache Creek, the highway continues south down the Thompson and Fraser Valleys and through the Fraser Valley to the exciting, cosmopolitan waterfront city of Vancouver.

On Trip 1, the traveler need have no fear of a lack or shortage of first class accommodation or dining. On Trip 2, the link between the Highway 16 junction,and Prince George will be short on good accommodations until the supply catches up to the demand.

The Travel Pages

Things They Leave Behind

THE GREAT 12th Century Prambanan Hindu Temple in Jogjakarta on Java is only a few minutes away from an air conditioned hotel room and but two hours flying time from Djakarta. Tourists come there from all over the world to see the performances of the famed Ramayana Ballet over the four nights of the full moon of each summer and autumn month. The 1969 performances: June 27, 28, 29, and 30; July 26, 27, 28, and 29; Aug. 27, 28, 29 and 30; Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27, and Oct. 24, 25, 26 and 27.

It's not unusual for the traveling American to leave a toothbrush or some other item behind, particularly on overnight stops. But a wife, two children, and an ocelot?

It happened last year, according to reports from motor lodge managers to the Howard Johnson Co. headquarters.

The lost-and-found rooms of hotels and motels across the country are usually crammed with cameras, purses, gloves, earrings, hats, glasses, neckties and pajamas, just to name a few of the ordinary items left behind by guests. Most eventually are returned to their owners.

BUT WHAT COULD have been on the mind of the woman who left behind an expensive full-length sable coat? Or those who forget mink stoles and jackets?

The winter months see lodges in New England and the western states with an oversupply of skis. But one guest was only half forgetful, or had only one leg—he left behind only one. Then there was the Californian who was on a surfing holiday and had to drive back 100 miles to pick up his surfboard.

Who are the most forgetful travelers? In general, men can't seem to remember hats and sunglasses, and often—as their mumbles over the phone indicate—their dentures.

CHILDREN USUALLY leave toys and favorite blankets.

But, according to Howard Johnson, it's the women who take top honors when it comes to forgetting.

Aside from leaving behind hair curlers by the dozens, cosmetics, wigs, falls—and even falsies—the female traveler can't seem to remember sundry other items that one would think are hard to forget. Diapers, bottles, portable cribs, garment bags filled with new clothing, fully packed lunch baskets, etc. etc. etc.

THE TRAVELING salesman is another breed of forgetters and it's almost unbelievable some of the things he leaves behind. One motor lodge manager reported searching for the owner of four huge crates of pots and pans and another had to track down the guest who forgot 300 pounds of biscuit flour.

The number of books left behind would probably fill another Library of Congress. Most are paperbacks, apparently read to the finish and left for the next guest.

But there are lots of others. Most managers hold on to a particular type until called for in person by the owner. It's an unwritten rule in the hotel trade never to forward the classic "little black book" to the guest's home address. It could mean trouble if the little woman gets her hands on it.

Sequel Surpasses The Original

EVAN S. CONNELL
The Bridges are back

MR. BRIDGE by Evan S. Connell; Knopf, 369 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

"Mrs. Bridge" appeared in 1959, and Evan Connell's Kansas City heroine, shielded from a world she scarcely realized was there, shortly became a classic.

Her rigid, righteous husband, who labored long hours at his law office to maintain her in proper emptiness, played only a minor role in her drama.

Now Connell examines their life again, in the big house in the nice part of Kansas City. The time is in the Thirties, and there are the same daily little happenings we read about before, the same annoyances, the same cast, but now with Mr. Bridge at center stage.

It is a masterful work; in fact, Connell has brought off that rarity, a sequel better than the original book; better it seems to me, because Mr. Bridge is a more complex person than his ineffectual little wife.

Connell builds, usually with formidable effect, in brief, fragmentary little episodes, that mirrored exactly the trival bits and pieces that made up Mrs. Bridge's day, and the reader may find, as this one did, that there are places where this approach seems contrived in Mr. Bridge's larger world.

Much more is going on in his life; he moves in the big world of finance, politics, the law, as it is in Kansas City. Far more people, his secretary, clients, colleagues, employees, in addition to the family, make claims on him.

Through Mr. Bridge's eyes we come to see the three children, more clearly than we ever did, filtered through their mother's fond gaze. For determined as he is to keep on viewing the world the way he wants it to be, he cannot help but see shrewdly into his children, and what he sees is often bewildering, and painful.

He does not think of expressing his anguish as the distance widens between himself and the growing children, nor for that matter can he express the deep tenderness he feels toward his childish wife. Characteristically, he deals with such feelings by working even longer hours away from them all.

By his unrelenting labor he has accomplished the American dream, and yet something, somehow, has gone wrong, and it can not all be put on the Roosevelt administration. All the uptight, reticent Midwestern virtues are his — courage, honesty, hard work, endurance to the point of obstinancy, and also the avarice, narrowness and bigotry that so often accompany them. (It is interesting that the Negro maid has become a drinker in "Mr. Bridge." Problems of race are far more vexing to him, than to Mrs. Bridge, more naive as we all were in 1959.)

It is typical of the man that he can reflect, with no trace of selfpity, that in his well-ordered life he has never known joy— " . . . satisfaction, yes, and a pleasure of several sorts, and pride, and possibly a feeling which might be called 'rejoicing' . . . There were many such feelings, but none of them should be called 'joy'."

Mr. Bridge seems destined to haunt the American consciousness as persistently as Mrs. Bridges has done.

Krishnamurti On Freeing Of The Mind

FREEDOM FROM THE KNOWN by J. Krishnamurti; Harper & Row, 124 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

J. Krishnamurti, India-born lecturer, writer and teacher, burst upon the Bay Area scene with a series of addresses carried by television station KQED (Channel 9).

The series is over, but interest in the man and his beliefs no doubt continues.

Those persuaded or intrigued by his TV lectures will be interested in his new book, "Freedom from the Known," subtitled "A Synthesis of what Krishnamurti has to say about the human predicament and the eternal problems of living."

What he is saying is that people are the prisoners of their own past. It is there that all the violence and the dishonesties and other problems that are plaguing the world have their roots. As long as we are so instituted, we cannot escape our personal responsibility for the wars, the intolerance, the injustice. The world as it exists today is not a pretty place as Krishnamurti sees it.

What can we do about it? We must each of us break with our past individually, not gradually, but suddenly and completely. What we need, he says, "is a mind completely free of society . . . (that) can see the truth of a life in which there is no conflict at all." We must shed principles, beliefs and ideals for, since we invariably act contradictorily, these only lead to confusion and conflict and to hypocrisy and a dishonest life.

"To come upon truth the mind must be completely free, without a spot of distortion," he says.

And: "There is no leader, there is no teacher, there is nobody to tell you what to do. You are alone in this mad and brutal world."

Also: "A living mind is a still mind, a living mind is a mind that has no center and therefore no space and time. Such a mind is limitless and that is the only truth, that is the only reality."

It is interesting to note that this sage from Madras and the group of Western psychiatrists who have embraced Transactional Analysis — see the review of Dr. Thomas Harris' "I'm OK — You're OK" on these pages in the April 26 issue of the Marin Magazine — have reached remarkably similar conclusions.

Both stress the responsibility of the individual for his own conduct and spiritual health. Both emphasize the importance of the present over past or future. Both tell us that we can change ourselves, Transactional Analysis says by freeing the Adult within us from contamination by the Child or Parent, Krishnamurti says by liberating our minds by rejecting the inward authority (Child and Parent?) that has been built up within us by our experiences, ideas, ideals, etc.

"When we look at ourselves with the dead authority of yesterday," he advises, "we will fail to understand the living movement (of the moment) and the beauty and quality of that movement."

Whereas the Transactional Analysis proponents have striven for a simplicity of language and explanation of their movement, Krishnamurti is extremely subtle in his expressions and sometimes difficult to follow, commanding the total meditation and awareness which he says are so vital.

Meditation, he says, in differing with some other Eastern teachers, is not simply concentration: "Meditation is not following any system; it is not constant repetition and imitation . . . Meditation demands an astonishingly alert mind . . . Meditation is to be aware of every thought and of every feeling, never to say it is right or wrong, but just to watch it and move with it . . . To observe in such a way is discipline, and that kind of discipline is fluid, free, not the discipline of conformity."

Design and typography have been accorded the most careful attention and professional skill, making the book something to be treasured.

A Human Being From A Legend

HOUDINI: THE UNTOLD STORY by Milbourne Christopher; Crowell, 281 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Christopher, a magician of renown, manages to perform the literary trick of transforming a legend into a human being.

Houdini, world famed as a magician and escape artist, is described in all his facets . . . a flop in vaudeville, the first man to fly an airplane in Australia, and a fiery debunker of spiritualism.

Christopher, who has the largest collection of Houdini memorabilia in the world, spent years compiling his story — talking to those who knew Houdini, playing theaters that Houdini played, and referring to Houdini's unpublished letters, documents and scrapbooks.

The rise of the son of a poor Hungarian immigrant from poverty to a world-wide attraction is as dramatic as one of Houdini's escapes, and Christopher captures it all, particularly Houdini's triumphs in Europe, land of his birth.

In true storybook style, Houdini was on the brink of giving up his vaudeville career when success came and stayed until his death.

One of the interesting side issues is the running feud between Houdini and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, over spiritualism, that developed into a bitter rift between the two.

There a full rundown on Houdini's film career and the many illustrations in the book include scenes from these movies.

The Engineering Mentality And The Devastation It Has Wrought

By DON KEOWN

AMERICA THE RAPED by Gene Marine; Simon and Schuster, 312 pages, $5.95.

Given the definition that "a weed is a form of life that crowds out others by moving in and taking over the room and nutrients," Gene Marine then goes on to label the human race "the worst, most persistent, most ubiquitous weed in the history of the planet."

In his brilliantly conceived and angrily executed book, "America the Raped," Marine, a veteran and skilled muckraker, charges that "the biggest problem America faces from within is that Engineers do its thinking."

He explains that "Engineers" with a capital E does not (necessarily) mean engineers alone or all engineers.

"The rape of America is being perpetrated not merely by men with hard hats and surveying instruments (though such men are by no means excluded), but by men in a number of professions who have in common an 'engineering mentality,' the capacity to approach problems only in the way that the least imaginative and most robotic of engineers approach them."

They are men who continue blindly to plan for an automatic growth rate and who never pause to question the advisability of or necessity for that growth, he says.

And they are men utterly lacking in any understanding of or appreciation for ecology.

They are men who react almost instinctively with quick and usually costly solutions to small problems, and thereby very often create greater problems. And they are experts, thereafter, in persuading the public that the "fractures" they have inflicted "are good for society."

Behind Marine's wrath are a lot of travel, research and careful documentation of evidence supporting the indictment in his subtitle: "The Engineering Mentality and the Devastation of a Continent."

Man's basic and perhaps fatal error, according to Marine, is his inability to comprehend the importance to him of his relationship with other living things and resources.

He writes: "Few people have yet reached the idea of the conservation of genetic information — the idea that we ought to keep every species of animal or plant alive, and in its own ectosystem, because we have no way of knowing what characteristics of that animal or plant or microbe may some day prove to be in some way valuable. . . .

"Everything fits together. Everything. And nobody seems to care, least of all the Engineers."

And: "No one . . . seems to understand that the best reason for the preservation of wilderness areas is not esthetics but ecology; the need, not just the desirability, of preserving ectosystems, and sometimes vast ones, for study."

He is not denouncing all logging, all bridge-building, all highway construction. But, he claims, we can have our buildings, our power, our transportation, etc., without ruining essential environmental areas if we at least pause to consider the side effects of our grand, often grandiose, engineering schemes and exercise some sense of objectivity and selectivity.

Marine puts it this way: "We should save — not everything we can't replace, for we can't replace a single stone or blade of grass — but everything that is ecologically meaningful, every living species, every remaining essentially undisturbed ectosystem, from Redwood Creek to the Great Basin to the Great Swamp."

Instead, he says, we have swallowed the line of the Engineers that concepts like ecology, beauty and history have little or no place in the construction of a technological society.

Marine has compiled a horrifying and absolutely damning list of examples of the Engineering mentality at work, eliminating species, ruining streams, devastating beaches, polluting lakes, razing forests, leveling terrain.

"When there is a buck," he charges, "someone will do his best to find a way; and if he's caught, he'll find a way to tell you that it's all, really, good for you." Consequently, "it becomes difficult to convince people that the forests were larger, not smaller, before the lumbermen came."

The federal government with its Bureau of Reclamation and its Army Corps of Engineers harbors some of the worst, he says. Even Former Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall emerges as something far short of the hero admired by many conservationists. Then there are the Engineers employed by lesser governments, by utilities, by other private industries. Local politicians, developers, chambers of commerce, sometimes even conservationists fall into the trap.

They are men, says Marine, "who can't think straight, (who) succeed in convincing Americans that there is some sort of determinism about the way things grow — when in fact we can control automobiles, and even populations, far more easily than we can control rivers or estuaries."

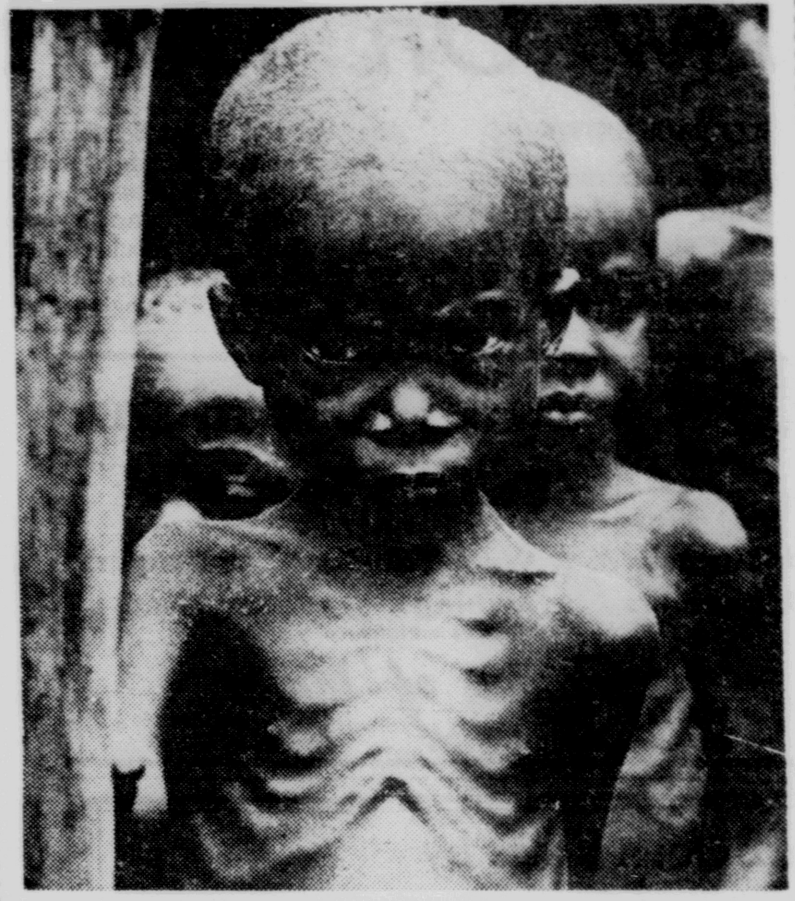
We would not tolerate a madman roaming the world's libraries and randomly destroying books with their precious information. Yet we do tolerate the wanton destruction of species and ecological systems that are an even more valuable and irreplaceable source of knowledge.

The time to stop, says Gene Marine, is now.

He says it sometimes in savage anger and sometimes with slashing satire, and he says it also out of sadness over the immense damage that has already been done and can never be repaired.

He repeats Herbert J. Muller's accusation: "No animal is so stupid as a human fool." But he hopes, without any great amount of supporting evidence, that the time of the fool and wastrel is coming to an end — that we are about to depart the era of the Engineer for the era of the Ecologist.

Marine's well-written and compelling book might prove the very instrument to turn the tide. If so, it will be easily the most important volume to appear in the 1960s.



THE TRAGEDY and horror of what has taken place in Biafra is mirrored in the haunting faces and shriveled bodies of these children without hope in a refugee camp near Aba. The photograph is from "Biafra Journal" by Michael Mok, a veteran war correspondent, who writes: "Nothing I had seen in Korea, Vietnam or during the Arab-Israeli War was adequate preparation for the agony that waited in the rain forest." Along with Mok's moving and informative "personal report on a people in agony," the book contains 60 photographs of the kind you will not soon forget. Time-Life Books is the publisher of the book that sells for $3.95 hardcover, $1.95 softcover.

"YOUR PERSONAL Guide to Successful Retirement" (Random House, $3.95) is a softcover manual prepared by Sidney Margolius, the finance expert and author of "Consumer's Guide to Better Buying."

In his new book Margolius covers such topics as retirement planning, amount and sources of income including social security and other benefits, health care, living cost controls, wills and other personal affairs, and the use of the new leisure time.

It is much like other manuals that have been published in the field, done in considerable detail by a highly regarded authority and completely up-to-date.

YOUNG SAN Francisco poet Charles Upton describes his "Panic Grass," just published by City Lights as part of its softcover Pocket Poets Series, as "the late 1967 section of my life" and as "a ceremonial declaration extending the major empowering blindness of the world to the threshold of its own consummation." He also calls it a "secessionist poem."

It is a summation and a warning of both physical and spiritual disasters, an indictment of our present sins, a prediction of worse to come:

"The hammer is falling!/ Prophecies of the ravaged nightfall stalk the muttering wardens of dawn!/ Look to the forgotten among you, if you want more gambling time in this arena."

"The course is mapped in bedrock, the timetable is in the air," he concludes.

Not a hopeful or soothing poem, but an excellent example of the anger and alienation of so many of our young people.

THE UNIVERSITY of Wisconsin Press, which has been especially active in the publication of translations of novels and other literature by Scandinavians, has added "World Light" by Iceland's Nobel Prize for Literature winner, Halldor Laxness, to its Nordic lists. Set in Iceland in the early 20th Century, the big novel tells of one man's search in a poverty-stricken land for beauty and meaning in life. The price: $7.95.

THE LATEST in McGraw-Hill's Color Slide Program of the Great Masters series is "Picasso."

Like its predecessors, it contains a comparatively brief but authoritative and informative text (this one by John Galloway of Oakland University's department of art), a portfolio of 20 color slides of the subject artist's finest work keyed into pointed discussions of each painting, and additional illustrations in black and white accompanying the text.

The color slide idea remains one of the most imaginative and effective methods of presenting an art subject in book form yet devised.

Of Picasso, Galloway writes: "Few artists have equalled Picasso's impact upon our way of seeing. . . . Picasso's leadership as both pioneer and activist of modern art is indisputable . . ." He notes the once revolutionary Picasso is now subjected to criticism for his "conservative" adherence "to themes rooted in visual reality instead of creating totally abstract forms," but adds: "But no later art . . . has more stridently challenged us than did (Picasso's) Cubism."

Sleuths & Suspense

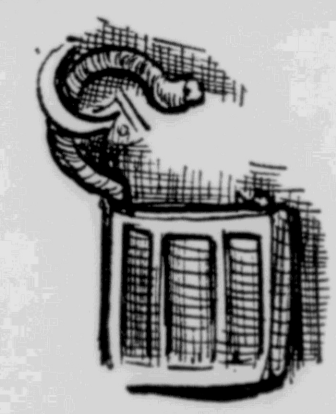
Julian Symons demonstrates again that he is one of the very best of Britain's many fine writers of suspense fiction.

"The Man Whose Dreams Came True" is Tony, a rogue, clever and opportunistic, but without the courage to become a real criminal. Then he encounters a scheming woman who proves to be the cataylist that catapults him into the more serious sins.

Symons weaves an engaging and convincing plot as he records the total deterioration of an already weak character.



No doubt there are many, many Tonys around, ambitious and amoral, but lacking the steel to make their dreams come true. And many women anxious to use them for their own ends. And many dreams that turn into nightmares.

New On The Stereo Scene

By DELOS SMITH

A recorded reconstruction of a "Schubertiad" turns out to be an excellent pianist and an excellent soprano playing and singing a well chosen selection from the works of Franz Schubert.

The pianist was Jorg Demus, the soprano, Elly Ameling.

A "Schubertiad" was an evening gathering of Schubert and his friends in the home of one of the friends, for singing and piano-playing amidst warm conviviality.

Demus, playing an 1835 Viennese piano accompanies Miss Ameling through her singing of six Schubert familiars and then plays 12 Schubert piano pieces classified as "landler." They performed expertly but simply, which can be accepted to mean "intimately," and so the illusion of "Schubertiad" was conjured (Victrola-1405).

From Schubert one may jump to Conlon Nancarrow, if one has the stomach for it. He is, you may know a dabbler among contemporary composers whose thing is to compose for player piano directly onto piano rolls. This he does by punching the rolls with a puncher.

His audiences are necessarily limited. Player pianos were never common and not very many survive.

A recording to 12 of his "Studies for Player Piano" was made from his own player piano in his studio in Mexico City, and there is no doubt the man is both resourceful and clever. As the record jacket says, he produced "unbelievable sounds."

From Nancarrow it is hardly any jump at all to John Pfeiffer whose thing is "electronomusic," meaning music made by no musical instrument whether conventional or improvised but by manipulating electronic sounds into satires of traditional forms and styles. Hence his nine pieces are called "Images" and they are, he feels, an advance beyond mere "electronic music." (Victrola-1371).

This reviewer found it easy and pleasant to go from Pfeiffer to Jean Sebelius, a name not often mentioned any more. His last two symphonies, the Sixth and the Seventh, have been earnestly recorded by Herbert von Karajan with the Berlin Philharmonic. If "electronic music" is the future, Karajan makes the past magnetically attractive. (Deutsche - Grammophon Ampex tape version-9032).

Marin Poets' Corner

ONE OF THE LEAST OF THESE

White hair of thin untidy strands
Tied back with feeble shaking hands
Atop each wav'ring wrinkled head
Has marked the life of care they led.

Dark sockets outline vacant stares
Of old ones crumpled on their chairs
With lips apart in soundless hums
That reveal their toothless gums.

Almost forgotten souls are they
Whom relatives have put away;
Almost neglected, left to die,
While nurses carefully hide a sigh.

Yet children came that blessed day,
Their flowers made to give away,
While singing of the One above
Who gave both young and old His love.

New light sparked in those sightless eyes:
Lined faces creased with pleased surprise,
As hoary heads nod to the tune
Which told that Christ was coming soon.

Who knows what joy a deed may bring
To those who've lost the youth of spring,
When those who follow Christ's command
Extend a loving helping hand?

Some Plants That Lend A Tropical Flair

Marin's climate is close enough to the borderline between temperate and tropical that its gardeners can choose from among the plants that thrive in both temperature zones.

True, in selecting tropical trees, shrubs and plants, they sometimes run the risk of losing out to a hard frost.

But, compensating for that element of risk, is the exotic appearance of many of these tropical plantings. They add a perfect touch of distinction to the landscape that sets it apart from neighboring yards.

A FEW well-chosen, lush tropical plants properly placed convert the most simply-designed house into a showplace.

One of the more popular tropicals with Californians is the big-leafed Tropical Philodendron. It comes in a number of varieties with differing leaf structures, but all sport a deep green foliage with massive elephant-ear like leaves.

Medium-sized tropical shrubs which do very well in Marin County are the glossy-leafed Aralia, the Gold Dust Plant and the Egyptian Reed. Also the Dracaena Palm.

THE YUCCA and the Banana Tree are somewhat less hardy and more subject to frost and wind damage, but can be, and are, grown in sheltered locations. Don't expect fruit from your banana tree. In Marin, it is purely an ornamental, but a most attractive one.

Aralias have a soft green foliage. Their large leaves are deeply lobed. And the growth habit is most striking.

Gold Dust Plants are shade lovers and boast pointed leaves that are speckled or spotted with gold. It is an excellent landscape plant.

EGYPTIAN REED or Cyperus papyrus has tall, reed-like stems with unique umbrella-like heads.

Ornamental bananas have great long leaves with red mid-ribs, reaching 12 to 15 feet. Yuccas have rigid fronds that are a lighter shade of green than the Dracaena Palm leaves. Landscapers sometimes group a few Yuccas together at different angles to attain an interesting effect.

NO DISCUSSION of tropical plantings would be complete without a mention of the Hibiscus.

It, too, may conk out on you if the winter is severe. But its special beauty makes it well worth the risk. Nothing seems to spell out more attractively the romantic flavor and fragrance of the tropics than does the Hibiscus.

Marinites Are Discovering Beauty Of The Tree Rose

More Tree Roses than ever before are going into the ground in Marin this spring.

For one thing, container rose sales generally are up because the excessively wet winter prohibited most gardeners from planting new shrubs during the bareroot or dormant season.

FOR ANOTHER, more and more Marinites have discovered in recent years the beauty and fragrance of the Tree Rose, particularly as an accent plant.

Some of the loveliest and most popular rose varieties are available in tree form, including All-American winners and the almost unbelievable bi-color introductions of recent years.

You can use Tree Roses in striking border plantings along driveway and walks, or tuck one or more of the taller-growing plants in a background planting where the huge head of bright blooms will add a color accent to surrounding shrubbery.

OR YOU CAN plant Tree Roses in containers for up-close enjoyment — or highlight an entryway through the yard to your door with the color bearers.

Nurserymen, besides having a good selection of Tree Roses, also have climbers and bush-form roses in containers.

Plant roses as you would any container-grown plant by preparing a planting hole larger than the soil around the roots.

Stake Tree Roses to prevent wind damage and water and feed regularly so the plants can continue to provide spring to winter beauty.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓ There is still plenty of time to plant tomato plants, as well as the seeds for such hot weather vegetables as corn, beans, cucumbers and squash.

✓ Visit your neighborhood nursery now for a flower show. Shrubs, vines, annuals, perennials are all in bloom, and can be transferred to your garden for immediate color.

✓ After spring flowering bulbs such as tulips, hyacinths and daffodils stop blooming, water them occasionally and allow the tops to die naturally. Do not remove the green leaves if you want good flowers next year.

✓ For a Mother's Day gift, consider a flowering plant or blooming shrub, and remember that nurseries are open on Sunday.

✓ As azaleas, rhododendrons and camellias complete their blooming, apply an acid-type plant food. Fuchsias and tuberous begonias, heavy feeders should be fertilized regularly.

Fir Isn't The Only Plywood

Handyman's Page

Because fir plywood is the kind you usually get when you walk into a lumberyard and ask merely for plywood, most persons are unaware of the many varieties of this material.

The two basic kinds of plywood are interior and exterior. Both are made in the same manner: by gluing together sheets of veneer, usually at right angles to one another. But the exterior type is bonded with a special adhesive designed for permanent outside exposure.

The two basic classes of plywood are softwood and hardwood.

THE POPULAR fir falls into the softwood category, along with pine, cedar, redwood, larch, cypress and many others. The hardwoods include walnut, oak, birch, maple, mahognay and cherry.

Incidentally, the designation depends on the kind of wood used for the face or top veneer.

Within the types and classes of plywood are several grades, most of which refer to the appearance of the face and back. A-A grade is tops; A-B indicates an excellent face, with a slightly less perfect appearance on the back; A-C and A-D grades are used where only one side of the panel will be seen in the finished project.

WHY is fir plywood the best seller?

BECAUSE IT is the least expensive yet has tremendous strength. However, it requires the use of a special sealer to prevent its wild grain from coming through the finish coat.

There are two kinds of fir plywood sealer: one for use on wood which is to be finished with a transparent material, such as varnish, shellac or lacquer; the other for wood which is to be painted. Hardwood plywoods are treated in the same manner as solid hardwood.

Those who have worked with regular lumber are surprised to find, when they make their first purchase of plywood, that the dimensions are exact. That is, if you buy a piece of half-inch plywood four feet by eight feet, those are its measurements.

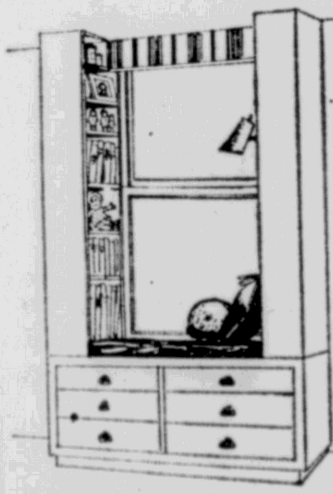
A BIG advantage of plywood is that it is not susceptible to splitting, even when nails and screws are driven close to the panel edges.

When cutting plywood with a table or radial saw, the good side of the plywood should be face up. When using a portable power saw, the good side should be face down. With a handsaw, it should be face up.

In drilling small-diameter holes in plywood with either hand or power drills, use a piece of wood behind the panel to avoid splintering if the appearance of that side of the panel is important.

For large holes, using a brace and bit, employ the same technique, but instead of going straight through, stop as soon as the point of the bit appears. Reverse the panel and work from the other side to complete the hole.

Fancy Sitting



THE KIDS will love this useful window seat. With bookcase sides turned toward the seat, it becomes a private hideaway. Underneath, 18-inch-deep drawers serve as a standard dresser. Use two 10-inch pine boards for the sides, one-by-12s for the remainder.

The only medication that

Gets to a Major Cause of Hemorrhoids

Now! Most complete 3-way relief!

Important development: unlike every other hemorrhoid product, Counternoid™ works in 3 ways:
1. Lessens pain fast.
2. Coats, soothes and protects injured tissue.
3. Gets to a major cause of hemorrhoids: painful hard constipation.

In hospital X-ray tests, doctors have demonstrated that the exclusive Counternoid formulation with DSS_{16}™ penetrates in minutes to the top of the rectal area to soften the stool and ease the bowel movement, to make natural healing possible.
Remember: Counternoid. For temporary relief of minor hemorrhoid troubles. The most complete 3-way relief you can get without a prescription or without surgery. At all drug counters.

AN ATTACK ON LITTER

Ernest Maris (foreground), leader of a small conservationist group called Terra Nova, leads volunteers in a cleanup of a Strawberry Point beach at Richardson Bay. The youths turned out this morning and will be at the beach again tomorrow from about 9:30 a.m. Maris, of Kentfield, intends to lead the group in a beach cleanup all the way around San Francisco Bay, gathering volunteers as they go. About 15 persons were at work today. (Independent-Journal photo)

No $175,000 Federal Aid For Library

The anticipated $175,000 federal grant to help finance the new county library branch building in Novato has fallen through because there wasn't enough money in the pot.

Higher prioritites knocked the Novato project off the list, Asst. Marin County Administrator John F. Barrows reported.

OWNS SITE

The county already owns the 1.5-acre site and has been accumulating the balance of the $573,710 for the past three years by setting aside some of the county library tax proceeds in a capital inprovement fund.

County Librarian Bruce D. Bajema, saying the need for a large library in Novato was critical, explained there were now four alternative plans for financing the project.

These are that funds could be raised through an extra one-year tax; through an extra tax over a two-year period; by continuing to save money each year, though this would put the building off about three years; or through a loan from the county retirement fund, said Bajema.

'NO REAL RISK'

Borrowing from the retirement fund is probably the best overall method of providing the financing, he said. He said the procedure is legal and such a loan would be "no real risk."

Bajema reported circulation at the present Novato branch is going up "astoundingly" each month and would probably show an even more dramatic increase if there were an adequate building.

"A lot of people don't use it because it is so small they can't find what they want at this point," Bajema said. The library is located in the Tresch building on South Novato Boulevard. It is about one-fifth the size recommended for the North Marin area served, Bajema said.

Agents Nab Tam Valley Suspects

A 24-year-old Tamalpais Valley man, who has been spending a weekend a month in jail for selling marijuana, was rearrested yesterday and accused by narcotics agents of being a large scale heroin dealer.

Federal, state and county drug agents surrounded the home of the suspect, Jan Daniel DeBruyn, at 240 Cleveland Avenue about 4 p.m. and nabbed him as he attempted to flee up a hill.

Arrested with him was a young woman who shares his home, Sandra Tsegeletos, 21, who was working in a garden when agents arrived.

SALE ALLEGED

A federal undercover agent said DeBruyn sold him a half ounce of extremely high quality heroin for $400 recently in a deal consummated in a car in Southern Marin. DeBruyn allegedly bragged that he could get him 50 ounces if the agent wanted it.

The agent said that the half ounce would "sell on the streets" for $7,000, making 50 ounces worth $700,000.

"This heroin was 55 per cent pure, compared to the usual 4 or 5 per cent quality we see," the agent said.

A second sale never was made, however.

James Schwedhelm, head of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, said that he had begun to hear rumors about DeBruyn's heroin business a couple of months ago.

'KIDS HOOKED'

"We also are hearing of more and more kids in Marin being hooked on heroin," he added.

Seized at DeBruyn's home yesterday were one plastic bag of heroin, several barbiturates and a small quantity of hashish.

Agents also found an assortment of television sets, stereo equipment and cameras which they believed could have been taken in payment for drugs.

Since the articles turned out to be stolen, DeBruyn and Miss Tsegeletos were also booked on suspicion of possessing stolen property as well as possessing heroin, hashish and dangerous drugs.

DeBruyn was taken to San Francisco to face the additional federal charge of selling heroin. He will be arraigned in U.S. District Court Monday.

Miss Tsegeletos was held in Marin County Jail with bail set

Marin Feels Ripples Of Welfare Cutback

The Marin County Department of Public Social Services took steps yesterday to deny welfare to unmarried persons under 21 and employable single men to obtain public assistance.

Betty Presley, director of the department, issued orders to tighten up on welfare aid to these groups, following San Francisco's decision to cut off aid to them.

"It is essential that we rigidly enforce the residence requirement of 'presence with intent to reside'," said Miss Presley. "Persons who do not have a fixed address in the county will not be granted aid, as intent to reside is not established."

Even when a residence address is given, a home visit will be made before any aid is given, said Miss Presley. Also, the recipient must go through the department's employment service to show his genuine intent to seek work before aid is granted.

Miss Presley instructed her staff to examine carefully an applicant's last place of residence with particular attention to those from San Francisco.

"I need to determine the extent to which the San Francisco situation affects us, and will have to so report to the board of supervisors with recommendations depending on the severity of the problem."

The San Francisco Social Services Commission said Thursday it had decided to strike the single and unmarried groups from the welfare rolls because a U.S Supreme Court decision which banned residence requirements for welfare had depleted the available funds.

The decision was challenged yesterday by the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation. Peter Sitkin, an attorney for the organization, said he objected "to this discrimination among persons who are equally in need of assistance."

Reds Handed Heavy Loss At Da Nang

SAIGON (AP)— About 600 North Vietnamese were caught up in a fierce two-day battle with U.S. Marines south of Da Nang and by the time the last shot was fired today nearly one-fourth of the enemy was dead.

The fighting broke out yesterday in a stretch of scrub brush and banana groves about 18 miles southwest of Da Nang when some North Vietnamese were caught out in the open.

U.S. intelligence officers saw no connection between the battle and a suspected enemy buildup along the Laotian border, which came under heavy attack by U.S. B52 Stratofortresses yesterday and today.

Elsewhere, U.S. 25th Infantry Division troops blocking northwestern enemy approach routes to Saigon killed 92 North Vietnamese troops in two battles Friday raning from 23 to 37 miles northwest of Saigon. Two U.S. soldiers were killed and nine wounded.

The U.S. Command reported a U.S. OH6 observation helicopter had been shot down near the Cambodian border and its three crewmen were wounded. The loss raised to 2,609 the number of American helicopters lost to all causes in the Vietnam War.

An apparently stepped-up Viet Cong terrorist campaign in Saigon continued today. Two bombs exploded, one in a downtown area, and the other in the Chinese district of Cholon. Six Vietnamese were wounded.

Bomber Crashes, Crew Missing

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A B52 Stratofortress bomber crashed into the Pacific Ocean on takeoff from Anderson Air Force Base at Guam early today and the six-man crew was missing, the Strategic Air Command said.

A spokesman said the plane, loaded with 750 and 500-pound bombs, was starting on a strike against targets in South Vietnam.

Freeway Lanes Due Closure Tomorrow

The north and southbound center lanes of Highway 101 in San Rafael will be closed tomorrow and next Sunday from daylight to 11 a.m., according to Alan S. Hart, Division of Highways engineer.

The lanes will be closed to allow crews to repair damaged median guard rails, Hart said.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A fight closed a Southern California college, 45 students went to jail to study for final exams and a homespun philosopher entertained a Senate subcommittee as the nation's campuses by and large entered a peaceful weekend.

Forty-five Dartmouth College students yesterday were granted permission to take their textbooks along for a 30-day stay in the Grafton County, N.H., jail. The jail sentences, plus $100 fines, were meted out for the students' participation in a nightlong occupation of the Dartmouth administration building to protest the school's ROTC program. Nine others had their cases continued.

At Stanford University, members of the militant April 3rd Movement yesterday began preparations for a class boycott next week to coincide with a meeting of the school's board of trustees. Meanwhile, one of the trustees, William R. Hewlett, disclosed he has received two telephone death threats.

The April 3rd movement has held two sit-ins on the 11,000-student campus to protest war-related research. Seventy-two students were suspended after a May 1 seizure of Encina Hall.

A fistfight yesterday triggered a battle between 30 black and white students at Mount San Antonio College in the Los Angeles suburb of Walnut. Five white students were injured, one seriously.

A college spokesman said the fighting erupted during a meeting on a student body budget, including the proposed allocation of student body funds to minority groups on campus.

Some 20 sheriff's deputies were called to the campus after the disturbance broke out in the Student Center where about 1,000 of the school's 7,200 students were gathered. The school was closed for the remainder of the day.

Four of the injured students were treated at a hospital and released. The fifth, who was not identified, was in fair condition with a stab wound and a possible skull fracture.

In answering a question from a student delegate to the state con-

State Urged To Moralize Its Schools

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A state Board of Education committee is studying a report linking some teaching techniques with "revolutionary groups" seeking to "destroy American culture and traditions."

The 31-page report was accepted by the board Thursday, but Board President Howard Day said the acceptance did not represent an endorsement.

The report, entitled "Guidelines For Moral Instruction in California's Schools," criticized "humanist" education, the work of educator John Dewey and anthropologist Margaret Meade, the United Nations, the film industry, group therapy and sensitivity training.

"There is much evidence that teachers are being trained in this (humanist) school and are

Marin Advisers Draft Antidrug, Drink Drive

Two programs aimed at alcohol and drug problems in Marin will be presented to the board of supervisors this month by the Community Planning Group for Alcohol-Drug Addiction Problems.

One program is designed to reach teen-agers with drug use problems and would be run by Catholic Social Services. Teens would be served on a referral basis from agencies such as the courts and schools, Guy Bachelis, a member of the planning group, said.

The group gave preliminary approval to the plan at a meeting yesterday. Estimated cost, to be paid by the county, is $10,000. It would cover costs of lectures and other expenses for a series of eight seminars, Bachelis said.

The program is in response to a request from the county to find ways to decrease court costs resulting from drug problems, Bachelis said.

The second recommendation is for an interdepartment council of heads of government agencies for better utilization of resources.

In other business yesterday, the group heard A. Miguel Rodriguez of Point Reyes Station, representing the North Bay Human Development Corp., suggest using youthful counselors from the California Youth Authority to talk with drug suppliers in a program to try to screen drug sales.

Rodriguez said that suppliers and drug users would be located by the CYA counselors, who themselves would be former drug users.

Mark Issue Becomes Bonn Election Issue

By WELLINGTON LONG

BONN (UPI)—West Germany's governing coalition jittered today because of dissention over its decision against revaluing the mark.

Government sources said the dispute over whether to revalue had transferred strain from the currency to the regime itself.

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and his Christian Democrats won the struggle with Socialist coalition members over how to confront Europe's latest monetary crisis. But though the Socialists warned the decision could be disastrous, they stopped short of threatening to quit the government.

Both rival parties already are jockeying for September's general elections.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a Socialist, had demanded in a letter to Kiesinger that the mark be immediately raised in value by 7 per cent to avoid inflation and return economic stability to Europe.

But kiesinger and his Christian Democrats agreed with German industrialists that revaluation would severely crimp the country's foreign trade and could imperil the economy at home.

The vote against revaluation was down party lines, 10-9.

Conrad Ahler, Kiesinger's chief spokesman, said the decision was "final...forever and eternal. I do not know how I can say it any clearer than this."

He also tried to dampen rumors of a government crisis over the decision and termed the vote a blow to both currency and political speculators.

How the decision will stand up will not be known at least until Monday, when money markets reopen. They had closed before the government's announcement, though Ahler had indicated as much earlier in the day.

News that the Germans would not alter the mark did take its toll on American currency exchanges, however, where the mark dropped sharply in heavy trading.

East Bay Chain Collision Fatal To One, Injures 11

HAYWARD (UPI) — An accident involving seven vehicles claimed the life of a Hayward business man and critically injured his son last night on the A-Street offramp of the Nimitz Freeway near Hayward.

Eleven other persons were injured in the chain collision, one of them seriously.

Dead was Mr. Robert Dale Swartz, about 45, who owned a Hayward concrete business and resided in San Lorenzo. His son, Robert Dale Jr., 22, was in serious condition at a Hayward hospital.

Police said the accident occurred when a cement truck in which the Swartz's were riding went out of control, smashed into a traffic island then piled into two autos moving in the opposite direction.

The big truck finally came to a halt by smashing into four autos waiting at a stop sign.

Charleston Curfew Hit By Minister

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—Charleston remained relatively calm under the ninth night of a dawn-to-dusk curfew last night, but a top civil rights leader warned the curfew "is splitting this town into two separate camps."

The Rev. Andrew Young, an official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) who is in the port city to lead striking Negro hospital workers, charged the curfew is "an attempt to suppress the workers' union."

Young told a news conference yesterday that during the previous seven nights police have arrested 151 Negroes for curfew violations and only eight whites.

There has been no break in the impasse in the seven-week-old labor dispute between the Negro hospital workers and two Charleston hospitals. A meeting between Gov. Robert E. McNair and union officials in Columbia failed to produce any results yesterday.

Belli To Enter Sirhan's Case

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—The attorney who defended Jack Ruby for killing President John F. Kennedy's assassin says he may handle the appeal for the man convicted of killing Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Melvin Belli of San Francisco announced yesterday he has been invited to handle Sirhan B. Sirhan's appeal of his murder conviction in the death of the late President's brother last June 5.

"They've (Sirhan's family) contacted me before," he said. "They want me to do the appeal."

However, Sirhan's mother, Mary, said in Pasadena, "I can't comment (on Belli's statement) because I don't know that much about it."

And Sirhan's chief defense counsel, Grant Cooper, said he knew nothing about Belli entering the case.

Justice On Payroll Of A Foundation Set Up By Wolfson's Business Partner

WASHINGTON UPI) — Tax records show that in 1967 Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas was the only paid officer of a Los Angeles foundation named for Albert Parvin, who reportedly was involved in the stock manipulation case that sent financier Louis E. Wolfson to jail.

The Albert Parvin Foundation's federal tax return for 1967 shows that Douglas, who is both president and a director of the organization, was paid $12,000 for a variety of services while none of the other foundation officers received compensation.

The Los Angeles Times said yesterday that Parvin had been named as a coconspirator but not a defendant in the Securities and Exchange Commission's case against Wolfson, who has been convicted on a charge of trading unregistered stock and is now serving a one-year prison term.

Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas confirmed last Sunday that in 1966 he received and returned an unspecified amount of money sent him by the Wolfson Family Foundation. He is said to have kept the money for 11 months, returning it only a few days after Douglas' connection with the Parvin Foundation was revealed and shortly after Wolfson was indicted.

The Parvin Foundation's 1967 tax return also shows that Fortas' wife, a noted tax lawyer who practices as Carolyn Agger with his former firm of Arnold and Porter, was retained in November, 1966, to evaluate the foundation's tax-free status.

Although her fee was not disclased, the foundation's 1966 return carries the entry: "Miscellaneous expense — professional fees —$16,058."

Douglas has come under severe criticism from several members of Congress, particularly Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., because of the Parvin Foundation's financial holdings in Nevada gambling casinos and his continued relationship with the foundation.

The 1967 return, latest the foundation has filed, shows it added $101,340 to its tax-exempt assets from the sale of its interest in "custodian accounts" held by the Hotel Flamingo, Las Vegas.

The foundation's return also shows that it owned about $500,000 worth of stock in the Parvin-Dohrmann Co., a hotel supply and equipment business which owned three Las Vegas casinos. Parvin was then a partner in the company.

Earlier this month, the Securities and Exchange Commission confirmed that its staff was conducting a "routine inquiry" into recent and current trading of Parvin-Dohrmann stock, according to a Wall Street Journal report. The newspaper said trading in the stock was suspended on the American Exchange until the investigation was concluded.

It was Williams who first called attention in 1966 to Douglas' connection with the Parvin foundation. At that time, Douglas wrote Chief Justice Earl Warren that "historically, many justices have had outside activities." He said in the letter that "there has been no conflict whatsoever between the foundation and my work on the court."

Douglas did not disclose in his letter how much he was being paid by the foundation, what his responsibilities were or how much of his time he devoted to it.

Panthers Doing Better Job Than U.S. Feeding Pupils?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "The Black Panthers are supplying more free breakfasts to California school children than the federal government does," says the top Democrat in California's lower legislative house.

Jess Unruh, former Assembly speaker and now minority leader, made the statement yesterday before the U.S. Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs as it held a one-day hearing here.

Unruh, D-Inglewood, criticized Gov. Ronald Reagan for what Unruh termed "purposely or blindly refusing to recognize that the problem of hunger exists."

"I think it's rather interesting that no representative of the governor's office is here today," he added.

The committee counsel said no reply was received to an invitation sent the Republican governor by the committee chairman, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Unruh's reference to the Black Panthers was in note that the militant Negro group supplies free breakfasts to hundreds of Negro needy children in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Robert L. Gnaizda, deputy director of the California Rural Legal Assistance organization, said only 10 per cent of the state's needy children get free school lunches and offered the community of Nipomo in San Luis Obispo County as an example.

He said there are 1,120 needy children in a unified school district there and that only 14 receive free lunches.

"The rest cannot afford the 30-cent subsidized lunches the middle class children buy," Gnaizda said.

Superviser Arley L. Howsden of Butte County in North Central California testified that unemployment has averaged 11 per cent there for the past 10 years and hit 23 per cent last winter. But a three-member majority of the board of supervisors has opposed all federal aid programs except subsidies for ranch owners, Howsden said.

Illness Stalls Court-Martial

FORT ORD (UPI) — The mutiny court-martial of 14 stockade prisoners from the Presidio of San Francisco will be delayed more than a week because of the illness of a court member.

The Army said yesterday that Lt. Col. Richard J. Potter, hospitalized with an attack of gall stones, will not require surgery and should be ready to return to duty on the court by May 19.

When the court-martial resumes, defense attorney Terence Hallinan will be winding up his case. The prosecution expects to take about a week in rebuttal and then the court-martial board will meet privately to reach a verdict.

The 14 GI's were among 27 charged with mutiny following a sit-down demonstration last Oct. 14. Eight soldiers have been convicted, three escaped before trial and two are undergoing medical treatment.

Trapp Mother Ailing

SALZBURG, Austria UPI — Baroness Maria Agusta Trapp, 64, mother of the Trapp Family Singers, was hispitalized Friday hours after meeting Queen Elizabeth II of England. The woman's physician refused to discuss the nature of her illness. The story of the Tarpp family was the basis for the film "The Sound of Music."

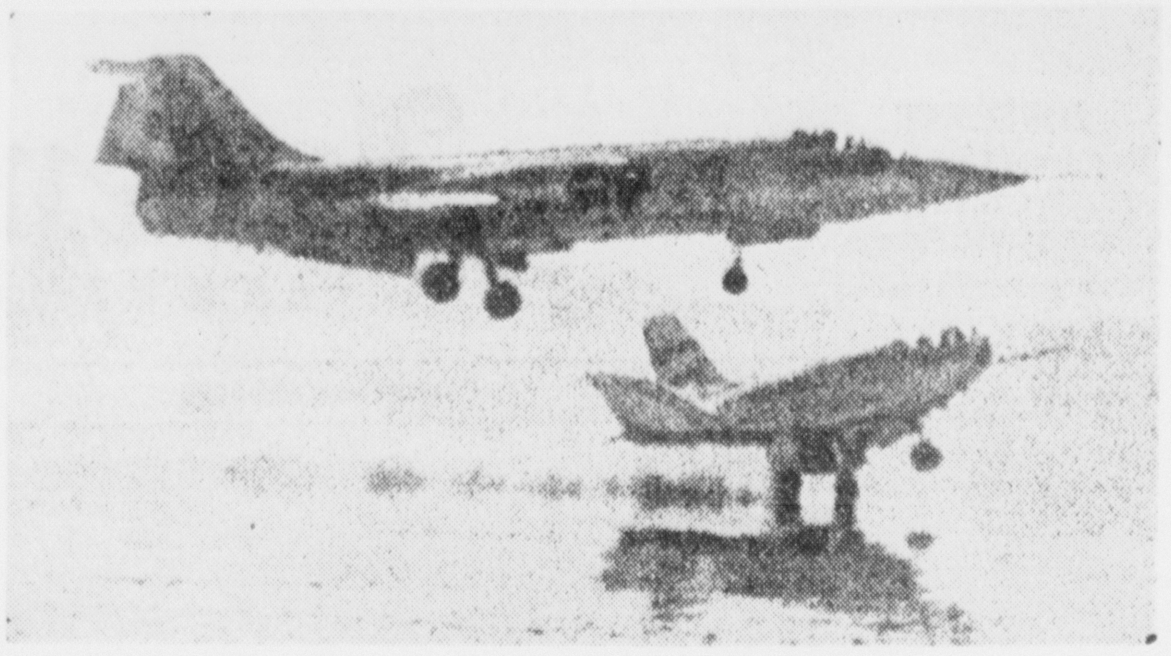
WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF



"BEAUTIFUL" RIDE — Attended by a chase plane, the wingless HL10 lifting body being tested for use as a possible space taxi connecting manned orbital platforms with earth landing ports makes a hot landing on the Mojave Desert. Pilot John A. Manke said the rocket-boosted flight yesterday which was the first supersonic test for the device, was "beautiful." (UPI Telephoto)

Murder Convictions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A jury dismissed a defense plea that two young Negroes were mental defectives and convicted them of first degree murder yesterday in the June 1968 slaying of Patrolman Peter F. McElligott in Golden Gate Park.

The jury of five men and seven women convicted Edgar Allen, 19, and Ray Caldwell, 20, after three hours' deliberation.

Next week, the same jury willl determine whether Allen and Caldwell will be sentenced to death in the gas chamber or life in prison.

More Meningitis

FORT ORD (UPI) — The Fort Ord Army training base has reported its 37th case of meningitis this year.

Military officials identified the newest patient as Pvt. John D. Turner, 22, of Bishop, whom they said was "responding satisfactorily" to treatment.

Turner is the fifth victim of the disease at the base in the past nine days. Two have died this year at the camp.

Los Angeles Budget

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Finance Committee of the City Council has adopted a 1969-70 budget of $461,544,480.

The $461,544,480 figure is the same as recommended by Mayor Sam Yorty.

The approval came after 15 meetings over a one-month period.

Jet Bomb Hoax

MIAMI (AP) — A National Airlines jet was recalled to Miami International Airport shortly after takeoff for San Francisco today when a telephone caller reported a bomb was aboard.

A search turned up no explosive.

The plane, Flight 23, carried 29 passengers and six crewmen who were evacuated. The plane later resumed its flight.

The Machinists Union is on strike against the airline.

More Poles Flee

BERGEN, Norway UPI — Another eight persons have defected to Norway from the Polish cruise ship Batory, police said today. Shortly after the boat arrived Wednesday 20 passengers vanished and authorities said about half had asked for temporary asylum. The rest were believed in hiding.

Hughes Wins Again

WASHINGTON UPI — A Civil Aeronautics Board hearing examiner has reaffirmed his approval of financier Howard Hughes' request to purchase Air West.

On April 14, hearing examiner Ross I. Newman recommended approval of the Hughes proposal. But a protest filed by Western Airlines remanded the case back to Newman for further hearings which ended this week.

DDT Peril Denied

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two state agencies say that contrary to comments by a pair of legislators, the amount of DDT in the edible portions of crabs is "negligible and not harmful to humans."

The fish and game and public health departments issued the joint statement yesterday in response to a bill aimed at prohibiting the sale and use of various pesticides in California.

When Republican Sens. John A. Nejedly of Walnut Creek and Lewis F. Sherman of Berkeley introduced the measure in the Senate Wednesday, they said it was prompted by recent reports that DDT is harming the state's crab industry.

Educator Quits

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The president of Brown University, who once said he was impressed by the importance of the decision made by the academic administration, has resigned because he does not "enjoy being a university president."

Dr. Ray L. Heffner, president of the Ivy League school for three years, announced his resignation from Brown to become professor of English and provost of the University of Iowa effective Aug. 1.

Heffner said the resignation had nothing whatsoever to do with recent campus unrest.

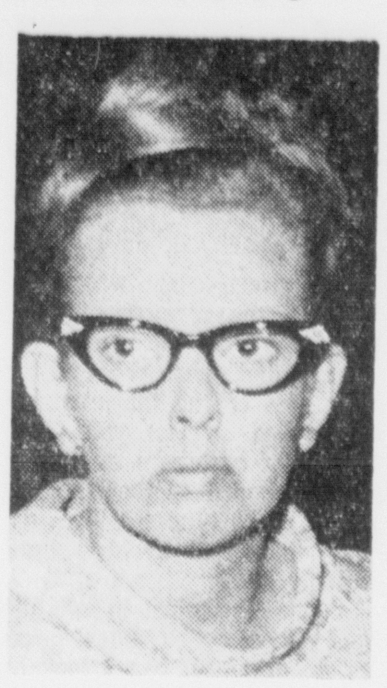
MARINITES will have two opportunities to view the work of one of their county's resident artists, Pearl Drob, whose painting are currently on display at Rubin's restaurant in Fairfax and will be shown next month at Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo. Above, she is seen in the studio with her husband, Harold Drob, who makes her frames as well as the special hardwood rollers she uses instead of brushes. At left is one of her untitled abstracts. Mrs. Drob was born in Houston, Tex., and reared in Los Angeles, studying ceramics at the Hollywood Art Center and as a private student of Glen Lukins. For several years she decorated and glazed pottery at Heath Ceramics in Sausalito while studying design and composition at the Patri School and the California School of Fine Arts. She has also modeled, performed creative dances and spent a year in the Caribbean studying local culture while teaching ceramics. She describes her work as "mercurial" to signify its characteristic rhythmic flow and continuity of movement. Her tools include the rollers, cork and fur. Her husband is a University of California departmental business manager. They have two daughters. (Photos by Richard Beindorf)

Assault Charge Filed Against Mrs. Brocco



LORRAINE BROCCO

A felong charge of assault with a deadly weapon was filed yesterday in Marin municipal Court against Lorraine Brocco, who struck her sleeping husband on the head with a hatchet on Oct. 27 in their Greenbrae home.

Mrs. Brocco — whose husband, Henry, is a former Larkspur councilman — was accompanied into court by her attoreny, Roger P. Garety, who waived formal arraignment and asked a two-week continuance for entry of plea. Judge Peter Allen Smith continued the case until May 23.

Mrs. Brocco, who is now living with her mother in another county and working as a pharmacist, according to Garety, was released on her own recognizance by Judge Smith.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest Zunino said that the long delay in filing a charge against Mrs. Brocco was because of an investigation into the nature of ilness suffered by her.

Brocco told police he awakened about 3 a.m to find his wife chopping at his head with a hatchet. One of the couple's children called an ambulance and police came to the house and found Mrs. Brocco unconscious from an overdose of pills.

Both were treated at Marin General Hospital, where Mrs. Brocco was a patient for almost a month.

In November both filed suits for divorce in Marin Superior Court.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

When To Keep Quiet

The law often frowns upon "meddlers" who offer their services when nobody asks them to. Yet in other situations the law encourages one to help those in distress.

Thus, Jones saw two men fighting a youth. Mistakenly thinking they were unlawfully beating up the youngster, he jumped into the fight. In the midst of it, one man got badly hurt. Imagine Jones' surprise: The men were plain clothes policemen lawfully trying to arrest the youth.

The officer, who sued Jones, won his case and a court awarded him damages. If Jones meant well but made a mistake, it is just too bad; he had to pay.

In some criminal cases, on the other hand, such a mistake is a good excuse in court.

These then are conflicting policies: (1) to encourage rescue and aid of one's fellow man, and (2) to discourage people from meddling in other people's business.

Suppose you carelessly started a fire which threatened a child. Smith, a bystander, who tried to rescue the child, got burned. The law may well hold you responsible for Smith's injuries. If you are at fault in starting a fire, in driving too fast, or in maintaining a defective building, then you may well be liable to injured rescuers who try to help out your "victims."

Doctors, nurses and those in the "healing professions" are encouraged to give aid in emergency situations ". . . outside their place and course of employment." They cannot be sued for negligent treatment in such emergencies unless they acted with "malice or in bad faith, or were grossly negligent."

The California Vehicle Code requires motorists involved in an accident to stop and render aid, if necessary to take an injured person to a hospital. Fail in this, and the motorist can be prosecuted for a felony.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

New Muffler Held Solution To Smog Woes

LOS ANGELES AP — A muffler claimed to be 100 per cent effective against oxides of nitrogen-an increasing element of smog not controlled by current anti-pollution devices was exhibited yesterday by a rocket scientist.

Milton Farber, president of Space Sciences, Inc., told a news conference the device chemically "scrubs" oxides of nitrogen, unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide from automobile exhaust.

Commented Louis J. Fuller, Los Angeles County air pollution control officer: "If this muffler works well in upcoming road tests, it certainly would spell the end of air pollution from cars."

Fuller said current devices placed on cars by manufacturers reduce hydrocarbons but increase the amount of oxides of nitrogen in the exhaust.

Traffic Toll Up For Part Of Year

SACRAMENTO UPI — Ninety more persons died in California traffic accidents during the first four months of this year than in the same period last year.

The highway patrol reported that in the January-April period, 1,585 persons were killed on the state's roads compared with 1,495 during the corresponding months in 1968.

Word Omitted Shifts Meaning Of Quote

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly quoted Marin City councilman Collie Gaines when the word "not" was dropped from her comments on housing in the community.

The sentence should have read, ". . . usually the gain in income was not enough to enable such persons to pay $150 a

Black Students Leader Scolded

LOS ANGELES (UPI — The president of the Black Students Union at San Fernando Valley State College was convicted yesterday of failing to heed an order to disperse during a campus demonstration last Jan. 9.

"If you are going to be a leader, then act like a leader," Municipal Court Judge Irwin J. Nebron told Archie Lee Chatman, 21.

Chatman, a paid student adviser at the school, was permitted to remain free on $625 bail pending a June 3 hearing on his request for probation.

Luggage Plant Plans Approved

The Corte Madera Board of Design yesterday approved an application for expansion of H. Koch and Sons luggage factory and forwarded the application to the planning commission.

The approval came late yesterday afternoon at an adjourned meeting of the three-man board in San Francisco.

The luggage company's expansion plans call for the addition of 72,000 square feet at 15 Koch Road.

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)— A mind honed on learning never retires, even though official retirement comes at a designated age for some men. Dr. Oliver S. Willham, 68, former president of Oklahoma State University, has re-enrolled in school. He is taking agriculture and home economics classes.

at $15,625. DeBruyn's bail in Marin was set at $25,000.

If convicted, DeBruyn will face a five-to-20-year sentence.

Agents said they had been unable to track down the source of DeBruyn's high quality heroin, which usually comes from Mexico or the Orient.

The search of his home was hampered, they said, by the wooded area surrounding the house in which "you could hide anything."

DeBruyn was convicted in December of selling marijuana last year, and Judge Samuel W. Gardiner sentenced him to 30 days in jail, followed by a year of weekends in jail.

Agents said yesterday they found nothing to indicate that DeBruyn himself is a heroin addict.

Tam Students Hold Campus Walk-Away

An estimated 150 students at Tamalpais High School conducted an orderly noon-hour walk off campus yesterday to protest the closed campus rule.

Handbills signed "Power to the students" appeared on campus at mid-morning calling for the walkout but setting strict rules. The walkout, following the instructions, was only through the back parking lot fence.

Principal Robert Prather said the pupils gathered along the fence without crossing the road and discussed the closed campus rule. There was no confrontation or violence, and pupils reenter the campus for afternoon classes, he said.

The campus was closed four years ago, Prather said, after neighbors petitioned in protest against students' littering, trespassing on neighbors' property, and fighting at C's Drive-in restaurant.

The handbills were illegal, Prather said, but "we don't know what punishment, if any, will be assessed" if the students responsible are caught.

The staff will meet Monday to discuss the closed campus rule, he said, and student government leaders have indicated they will try to meet the walkout leaders and discuss the situation.

Reagan Vows War On Dope

ANAHEIM (AP)—Gov. Ronald Reagan said today that his administration "is giving urgent priority to the solution of the drug problem" in California.

"Whatever steps it may take, whatever program must be developed, whatever legislation must be passed," Reagan said, "we pledge ourselves to act, to work with local officials, concerned parents, school, medical and law enforcement leaders . . ."

Reagan said about 90 communities in the state have asked the federal government to close the California-Mexico border to persons under 18 years of age unless they are accompanied by a responsible adult.

"A resolution with similar provisions has passed both houses of the California legislature and has been transmitted to Washington," he said.

"Wiping out the drug problem is possibly the greatest challenge in the area of crime control that has ever confronted California and this nation," Reagan said.

Woman Accused Of Shoplifting

A San Anselmo woman was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of shoplifting at Macy's in downtown San Rafael.

Judith Elaine Edison, 24, of 770 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, posted $315 bail to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Sylvia Benhke, a store security guard, performed a citizen's arrest after Miss Edison allegedly took a three-piece bathing suit, valued at $13, from the store.

Housewives Happy

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—Nearly 90 per cent of Dutch housewives are happy with their lot of running a home, according to a nationwide poll. Of dissidents, most were in the 30-50 age group. The highest dissatisfaction percentage was found in the city of Amsterdam.

Nixon Calls Key Cabinet Aides To Talks

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon began talks today with key cabinet advisers to iron out policies on a wide range of controversial domestic issues, including campus strife and the draft.

The chief executive began the meeting shortly after 10 a.m. EST with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Health and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch.

Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said there was no set agenda, and indicated there would be a free wheeling discussion on a variety of problems.

About three miles from the Nixon compound 17 placard carrying members of the Miami Dade Young Americans for Freedom walked a picket line in support of the president's antiballistic missile system.

The pro ABM demonstrators contrasted to "new party" pickets in the same spot yesterday who carried signs against HE "safeguard" system.

The placards today read: "Keep us alive—adopt ABM"; "The American Eagle is No Chicken"; "Doves are for the Birds" and "Better Ready Than Dead."

An 18-year-old San Rafael girl was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of forging a money order believed to be one of 3,000 to 5,000 pieces of mail said to have been stolen over a period of time by a former San Rafael postman.

San Rafael police said Juanita Litteral of 9 Taylor Street had endorsed and signed over an $85 Bank of America money order to Eugene Richard Rudnick, who endorsed and cashed the money order April 17 at the Montecito Branch of the Bank of America.

Rudnick was arrested Wednesday by San Rafael police for investigation of forging the money order. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

According to police, the money order apparently was given to Miss Litteral by Warren Sielsky, 32, also of 9 Taylor Street. Sielsky is awaiting trial on charges of stealing large quantities of mail while working at the Mill Valley Post Office.

Black Point Club Nominates Slate

The organization will elect new officers June 13.

Nominated for treasurer were Mrs. Maryann Gaebel, Frank Collins and Mrs. Edith Rivasplata. Nominated for the board of directors were Henry Torget, Gerald Merlant, Leo Nolan, Vera Stoner, Frank Miller, James Heatlie, Richard Baebel and Collins. Seven will be elected.

Running unopposed will be Robert Saunders for vice president, Clara Saunders for recording secretary and Anita Miller for corresponding secretary.

Novato Mishap Injures Youth

A 20-year-old San Aneslmo youth was in satisfactory condition today in Marin General Hospital after he was struck by a car last night in Novato

William Hickerson of 28 Woodside Avenue was struck by a car driven by an unidentified person about 10 p.m. in front of 1184 Cambridge Street.

Hickerson, a College of Marin student, suffered back injuries.

Novato police declined to release any additional information.

Food Stamp Talks

Briefing sessions on the county's food stamp program will be held Monday at Novato Community House at 10 a.m. and at Lagunitas Elementary School in San Geronimo at 7 p.m. and on Wednesday at Central School auditorium, Sausalito, at 8 p. m.

destined to become not disseminators of knowledge, but directors of a child's behavior and development," it said.

It charged that persons "who are in fact aligned with revolutionary groups acting contrary to public policy" used such techniques as group therapy and sensitivity training with the intent to "use the schools to destroy American culture and tradition."

The advisory committee which drew up the guidelines was appointed by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Max Rafferty, a conservative Republican who was defeated in his bid for the U.S. Senate last year.

It recommended using the "moral leadership" handbooks of the Navy and Marine Corps as "a prepared and tested outline of technique to teach young men the nature of man and his relationship to God, his neighbor, his country and his world." It called the handbooks a useful basis for content of moral education for school children.

One member of the committee that drew up the report, Mrs. Rosemary Howard, chairman of the Interfaith Congress on Religion and Education in San Jose, disagreed with the recommendations and refused to sign them.

Other members of the committee included three Republican state legislators, Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield of Downey, and Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes of San Diego, who is a former Navy chaplain and a clergyman.

While accepting the report, board member Dr. John Ford added a recommendation that evolution be taught as "theory, not fact."

He said creation should be taught from the scientific point of view and from the Bible, with the students being allowed to make up their own minds.

Evolution taught as fact "is limiting the power of God and thus decreases the moral values in schools," Ford said.

Dr. Edwin Klotz, who was removed as the board's special assistant last month on the grounds he made speeches that did not reflect the views of the whole board, directed much of the work on the report. He also submitted a six-point program for implementing the guidelines.

The board turned the proposals over to a board committee headed by the Rev. Donn Moomaw, a former UCLA All America football star and now a Presbyterian minister, for study.

Second Burglary Arrest For Youth

A 22-year-old San Rafael youth was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of burglary, 24 hours after he had been released from jail in connection with another burglary.

George Edwayd Myers, 22, was held without bail in Marin County Jail pending an appearance in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said evidence at the scene of a burglary at 304 Mission Avenue, where antique silverware and jewelry, valued at $1,300, were taken Sunday, linked Myers with the crime.

Myers had been arrested Thursday along with Paul Danny Cassidy, 22, of 1135 Fourth Street, San Rafael, after San Anselmo police found the two carrying a pillowcase containing stolen silverware and jewelry and credit cards in the name of Robert C. Caughell of 10 Marina Court, San Rafael, whose home had earlier been broken into.

Cassidy and Myers were released after the district attorney's office declined to file charges pending further investigation.

Narcotics, Club Case To Superior Court

Terry B. Samuels, 29, of Marin City, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on felony charges of possession of heroin and cocaine and possession of a billy club.

He was arrested in Sausalito last Aug. 3. Arraignment was set for May 20 in Superior Court.

OBITUARIES

Thomas Greenlees Dies At 80

Thomas Greenleees, a 10-year resident of Fairfax, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Greenlees, 80, had been a self-employed structural engineer for nearly 50 years prior to his retirement.

He moved to Marin County 12 years ago from Seattle, Wash.

He served with the famed 91st Infantry Division in France during World War 1. He was a member of Tamalpais Post No. 72 Veterans of Foreign Wars, and American Legion Post No. 1 of San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Rodney of Fairfax; two sisters, Mrs. Alex Cloke and Mrs. Margaret Baker, both of England, and a brother, James Greenlees, also of England.

Funeral will be Monday at 10 a.m. in the St. Augustine's Episcopal Church in Fairfax. Inurnment will be private.

ELISE JURGENSEN

An Independent-Journal headline incorrectly indicated yesterday that the first name of Elise Jurgensen, who died Thursday at her Petaluma home, was Elsie.

The funeral will be at 1 p.m. Monday at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

ALEXANDER E. WILLIAMS

Funeral for Alexander E. Williams of Mill Valley will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley.

Williams, 59, was killed Thursday after his car went ove ra guard rail into Richardson Bay from a Highway 101 frontage road.

A native of Oakland, Williams had lived in Mill Valley for the past six years.

He was the owner of the Molo Crafts Studio at 10 Locust Street which had been closed since the death of his first wife, Mary Lathrop (Molo) Williams, the store's founder.

Mrs. Williams started the children's arts and crafts school in San Francisco in 1938. Williams became a partner in the studio shortly after it opened.

In 1963, they moved the shop to its present location and in 1967 the two longtime partners were married.

Williams is survived by his second wife, Ethel of Mill Valley, and four brothers, Carroll of Los Angeles, Raymond of Hayward, Sydney of Walnut Creek and Roger Williams of San Francisco

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

STEPHEN ROWE

FORT ORD (UPI) — An accident on the hand grenade training range at Fort Ord has taken the life of Pvt. Stephen W. Rowe, son of a United Press International newsman.

The Army said yesterday that young Rowe was about to throw a grenade from a bunker when it exploded.

The victim was the son of David G. Rowe of UPI's San Francisco office and Mrs. Corrine M. Rowe, Pacoima, Calif.

The Army ordered a thorough investigation of the grenade's premature detonation. The victim joined the Army in January and was in the seventh week of advanced infantry training.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

CAMPUS

vention of the California Junior Statesmen of America yesterday in Fresno, Reagan said "we know of an exact incident" in which money from Peking was channeled to the University of California at Berkeley.

Sen. Hugh M. Burns, chairman of the state Senate committee on un-American activities, made a similar statement last week in a television interview.

Reagan also said campus unrest is being promoted by a "handful of hard-core professional students between 28 and 38 whose names are known to us and whose travels are known by Communist governments."

Deputies Arrest More Sunbathers At Muir Beach

An assorted group of four men, two women and one baby—all nude—were hustled off to jail yesterday by sheriff's deputies in the latest raid on nude sunbathers at Muir Beach.

All except the baby were arrested on suspicion of disturbing the peace.

Sheriff's officers said that they saw other nudes on the beach but only arrested the one group, as they were badly outnumbered by the unclothed set.

Booked into jail—clothed—with bail set at $125 each were Gregory C. Arata, 20, of 6 Marinda Court, Fairfax; Robert V. Andrus, 24, of 1563 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael; Suzy R. Galluccio, 20, and Robert G. Rigler, 24, both of 809 Spring Drive, Mill Valley; John William Hulse, 44, of 1107 West California Street, Mill Valley, and Margaret Devera, 21, of 382 Irwin Street, San Rafael.

Pupils Compete In Spelling Bee

Terry Hasik, an eighth grade student at Our Lady of Loretto School, Novato, last night earned the title of best speller among 26 seventh and eighth graders from Marin's parochial schools.

Terry, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Hasik of 1211 Yukon Way, Novato, outspelled contestants in the seventh annual spelling bee sponsored by the Knights of Columbus at St. Anselm's Parish Hall, San Anselmo.

Second place winner was Tom Jasek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jasek of 70 Geldert Drive, Tiburon, and an eighth grader at St. Hilary's School, and third place went to Mark Bettini, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bettini of 130 Valley View Avenue, San Rafael, and a seventh grader at St. Raphael's School.

Principal To Talk On Volunteer Work

Ralph Azevedo, principal of Rohnert Park Junior High School, will speek to volunteers of the Sonoma State College Community Involvement Project at 10 a.m. Monday in the student lounge.

Azevedo will speek on "The Role of The Volunteer in Education." The campus volunteer program, in its second year, has 250 students who work as school aides, tutors and playground supervisors.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

Here's an addition to "What Is A Mother?"

A mother is the one who tells her engaged daughter she'll be completely on her own when she marries — and ends up giving her little extras, gifts for the house, invitations to dinner when the young couple goes slightly broke. But she never mentions why.

She's the one who would give the clothes off her back to make her kids happy. She even takes her birthday money to buy birthday clothes for her daughter.

She hollers her head off when the kids forget their vitamins yet she is forever forgetting her heart medicine.

She flips her cookies and grounds us once in a while, but if something terrific comes up, it's "I know you've learned your lesson, so you can go." (And we have!)

She's the one who worries about a little sniffle in her kids, but you can't drag her to the doctor!

The one who stayed up all night when you had measles, chicken pox, mumps. Then worked all day, as usual.

Who once let an older daughter walk to a ball game, but met her half way home with a butcherknife tucked up her sleeve. (" You can't tell who's walking the streets these days.")

She may have a couple of annoying habits like hollering when we don't do our rooms and expecting us to be perfect, but mainly she's an angel and we love her!

When you've had a mother-daughter spat because she won't let you date, get a job, go to a party, etc., stop and think: She may be off some place crying because of the bad things you said to her. —THANKS

DEAR HELEN:

Won't you please publish this letter to my Mother, for Mothers Day?

DEAR MOM: Sunday was for church. Oh, how I hated it. Then one day you said if I wasn't getting something from it, I needn't go. For a while I didn't. Now I go every Sunday — and listen. You let me make my own decision.

Monday and Tuesday are the nights you make me stay in, and though I groan, I'm really glad you insist I catch up on my ironing, sewing, cleaning, etc. then. You don't have a certain hour when I must be in bed — again, you let me decide.

On nights I go out, you aren't nosey, So I volunteer my whereabouts. The best part of the evening is talking it over with a terrific friend who understands.

When it comes to my report card, I'm never afraid to bring it home. Thanks, Mom, for not comparing me with brainier kids. You don't restrict me if you know I'm trying, even if my grades aren't that great.

You don't make me punch a timeclock. Your "reasonable hour" rules get me home just a little before you really expect me — or nudge me into calling if I may be late. And you don't blow up until you hear my side.

Mom, you've given me everything I could want. First and most important a happy home, and a life surrounded by love. —A VERY HAPPY DAUGHTER

DEAR HELEN:

Who says there's a generation gap? Every day I'm away at college I realize more how much my mother and dad have done for me. They'll always be "in my group," and maybe I forgot to tell them so when I was younger, but I won't any more. If all kids would say "You're great, Mom and Dad" at least once a day, they'd knock their brains out living up to it.—COLLEGE GIRL

Slit Detail Technique Given For Coat Patterns

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE:

I saw a summer coat in a fashion magazine that intrigued me very much and yet I can't find a pattern that has the detail I admired. The coat had slits in the seams that were almost at the exact sides, otherwise the coat had very simple lines that can be copied in a pattern. Can I simply leave the lower part of the seam unstitched to obtain the same effect?—MRS. M.R.

DEAR MRS. M. R.:

This "slit detail" is very easy to achieve, especially if you decide upon it before you have cut your pattern. Simply cut a two inch seam allowance the length of the desired slit instead of the usual 5/8 inch. If you aren't sure just how high to make the slit, it is better to cut the seam extension higher than necessary, it can always be cut and stitched down further. This is really a "fun" detail to use on a coat.

ANN OWEN, Paducah, Ky., is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion:

"It is almost impossible to find a pattern that has sleeves in the dress as well as sleeves in a jacket or coat. For mature women a dress with sleeves is much more flattering than one that is sleeveless. I have been putting sleeves in my dresses (many of them with the new long sleeves) and then making the coat or jacket sleeveless.

DEAR EUNICE:

I was given a piece of cashmere for a coat and would like this to be my summer project. Can you give me any tips on working with this fabric? — MRS. W. D.

DEAR MRS. W. D.:

Cashmere is usually a fairly soft fabric; keep this in mind when selecting a pattern. Be sure you check the nap, it must run down. (As you smooth your fabric with your hand, it should feel smooth from the shoulder down toward the hem). All pieces of the garment must be cut in the same direction.

Be careful not to press on the right side of the fabric and I would also suggest you place a piece of cashmere over your pressing board so that the two pieces of cashmere will touch each other and avoid a hard or shiny look.

Because the fabric is soft, the front edges, collar edges, pockets etc. will usually not look as flat as you might wish, therefore, hand picking or machine top-stitching is recommended, it also adds a lovely touch to an otherwise plain fabric.

DEAR EUNICE:

Please tell us the "story" on white fabrics. I have an off-white wool suit and a long white coat and don't know just what time of year I may wear these. I live in the eastern part of the country.— MRS. N.R.

DEAR MRS. N. R.:

For the past few years white has been accepted as good fashion for any time of the year. You will find white used in all designer collections for each and every season.

DEAR EUNICE:

I am wondering if there is any disadvantage to stitching the sleeve into the armhole before stitching the side and sleeve seams? I must sew for four children as well as myself and find this is a much quicker method. —MRS. A. L. E.

DEAR MRS. A. L. E.:

This is a method that is seldom used when making custom clothes, however, it is used in most factory made garments simply because it does save time and we're all interested in that.

I usually recommend sewing all boys' and men's sleeves in this method as well as shirt type sleeves for women's clothes because the cap of the sleeve doesn't have to be shaped as it does for regular women's clothes. I would suggest you continue with your method for any "quickie" type clothes and insert the sleeves into the armhole after the underarm seams have been completed on your better garments.

You will find my leaflet "All About Sleeves" very helpful and you may obtain your copy by sending 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Engagement Is Told By Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Michel Marculescu Jr. of San Francisco announce the engagement of their daughter, Nicole Marculescu, to Lewis M. Lefcourt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Lefcourt of Foster City.

The Marculescus are former residents of San Anselmo. Nicole was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and San Jose State College, where she was a member of Sigma Kappa sorority and the Women's Student Executive Council. She is a graduate student at San Jose State. Michel Marculescu III of Palo Alto is her brother, and she is the sister of Mrs. Carroll Jones, who is traveling in Europe.

Lewis is the brother of Alan and Sandy Lefcourt. He was graduated from Aragon High School and is attending San Jose State.

Auxiliary Members Finalize Plans For Memorial Concert

Plans for the Memorial Day weekend Al Fresco Dinner Concert of the Marin Symphony will be completed at a meeting called by committee chairman Mrs. Lucien Mitchell for Monday at 10 a.m. at her home, 330 Molino Avenue in Mill Valley. The concert is scheduled for May 30 at 3 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

Termed a "Loose Ends Tie Up" by Mrs. Mitchell, the meeting will be attended by members of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary, the orchestra and the board.

The outdoors pops concert, conducted by Maestro Sandor Salgo, will be offered free to the public, according to the chairman, but dinners will be sold by reservation only, to benefit the symphony. Beer, wine and soft drinks will be sold during the concert.

Chairmen are Mrs. Barry Boland who will assist Mrs. Mitchell, and Mmes. Thomas Foris, Robert Mills, Evelyn Airth, Ralph Dewey, Kenneth Davis and John Collette. Members of the Marin Youth Orchestra will serve as ushers and hostesses.

A SALAD BOWL luncheon of Central Marin Welcome Wagon will be held under the trees of Maple Lawn at the Elks Club, 1312 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, on Tuesday. Members and guests will gather at 11 a.m. for cocktails and to view the art show and crafts display. Lunch will be served at noon.

Highlights of the morning will be the Madhatters Parade with "Husband's Occupation" as its theme. A prize will be awarded for the most creative hat.

Proceeds of the day will benefit trainable mentally retarded children in San Rafael.

"HUMAN RIGHTS" will be the topic discussed by Hank Waschow Tuesday at the luncheon meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church of Mill Valley

A business meeting at 11 a.m. in the Youth Room will be followed by luncheon in Fellowship Hall at noon with the program at 1 p.m.

Mr. Waschow is executive director of Outer City branch of the San Francisco YMCA and also a member of the Mill Valley church.

Hostesses will be Mmes. Charles Henson, J. E. Christian and William Henry with Mrs. Jack Shapiro in charge of devotions.

THE HOLY Family Guild of Marin will hold its annual luncheon at St. Patrick's Church Hall in Larkspur on Wednesday at noon for the benefit of the Novitiate Motherhouse in Mission San Jose. Entertainment will be provided by a group of Postulants and Novices from the Novitiate.

Mrs. Dolores Sutton, president of the guild, states that the Singing Nuns will render folk songs with guitar accompaniment.

Reservations chairmen are Mrs. Herbert Neal, 239 Harvard Drive, and Mrs. F. J. Buscher, 7 William Street, both of Larkspur.

MRS. RAY McDUFFEE of Penngrove will present a demonstration-lecture on "Herbs: Their Culture and Use" Tuesday for members of the Novato Garden Club, Inc.

Although a serious gardener for many years, Mrs. McDuffee didn't become interested in herbs until a decade ago while living in London. Her own herb garden was a significant factor in her being named Sonoma County Woman Gardener of the Year last summer during the Sonoma County Fair. She is a member of both the Redwood Garden Club and the Santa Rosa Garden Club, and serves as leader of two herb groups for the latter.

Novato Garden Club members will participate in their annual crazy hat contest during the luncheon hour which begins at noon at the Community House. Assisting chairman Mrs. John Sloat are Mmes. Joseph Amato, George Barnes, Jackson Bunker, Ben Collier, H. B. Beadle, Ralph Michener and Walter von Tagen.

Mrs. Noel E. Turner, first vice president, will conduct the business meeting at 1 o'clock, and will make recognition of the club past presidents in a special ceremony.

Mrs. Beadle, tour chairman, will accept reservations for the organization's June 10 outing to the Peninsula. The itinerary includes the Sunnyside Nursery and an elephant-train tour of the General Motors plant at Pleasanton where visitors observe the assembly of an automobile. Husbands of members are encouraged to join the tour, Mrs. Beadle indicated.

THE MILL VALLEY Tennis Club is having a cocktail party tonight following play in the 44-45 National Men's Doubles and Singles Tournament honoring participants in the tournament going on at the club.

Party chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kearney. Tournament chairman Earl Kissinger is being assisted by Mmes. Kenneth Stevens, Larry Brink, Eleanor Tierney and Bertrand Hirsch.

A Marin barbershop quartet will provide entertainment and will feature a song about tennis written by Mr. Kearney.

THE FINAL meeting of flower arrangement classes, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the San Francisco Yacht Club, will be held on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to noon at the Belvedere clubhouse. Mrs. Curtis Knowles of Ross is the instructor.

MARIN INTER-CITY Council of Beta Sigma Phi sorority will present its Boutique Bouquet fashion show and luncheon at Ondine Restaurant in Sausalito on Wednesday. Proceeds from the annual benefit will be presented to two speech and hearing clinics.

Chairmen for the event are Mrs. Oliver Hanger and Bette Porter. Committee chairmen are Mmes. George Kipgen, tickets and reservations; Leonard Mergseth, programs; David Blodget and Larry Stanley, prizes; Lawson Wood, publicity, and Neal Harding, models.

Modeling will be Mmes. Claudia Hocker, William Poate, Larry Stanley, Harry Ibsen, Donald Sutherland, Donald Heinitz, Al Sims, Marvin Clement, Charles Aby and Robert Martin.

THREE FILMS will be shown for the public May 14 at 8 p.m. in the little theater at Redwood High School in Larkspur by the Education for Childbirth Association. The films are "A Story About Childbirth" by Dr. John S. Miller, "Natural Childbirth" by Dr. Robert T. Bailey and "Postnatal Care" by Dr. Earle Marsh.

MRS BEATRICE ATWOOD. the grand guardian of the state of California, will make her official visit to Bethel 119 of Mill Valley and Bethel 246 of Larkspur, International Order of Job's Daughters, on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Mill Valley Masonic Temple.

She will be accompanied by Mr. Fay Bates, associate grand guardian of the state of California, International Order of Job's Daughters.

In their honor an initiation meeting will be held with honored queens Marsha Phipps and Kathy Frakes presiding, and ritualistic work will be shared by the bethels.

Refreshments chairmen are Connie Jacobs and Jo Schmiedel.

Teachers Receive Training

INDIANA, Pa. (UPI)—In an effort to better prepare those who teach in urban areas, Indiana University of Pennsylvania is offering a sequence of summer school courses in urban education.

The program is for teachers who have already completed their undergraduate work and want specialized training in urban education.

The program will be flexible, with six of the 12 weeks devoted to student teaching in Pittsburgh schools.

Preceeding the student teaching experience is a three-week course in orientation to teaching in urban centers. The course will be taught by instructors currently engaged in urban teaching.

Following the student teaching, the students will review their experiences in a three-week course in interpreting urban teaching experiences.

Program planners say they hope to emphasize physical characteristics of the community, background and aspirations of the children and specialized teaching competencies.

School officials say emphasis will be given to developing an understanding of the special needs of the disadvantaged child and how the origin of attitudes and values affects the relationship which exists between students and teachers.

Buffet Supper To Celebrate Half-Century Of Marriage

Family and friends will be on hand tonight for the golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Robison of Kentfield. An informal buffet supper will be served at 7:30 p.m. at the family home, with the couple's two daughters and Mrs. Robison's sister assisting.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gromm of Bethel Island, their son Robert Gromm Jr. and daughter Claudia and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cockerline of San Bruno and their daughter Ann and son John will come for the weekend. The girls will assist their mother with preparations for the anniversary fete as will Mrs. Robison's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Smith of San Rafael. Mr. Robison's brother, H. Edgar Robison of Lagunitas, will also be on hand, along with other family members and their friends.

Married May 10, 1919, in San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Robison have lived most of their married life in Marin County; Kentfield has been their address the past 19 years. Mr. Robison, who is semi-retired, continues to operate his own public accountant business "just to keep himself busy and out of mischief," says his wife.

San Francisco is the bride's home town. "My folks were born there also," she said in explaining how deep the family roots go in the City.

"But I don't want to be married 50 years. Now I'll commence to feel old," she observed as she reminisced over half a century of wedded life.

Kelly Sparrow To Wed Joy Diane Blackmore

Mr. and Mrs. George Blackmore of Mill Valley announce the engagement of their daughter, Joy Diane Blackmore, to Kelly Ray Sparrow of Ogden, Utah.

They will be married on Sept. 4 in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School and the Marinello School of Beauty, Joy attended Ricks College in Idaho, where she announced her engagement to her sorority, Lambda Delta Sigma, in a traditional candle passing ceremony.

Kelly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sparrow and the brother of Karla, Terry and Steven Sparrow of Ogden.

A graduate of Ben Lomond High School in Ogden, Kelly is in his junior year at Weber State College in Ogden. He is a member of the Army reserves.

He served two and a half years as a Mormon missionary in Peru and Equador.

JOY BLACKMORE

Miss Younger Is Engaged

The engangement of Helen (Lorrie) Younger of Ione, who formerly lived in Novato while attending the College of Marin, to Herman Gunther III has been announced.

Lorrie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Younger of Ione. She is a graduate of Ione High School and attended San Joaquin Delta College in Stockton as well as College of Marin. While in Marin she made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Donald M. Parker of Novato. She is employed with Pacific Telephone Co. in Sacramento.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gunther II of Los Angeles. A graduate of Birmingham High School in Van Nuys, he attended Pierce Junior College in Woodland Hills and is a student at California Polytechnic College. He served with the Army for three years.

A late August wedding is planned.

ART REVIEW

Maturity In Students' Exhibition

By LAURA DEVENDORF

In many areas, the College of Marin student art exhibition, through June 20 in the college gallery, is a lot more exciting than most so-called professional artists' exhibits that vie for space in banks, restaurants and galleries throughout Marin.

True, the word student is deceptive. It does include adults. Many of these are successful working artists and familiar names crop up as in graphics, where the really good looking prints usually turn out to be Nelcy Tarics'.

But adults are by no means responsible for all the better parts of this show. In graphics again, there are skilled and inventive drawings by many students that more nearly fit the college age idea. And at any level, the sculpture would be impressive.

UNLIKE CLASS WORK

Much of the maturity this show has is attributalbe to the large sculpture entry which simply does not come on like class work. There are a few junior editions of the instructor's work and in spite of the fact that they are all class projects, these carefully crafted pieces are imaginative individual statements.

In wood, Raymond Schrutz does great things with casual chunks of it, especially where he joins them simply with a massive steel bolt. John Nordstrang's "Head Flowers," meanwhile, is a more involved structure of carved and painted wood.

Jan Portugal moves easily from the thoughtful to the sublime with a tripel-sided ceramic head reflecting a family to a gigantic workable replica of a light bulb. Other ceramics worth note are Glen Kersey's mine-like horns, bursting through overlapping sheets and John Ossa's red, bug-like "Lunar Gunship."

Mary Bowles' two bronze pieces show the metal first in a serene, smooth state and then as a rough, knobbed orb mixed with tacks and pins. And in mixed media inventions that lime with a triple-sized veramic tests extensive knowledge of Rogers is of particular interest.

OTHER WORKS

Pots, plates and other ceramics share an unobtrusive quality with a group of subdued photo-with a groug of subdued photographs. And in addition there is a little jewelry, weaving and stitchery plus some interesting stitchey plus some interesting design projects such as Jimm Dait's cool and cleanly crafted chess set.

If painting seems overlooked, what little there is, at least, is stronger and more confident than last year. If it was a matter of weeding out the usual mass of potboilers, then this show is even more recommendable for what we have been spared as well as given to enjoy.

Restaurant Still Shut After Fire

Fire which damaged Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley Sunday apparently caused more kitchen damage than originally thought, firemen said yesterday. The restaurant will be closed until the middle of next week.

After the fire, an employee said the restaurant might be open for the Mother's Day weekend, but that apparently was not possible. A telephone call to the restaurant now produces a recorded announcement saying the restaurant will be closed for a week.

The fir originated in or near a deep fat fryer and damaged the stoves and ranges, which are being replaced. Firemen said no damage estimate will be available until the new equipment is installed.

Dope Possession Charge Lodged

A 22-year-old Petaluma man is to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment on two counts of possessing marijuana and LSD for sale.

Frank Joseph Bonomolo, of 921 First Street, Petaluma, was arrested Thursday night by Novato police who said he had two bags of marijuana and a container of LSD pills in his automobile. Police said the arrest was the result of a tip.

Bonomolo is free on $625 bail.

Work Furlough Case To Superior Court

Morlin Smith, 21, of Marin City, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of failing to return to the county jail from a work furlough last June 28.

He was serving a one-year sentence for burglary when he disappeared. He is to be arraigned in Superior Court May 19.

Sentencing Due In Auto Theft

A second charge of possessing a hypodermic needle at the time of his arrest was dismissed by Judge Harold J. Haley. Sentencing was set for June 2.

Acosta was arrested by a California Highway Patrol officer who spotted him in the stolen car on Highway 101 near Marin City. Acosta abandoned the car after a chase but was arrested on foot in Sausalito.

Cigarette consumption in the U.S. showed a decline in 1968 for the first time, according to the American Cancer Society.

Teener Admits Tangle With Patrolman

Terrence Scott Borrman, 19, of Mill Valley, admitted yesterday in Marin Superior Court that he ran a highway patrolman off Lucas Valley Road March 27 while driving a stolen car.

At a pretrial conference before Judge Harold J. Haley, Borrman pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon on an officer and car theft. He had been scheduled to go to trial next week.

Borrman, who has a previous burglary conviction, had attempted to outrun Officer Harold Drady, who was chasing him on a motorcycle because of a traffic violation.

As Drady pulled alongside Borrman, the youth swerved and hit the motorcycle, sending it into a ditch. The officer was not seriously hurt.

Borrman and a companion were arrested later in the day after they abandoned the car and hiked across the hills to Nicasio. No charges were pressed against the companion.

Judge Haley set sentencing for June 9.

NORGE
The World's Lowest Priced Side-By-Side only 30" wide
ONLY $299.90 W.T.
MODEL REK-1580
Don't pay for more refrigerator than you need. See the Norge Deluxe Fifteen. The big vertical freezer holds almost 200 lbs., as much as many higher priced 18 or 19 cubic foot top freezer models. It's like having a supermarket in your kitchen. Saves you time, saves you money.
FROST-FREE THROUGHOUT
Separate Cold Controls for Refrigerator and Freezer
The convenience packed refrigerator section makes food-keeping a pleasure. There's generous shelf space on the door, large enough for tall bottles and half-gallon containers. There's a dairy bar and lift-out egg container. Fruits and vegetables stay fresh in the porcelain crisper with Flavor-Saver seals.
Choose classic white or shaded coppertone.
See the Norge Deluxe Fifteen today.

CORTE MADERA
This lovely 3 bedroom, 2 bath home boasts extras for every member of the family! A double car garage with work bench and easy commuting for Dad: built-in kitchen and wall-to-wall carpets thruout (even in the kitchen) for Mom; a family room off the large patio for the kids, along with a Doughboy pool and dressing room for the whole family! Extras include new refrigerator and dishwasher. Here's a chance for a real good buy. The owner has moved out of the area and is most anxious to sell. He will consider a low down payment or a lease option. Price $34,950.

West Berlin Grim On The Eve Of Blockade Break Anniversary

BERLIN (UPI)—The 20th anniversary this week of the lifting of the Berlin blockade might be expected to find this Western outpost in happy, confident mood. But it is not.

In the past 20 years West Berlin has survived attempt after attempt by the Russians to undermine Western rights here and pave the way for a Communist takeover.

The Russians have not succeeded and West Berlin has not only survived, it has prospered. A modern city, the greatest industrial city in Germany, has risen on the ruins that still were everywhere when the 11-month Soviet blockade of West Berlin ended shortly after midnight on May 12, 1949.

MANY EXPORTS

Today, West Berlin sends airport radar systems to India, complete factories for making synthetic fibers to the Soviet Union and Italy, a carbon dioxide plant to Beirut. And every fourth dress bought in West Germany is made here.

Yet despite the prosperity that far overshadows advances made in East Berlin, the city is not at ease. It has nagging doubts about the future and is vaguely discontented with its present.

Internal discord, much of it caused by leftist students, is one factor that worries Berliners, and some in fact feel that domestic dissension could pose more of a threat to the city's future in the long run than Communist harrassment.

A sign of the times is the fact that the fear of student demonstrations blocked plans to bring Gen. Lucius D. Clay here for a ceremony on the 20th anniversary of the end of the blockade.

CREDIT TO CLAY

If one man can be credited with saving West Berlin it is Clay, who was the post-war American military governor for Germany.

When the Russians shortly before midnight on June 18, 1948, announced that the borders of the Soviet zone of occupation would be closed to all inter-zonal traffic effective at 0100 hours June 19, Clay spoke for the Western world.

"We will not be bluffed," he said. "We will not be intimidated. We have a right to stay in Berlin and we are going to stay."

In their effort to starve the Western allies out and bring West Berlin to its knees the Russians halted all rail, road and canal traffic running through East Germany to and from West Berlin.

As an answer Clay organized the Anglo-American airlift that was given the job of bringing in all the supplies necessary to feed and keep operating a city of more than 2 million. It was a job that many thought impossible, a view shared by the Russians.

DID THE JOB

But the airlift did the job. In flights made around the clock American and British pilots brought into the city in 276,926 flights a total of 2,323,067 tons of supplies—about a ton for every West Berliner.

Clay again came to the city's aid when the wall was built on the East-West Berlin border, Aug. 13, 1961. That time, when the city so badly needed a moral boost, Clay came back as the Berlin advisor of President John F. Kennedy. His presence reassured the city of American determination to stand by it.

Today, West Berlin is accused of having become provincial since it no longer is Germany's capital. In fact most other German cities are hicktowns compared to West Berlin. Yet it also is a city that is asking questions about its future and seeking a new role to play.

GERMAN 'CAPITAL'

West German political leaders in their speeches still often refer to Berlin as the "capital of Germany." By this they mean that it used to be the capital of a unified Germany and it again will be the capital one day.

But with each passing year the prospect of reunifying the Western "Federal Republic of Germany" and the Eastern "German Democratic Republic" becomes dimmer, and West Berlin knows it.

The city's population has been dropping since the wall went up and cut off the refugee flow from the East. In January 1969, West Berlin had 2,141,441 people, a drop of 20,000 since Januard 1968. It has lost 60,000 people since 1965.

It is estimated by 1980 the population might fall below 2 million.

Deaths exceed births and 21 per cent of the people in West Berlin are more than 65 years old, compared to 12 per cent in West Germany. Almost half West Berlin's population is older than 45.

POPULATION DRIVE

The city is carrying on a well oraganized campaign to get West Germans to come here. In 1968, 18,662 persons moved to West Berlin. But 22,244 moved out.

Its location inside East Germany is not a help in recruiting new citizens. A public opinion survey disclosed that half the young people in West Germany consider West Berlin a more dangerous place to live than West Germany.

There is a movement here, very small but growing, that advocates that West Berlin play down its ties to the West and reach some sort of accommodation with East Germany based on the recognition of East Germany.

But West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz asserts that this is a dangerous dream. He says the only basis upon which the city can survive is by cultivating its legal, financial and economic ties to West Germany under the umbrella of Western allied security guarantees.

"Events in Czechoslovakia show what happens to those who fall in the eastern sphere," he said.

Breakfasts Offered For Mother's Day

A Mother's Day breakfast will be serived tomorrow by the Marin County Foster Parents Association at Blessed Sacrament Church, 160 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

Gari H. Ketcham, president of the foster parents group, announced that complete breakfasts will be served for both adults and children, from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

One-Way Tolls Saving Money, Directors Told

One-way toll collection on the Golden Gate Bridge will save $173,088 a year because fewer collectors are needed, Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported yesterday.

The toll collection force now has 48 officers, he said, compared with 64 authorized under the old, two-way collection system. The force was not up to full strength when the one-way system began last October, and the reductions have come about by normal attrition and by shifting some men to other work.

The directors of the bridge and highway district voted in March to make the one-way system permanent. However, it will be reversed to collect from northbound traffic after completion of a project to expand the toll plaza.

Luehring also reported to directors, who met yesterday, that maintenance work on the east sidewalk of the bridge had been completed. It was reopened last week to pedestrian traffic during weekdays, he reported.

David Curtis of 335 Golden Gate Avenue, Belvedere, a member of Boy Scout Troop 9, recently was given the Eagle Scout Award, one of scouting's highest honors.

Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Curtis, was presented the award in ceremonies at St. Stephen's Church. He is a freshman at Redwood High School.

DEGREE — Robert G. Little, son of Mrs. Lucretia Little of Mill Valley and a candidate for a doctorate degree in chemistry at New York State University at Buffalo, has been awarded a research grant by the National Science Foundation for research this summer at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Long Island, N.Y.

PACIFIC DUTY — Fireman Apprentice James I. Sloan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byrl Sloan of 623 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, is serving in the Western Pacific aboard the Vega, a refrigerated stores ship.

GRADUATE — Claire H. Hansen of San Anselmo received a bachelor's degree in education at the end of the winter quarter at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Wash.

EUROPEAN TRAINING — Stephen J. Coates, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Coates, 380 Riviera Drive, San Rafael, a senior at San Jose State College, will be in Copenhagen, Denmark, for eight weeks this summer as a trainee with the International Association of Students in Economics and Commerce.

DEPARTING — David Stevens of Vallejo, who has directed the Marin group of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, is leaving the Bay Area to assist in the arrangement of music at the national headquarters of SPEBSQSA in Kenosha, Wis.

SERVICE SPEAKER — Muriel Alstrom of 383 Cascade Drive, Fairfax, will be guest speaker at the Divine Science Hawaii service Sunday at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel, Waikiki, Honolulu. Mrs. Alstrom is director of Creative Thinking, San Francisco.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER — Radarman 3/c Michael E. Walraven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Walraven of 316 G Street, San Rafael, is serving aboard the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise in the South China Sea.

IN VIETNAM — Marine Lance Cpl. Peter M. M. Kukla, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf S. Kukla of 77 Glenwood Drive, San Rafael, is serving with the First Marine Aircraft Wing in Vietnam.

AIR FORCE TRAINING — Airman James W. Myers, son of Col. and Mrs. Jefferson H. Myers of 350 Irwin Street, San Rafael, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex., for training in accounting and finance after completing basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

IN THAILAND — Second Lt. Walter L. Mann, son of Ma. and Mrs. Raymond Mann, 59 Balboa Avenue, San Rafael, is on duty at Udorn Royal Thai Air Force Base, Thailand.

WRITING AWARD — Tim Dolan, a journalism senior at California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo, won first place recently in statewide college publications competition for his editorial calling for stricter control of the Cal Poly student court. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Dolan Jr. of 16 Elena Circle, San Rafael.

VIETNAM DUTY — Pfc. Jack L. Nicholson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Nicholson, 16 Janet Way, Tiburon, has been assigned to the 17th Cavalry in Vietnam as a communications specialist.

HONOR SOCIETY — Gloria J. Burns of 121 Birch Way, Santa Venetia, has qualified for membership in the freshman women's honor society at Oregon State University.

TOP AIRMAN — T/Sgt. James E. Whitson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whitson of 2031 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, has been named man of the month at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., for his work as a Minuteman missile facility manager.

MECHANIC SCHOOL — Airman Michael E. Tonini, son of Mrs. Janice Cauch of 1958 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, recently was graduated from a course for aircraft mechanics at Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex., and scheduled for duty in Okinawa.

SEABEE DUTY — Construction Electrician 3/c David A. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Smith of 542 Rowland Boulevard, Novato, is serving with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 7 at Davisville, R.I.

IN KANSAS — Sgt. Charles M. Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Maxwell of 127 Wilson Way, Larkspur, a radio repairman, has been assigned to duty at McConnell Air Force Base, Japan.

FINISHES BASIC — Airman Stuart D. Saunders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Saunders of 235 Via La Cumbre, Greenbrae, has completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., and has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., for training in aircraft maintenance.

Two Terra Linda Youths Accused Of Dope Sales

Two alleged teen-age drug pushers who attend Terra Linda High School have been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall and charged with peddling narcotics to other youngsters, juvenile officers said yesterday.

Kevin Walsh, 16, of 632 Bamboo Terrace, Terra Linda, is accused of selling 22 lids of marijuana for about $200 to another Terra Linda student. He would not say where he obtained the weed, according to Inspector Charles Prandi of the sheriff's juvenile bureau.

This was Walsh's first arrest, Prandi added.

Scott Susman, 15, of 668 Knocknaboul Way, Terra Linda, already on probation for selling wine-soaked marijuana cigarettes earlier this year, was accused of having 15 capsules which Prandi thought might be LSD but which the youth said were THC. Prandi said he was selling the capsules.

Prandi said that a search of Susman's room produced a shotgun, pellet rifle, pellet pistol, syringe and a small quantity of suspected methedrine — all confiscated. A pellet gun was also found in Walsh's room.

Guilty Plea Entered On Check Forgery

Alvester Jackson, 23, of Corte Madera, yesterday pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to one charge of forging a check April 11 in San Anselmo. A second similar count was dismissed.

Judge Harold J. Haley set sentencing for June 2.

Blackout's Cause

A coiled clothesline — which cut off power to 25 San Anselmo homes Tuesday when it landed on a power line — was thrown by Mario E. Watkins of 448 Scenic Avenue, not Watkins' son, as the Independent-Journal said Thursday. Watkins reported the correction.

STORM OVER SAINTS

Travelers Stoutly Back Christopher

COMBINED AP & UPI

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican sounded alarmed today at confusion and protests exploding in the wake of the newly issued Church calendar dropped and downgrading dozens of saints.

A terse editorial in the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano sought to reassure Roman Catholics that no saints have actually been abolished and that saints removed from the calendar may still be venerated on local levels.

The explosion of reaction that followed the appearance of the new Calendarium Romanum—Roman Calendar — yesterday under Pope Paul VI's decree had been expected. But even Vatican authorities who had predicted that it would cause discomfort and trouble apparently were not prepared for such a swift outburst.

In Rome, the calendar, published in Latin, became a runaway best seller at the lire equovalen of $4.80 a copy.

ST. NICHOLAS
Virginia mourns

Motorists still can hang St. Christopher medals from dashboards, artillerymen still can pray to St. Barbara and the British still can venerate dragon killer St. George despite the Vatican's demotion of dozens of saints Roman Catholics have honored for centuries.

Among the heirarchy of sainthood demoted yesterday were St. Nicholas, St. Valentine, St. Barbara, St. George and perhaps the most popular saint in Christendom, St. Christopher.

The Vatican cannot be sure any of them ever lived.

The names will disappear from the church calendar of approved and recognized saints whom Catholics must honor on special days. But all will remain saints and Catholics may name them in prayers.

The reform was approved by Pope Paul VI last Feb. 14 but it was not announced until yesterday by the Rev. Pierre Journel.

The idea is to downgrade the role of saints, particularly ones the Vatican is not sure ever existed and emphasize the importance of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

St. Christopher is considered by millions the patron of travelers. Medals hearing his picture are a big business in Rome.

"I don't care what the Pope says," said a clerk in Billi's souvenir shop a block from St. Peter's Basilica. "We will always sell a lot of St. Christopher medals."

The English countryside is dotted with hundreds of statues to St. George, a patron saint in Britain long before the Reformation split the country.

In Chatham, N.Y., Virginia still believes there's a Santa Clause.

ST. CHRISTOPHER
Travelers bereft?

Santa Claus' demotion by the Vatican left Mrs. Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas in the same spirit as the "Yes Virginia" letter written to her 72 years ago.

"Oh," Mrs. Douglas said yesterday when she was told St. Nicholas would no longer be entitled to special prayers and veneration by Roman Catholics.

She quickly added, however, that "what is Christmas is always there."

Mrs. Douglas, now 78 and a great-grandmother, was 8-years-old and living in New York City when she wrote a letter to a newspaper asking, "please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

The issue attacked even a California city, Santa Barbara.

Anyone for a name change? Such as Oilville, in honor of a leaky off-shore well?

Not so far as Mayor Gerald Firestone is concerned.

"I don't think," he said, "that the Pope's decision will have any effect whatsoever as far as the name of our city is concerned."

Marines Refuse To Prosecute In Arrest Case

CAMP PENDLETON (UPI)— A Marine sergeant accused of using undue force to remove an alleged AWOL Marine from a church "sanctuary" will not be court-martialed, the Corps announced yesterday.

A Marine spokesman said the recruit, Lance Cpl. Austin Craig Murphy, 18, refused to testify against Sgt. Winster Minton, who was to have gone on trial Tuesday.

The Corps said Murphy's attorney advised him not to testify under the self-incrimination clause of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

Minton and Lance Cpl. Ronald E. Rawls arrested Murphy, of Miami, at a Whittier Unitarian church while returning from leave in Los Angeles March 20. No charges were filed against Rawls.

Since then, the church has granted "symbolic sanctuary" to three other servicemen, two of whom are still living in the church's education building.

Scientists Study Mystery Water

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — After all the centuries of research, scientists are suddenly hung-up on one of the world's most common substances: Water.

The trouble is that there seems to be a new kind of water, four times as heavy as it should be, and exhibiting some of the characteristics of liquid plastic instead of plain old H2O.

No one is yet talking much in public about the stuff — called anomalous water — because its existence is completely counter to the usual thinking about water, and no one wants to make a fool of himself. But workers in at least three nations are quietly excited by it. They might have the problem solved by now except that only miniscule amounts of the stuff can be made at a time.

The anomalous water, which in some measurements appears to show a high viscosity and a molecular weight about four times that of ordinary water, was first noticed by Dr. Boris V. Derjaguin, who is director of the department of surface phenomena in the Institute of Physical Chemistry of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

He was studying forces extending from solid surfaces in liquids condensed in tubes when he came across a water condensate that showed abnormal properties. His report was greeted with a good deal of skepticism but with some effort he was at last able to persuade groups at two British laboratories to check his work.

There was and still is a large group of skeptics, but the U.S. Navy is interested in finding out what's there. "I'm uncertain at the moment where I stand," says Harry Fox of the Office of Naval Research, but he adds that a meeting on the finding is planned for Washington, D.C., at the end of February: a small working group, "a dozen and a half observers, mainly Navy."

"We've got to find out whether there is something there," says the Navy's Dr. Ralph A. Burton. "If not we'll clear the air." But he goes on to say that nobody can think of any explanation except that there is something new. People have racked their brains for explanations in terms of known materials. Peroxide mixed with water would have the viscosity but not the molecular weight, for example. "Until someone is able to give a mechanism for this it's an annoying mystery," he says.

It's annoying to theorists, whose current theories of liquids don't predict this sort of behavior. The implications go far beyond water. Some observers feel that if water shows this anomalous state, so might other substances and a new field of research into materials with unusual properties may open up.

Early measurements seemed to show that the anomalous water had a molecular weight of 72. This is four times that of an ordinary water molecule and leads some people to suggest that the anomalous water may be some kind of polymer, like a plastic, built of four ordinary water molecules.

Anomalous water is not technologically very difficult to make. The apparatus is so simple that one English boy is preparing to duplicate the experiments as a science fair project.

The explanation, as Dr. Derjaguin sees it, is that the water condenses on the glass walls of a tube in a manner similar to certain kinds of crystals. This mode of growth forms "a network of hydrogen bonds of unusual structure" in the liquid.

Though the glass tube seems to be necessary in forming anomalous water, once the substance is formed it can be taken away from the tube and will still retain its structure. It appears to be quite stable against heating, cooling and aging. There are reports that samples have been carried from Russia to Britain and still retained their anomalous properties at the end of the trip.

Very little has yet been published on the subject. Possibly the only public paper is Dr. Derjaguin's "Effect of Lyophile Surfaces on the Properties of Boundary Liquid Films," published in 1966 on page 110 of volume 42 of Discussions of the Faraday Society. There are some U.S. Navy preliminary reports, but they are for "internal consideration only."

BRIDGE WINNERS IN MARIN

American Contract Bridge League winners in Marin this week:

Marin Unit, Sunday afternoon, special tournament:

Barnard Has Experiments For Space

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the world's heart transplant pioneer, has proposed a series of space experiments to study cell growth and development for possible application to organ transplants.

Barnard said the tests would study the effect of weightlessness on cell development. They also may give some indication, he said, on how a lack of gravity would affect the body's rejection process — one of the main hazards of organ transplant operations.

Birkhead, a consulting scientist

Barnard and Dr. N. C. with General Electric Co.'s Reentry Systems Organization here, have outlined to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration a series of six experiments. They would be flown in something like Ge's biosattelite, an earth-orbiting satellite that studies weightlessness on various organisms.

Bernard recently testified before the House subcommittee on Space Science and Applications. He outlined his views on how the space program can be used for basic biological research. GE released their proposals Saturday.

Drs. Barnard and Birkhard said "gravity has been shown to play a part in maintaining the genetic character of living cells.

"If cells in weightlessness lose some of their discrimination in regard to their own character, it is possible they will discriminate less sharply against cells from another organism. If so we can then find ways to disturb the integrating influence of gravity on earth."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

German measles (rubella) is not a serious disease except when it develops in women in the first three months of pregnancy. It is a major threat because many of these babies are born with defects involving the eye, ear, and heart.

In 1964 more than 20,000 infants came into the world with defects traceable to a mother who had measles while pregnant.

STUDIES SHOWED that rubella was responsible, because babies retain the causative virus for as long as a year after birth. In some instances, susceptible nurses and doctors contracted the disease while caring for the child.

German measles tends to occur in epidemic proportions every five to seven years. The last outbreak in the United States took place in the 1963-64 season; the next is expected in the spring of 1970. The date is significant because several protective vaccines now being used experimentally are awaiting government approval.

Because time is of the essence, how can the vaccine be used most effectively? Some authorities believe mass immunization of all pre-schoolers and those in the elementary grades is the answer. This will reduce the chance of children getting and transmitting the German measles virus to their mothers. By protecting children, the chance of susceptible adults getting the disease is remote.

AN ALTERNATIVE is immunizing adolescent girls and women of childbearing potential who have never had rubella. In this way, the group with which we are concerned would be protected. After the vaccine is licensed, we hope that enough will be manufactured so that all women and children can be immunized.

The new vaccine is made from live, but weakened, viruses. The government is cautious, because health officials do not want the virus from vaccines to spread to vulnerable unvaccinated persons. Tests on thousands of children have shown that the product is highly effective and well tolerated. There is no instance in which the vaccinated person has passed along the virus even though he developed a very mild form of the disease.

GALL BLADDER BOUT

R. C. writes: Does a gall bladder attack call for immediate surgery?

REPLY

No, but much depends on what you mean by a gall bladder attack. Surgery seldom is recommended when a stone is being passed. However, if the attack is being caused by acute inflammation of the organ, some physicians recommend immediate surgery. The problem is handled in much the same way as appendicitis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on gall bladder disease.

DRINKING AND DRIVING

S. B. writes: My husband maintains that, in a comparatively short period of time — two to three hours — it is perfectly safe to drink approximately eight ounces of bourbon, eat a good meal, and then take to the highway. True or false?

REPLY

False, even though individual tolerances vary.

CIRRHOSIS FAVORS MEN

Mr. K. writes: Do women get cirrhosis of the liver?

REPLY

Yes, but two out of every three sufferers are men.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, May 10, the 130th day of 1969 with 235 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1865 Confederate President Jefferson Davis was captured as he fled Irwinville, Ga. Davis was sentenced to two years in prison.

In 1940 German army divisions invaded Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Last year the United States and North Vietnam met for their first formal conference in Paris.

A thought for the day: British Chaplain Jeremy Taylor said, "No man ever repented that he rose from the table sober, healthful and with his wits about him."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

This Routine Bridge Crime Discouraging To A Detective

"Very discouraging, Watson," Sherlock Holmes grumbled as he stalked out of the Baker Street Bridge Club. "Crime is becoming more and more a matter of routine." Dr. Watson followed the great detective in a puzzled mood; he hadn't seen any sign of a crime.

WATCHING PLAY

The two had been watching the play of the hand shown today. West opened the king of spades, and East ruffed dummy's ace. East returned the queen of diamonds, and South eventually lost two clubs and a spade. Down one.

Since you're much cleverer than Dr. Watson you have surely noticed the bridge crime that annoyed Sherlock Holmes. See if you can spot the crime and the criminal before you read on.

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN

South was the criminal since he should have made his contract by proper play. He should have known that West had a six-card spade suit for his jump to two spades. This meant that East had no spades at all and that East would ruff the ace of spades if given a chance to do so.

The way to make the hand is to give East no chance to ruff dummy's ace of spades. South must play a low spade from dummy at the first trick, allowing West to win with the king of spades. West continues with the queen of spades, and South must again play low from the dummy.

BEST DEFENSE

When West then continues with the jack of spades (the best defense), South plays a third low spade from the dummy and ruffs in his own hand. Now declarer can draw all of the missing trumps, enter dummy with the ace of clubs and discard a club on the ace of spades. South eventually gives up one club, but his contract is safe since he takes six trumps, the three side aces, and the king of clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ A 9 7 4 3
♦ A 7 4
♣ A 8 6

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and one point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than to pass because a borderline hand with three aces should be opened and also because a borderline hand with a five-card spade suit should be bid. Two reasons to bid are easily enough.

Mennonites Practice Simplicity Of Life

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Can you name a Protestant denomination which is more than four centuries old; which established its first American congregations in Pennsylvania; and which places great emphasis on pacifism and simplicity of life?

If you said, "the Quakers," you're wrong. They're only 300 years old. The correct answer is: the Mennonites.

The Mennonite movement has never been large in numbers. Today it has about 250,000 adherents in the United States, and perhpas as many more scattered around the rest of the world.

But historically it ranks alongside the Lutherans, Calvinists and Anglicans as one of the original Reformation churches.

The first Mennonite congregation was organized in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1525—just eight years after Martin Luther performed history's most important act of tackhammer carpentry on that church door in Wittenberg.

The first Mennonites were inspired by the preaching of the Swiss reformer Ulrich Zwingli. But they disagreed with Zwingli (and with Calvin and Luther) about church-state relations, which they felt should be as near nil as possible.

They also denied the validity of infant baptism, and insisted that only an adult believer could be baptized. Because they rebaptized adults who had been baptized as infants, they became known as Anabaptists.

They also went far beyond Luther and Calvin in repudiating other doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church, such as the sacramental view of Holy Communion. Their uncompromising insistence on reuturning to the "simple Christianity" of the primitive church placed them at the far left wing of the Reformation, and made them as unpopular in Protestant countries as in Roman Catholic countries.

No religious body has ever been subjected to a more relentless and bloody persecution than was inflicted upon the Anabaptists. They were hounded with equal zeal by Roman Catholics, by Lutherans and by Calvinists. They were hanged, burned at the stake, and drowned—a form of death which Swiss Calvinists considered particularly appropriate for persons with "heretical" views about baptism. Within the space of 10 years, more than five thousand Anabpatist were martryed in Europe.

Some of the survivors fled to North Germany under the leadership of a former Roman Catholic priest named Menno Simons (from whom came the name "Mennonites.") They later moved from Germany into Central Eruope, where they settled on wastelands which no one else wanted and brought them into fruitful cultivation through their great skill as farmers.

Eventually, their prosperity attracted envious eyes and the governments which had welcomed them to wastelands began to look covetously upon their flourishing farms. So the Mennonites had to hunt another home.

In 1683, the great Quaker founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, offered them a haven there. The first immigrants were a group of 13 Mennonite families who settled in Germantown, Pa., not far from Philadelphia. Other Mennonite immigrants followed during the next few years, and by the time of the American Revolution there were Mennonite communities spread across the frontier in Ohio, Virginia, Indiana, Illinois and even farther west. These states, with Kansas and the Dakotas, remain the principal centers of Mennonite strength today.

Although all Mennonites share the same basic heritage, they differ on details. There are about 20 distinct groupings within the Mennonite family.

The largest body — about 80,000—belongs to a denomination known as the Mennonite Church. Second in size is the Central conference Mennonite Church with some 50,000 members. Both of these denominations are relatively "liberal" by Mennonite standards, particlarly with regard to dress and appearance. The men are cleanshaven and wear ordinary business suits. The women dress modestly, without makeup or jewelry, but are rarely seen in "quaint" costumes.

The most colorful and widely publicized branches of the movement is the old order Amish colony of Pennsylvania, whose 20,000 members (to the delight of the chambers of commerce promoting tourism in the "Pennsylvania Dutch Country") wear a highly distinctive black garb, use hooks-and-eyes instead of buttons on their clothing, and insist on riding in horse-drawn buggies instead of automobiles.

Another relatively small branch which attracts a lot of public attention because of its unusual customs is the Hutterian Brethren, a colony of about 5,000 living in isolated agricultural communities in South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana. They are similar to the old order Amish in many of their folkways, with one notable addition: they practice communal ownership of property.

Mennonite worship, even in the more "liberal" branches, is simple and austere. It is built around exposition of biblical texts, which are interpreted literally as the "inspired, inerrant, authoritative word of God."

Church membership is never regarded as a mere social convention; it is a serious pledge of commitment to Christian discipleship, and anyone who willfully disobey's Christ's teachings, as the Mennonites undertsand them, is liable to "banning" or expulsion from the fellowship.

Mennonites contend that Christ meant exactly what he said when he told his disciples to love their enemies, to turn the other cheek when struck, and to offer no resistance to those who would do them evil.

They believe that any use of force—particularly the waging of war—is totally incompatible they are uncompromising pacifists, refusing not only to hold arms but also to hold office as magistrates or policemen.

Mennonite youths discharge their service obligations in noncombatant jobs which do not violate their conscience, including very hazardous service as medical aides in combat areas.

Mennonites disapprove of drinking, smoking, dancing, card-playing and movies. But these prohibitions are regarded as incidental aspects of a holy life. Theirs is not essentially a "shalt not" religion. Their main emphasis always is on one mighty shalt—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart . . . and thy neighbor as thyself."

In obedience to this commandment, Mennonites operate in Vietnam and other areas of human suffering a vast relief program which requires extremely sacrificial giving for so small a body to support.

Mother's Day Debut For Men's Chorus

A 25-voice Men's chorus, composed mostly of fledgling choir singers, will debut at the Church of All Faiths, (American Baptist Convention), Corte Madera, tomorrow during the morning worship service.

The chorus, under the direction of Norman Clayton, minister of music, will perform the religious standards, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," and "How Great Thou Art."

Only three of the members have previous chorus experience.

Clayton also is scheduled to sing Malott's "For My Mother."

The chorus has practiced regularly for the Mother's Day service on Sunday mornings for several weeks. Rev. Joseph L. Hughes, pastor, reported one nearby resident, upon awakening to the chorus' strains, exclaimed she though she had died and gone to her reward.

Hughes will preach on "The Heart of the Home."

State Gives Cloister Back To Church

SOFIA (UPI)—With the naming of the Vicar of Sofia, Archimandirt Joan, as abbot, the world famous Bulgarian Rila cloister is back in the hands of the Orthodox Church.

Thousands of worshippers are again gathering at the national shrine which was seized by the government shortly after the Communist takeover in World War II, church authorities said.

The 1000-year-old cloister was built at the time of, or shortly after, the death of Saint Ivan Rilski and was a symbol for Bulgarian nationalism through numerous invasions and some five centuries of Ottoman rule.

One of the largest cloisters in the Balkans, Rila is a huge square building which can house more than 2,000 people. An ancient church stands in the monastery yard next to a stone battle tower built in the 14th Century by the then district chief Khrelyu.

After World War II the shrine was turned into a national museum in which visitors could admire the cloister's many art treasures.

The government first spoke of turning the cloister back to the church during the visit to Bulgaria of the Orthodox leader Patriarch Athenagoras I in the fall of 1967.

The newly named abbot, Archimandrit Joan, was a monk in Rila for some years before it was seized by the government. He served in recent years as assistant to Patriarch Kyrill of Sofia and was observer for the Bulgarian Orthodox Church at the Second Vatican Council.

During the time the cloister was in government hands, it was completely restored, and running water and central heating were installed. At the same time, shops, a new hotel and first class roads were added, making life easier for the cloister monks and tourists alike.

New Vicar For Church In Inverness

Rev. David Schofield, a graduate of the General Theological Seminary in New York has been called as a vicar of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness.

Schofield, who will replace Rev. Francis Read, who is retiring, however, will not assume his duties until the fall.Read will deliver his final sermon on Trinity Sunday, June 1.

Upon retirement Read will become associated with the American Church Union in Pelham Manor, N.Y.

Schofield, who was ordained into the priesthood in 1963 at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin in San Francisco, is currently associated with the Holy Redeemer Clergy House in London.

Until Schofield's arrival on Oct. 1, St. Columba's will be supplied with visiting priests from the diocese.

VOICES RAISED IN SONG — A 25-voice men's chorus will sing out tomorrow at the morning service at Church of All Faiths, Corte Madera. The group, shown at a practice, is making its debut.

Two Marinite Delegates To Presbyterian Assembly

Dr. Neill Hamilton, professor of New Testament at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, and Charles A. Black of Tiburon will be among Synod of the Golden Gate delegates to the United Presbyterian Church, USA, annual General Assembly, opening Wednesday in San Antonio, Tex.

During the week-long meeting delegates will be asked to act on the following subject: tax exempt status of churches; ghetto investment policies; conscientious objection to war; world hunger; the "brown power" movement; ecumenical involvements and church reorganization

One of the first orders of business will be election of a moderator (the presiding officer of the General Assembly and titular head of the donomination) to succeed Rev. John Coventry Smith.

The four candidates are Rev. George M. Docherty, Presbytery of Washington City (D.C.); John Park Lee, layman, Presbytery of the Palisades, New Jersey; Rev. David A. MacLennan, Presbytery of South Florida, and Rev. George M. Sweazey of the Presbytery of St. Louis.

Church Plans Aid In Poverty Areas

NEW YORK (UPI) — The overseas missionary board of the United Church of Christ, which owns securities valued at $30 million, has decided to invest part of its capital in projects for social and economic improvement of developing nations, including food production and distribution and housing construction.

Dr. Everett A. Babcock, treasurer, said the United Church Board of World Ministries "feels obligated to make responsible use of some of its investment capital to bring about basic improvements in the economy of underdeveloped countries.

Annual Banquet Is Set Tonight

The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet at the First Baptist Church, Mill Valley, is being presented today at 6:30 p.m. in the church's Fellowship Hall.

Featured speaker will be Mrs. Larry Orman, who will recount her family's adventures during a vacation missionary encounter with Oklahoma Indians.

Reservations for the event, sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society, may be made by telephoning the church.

To Lead Church

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nominating committee of the United Church of Christ has unanimously nominated Dr. Robert V. Moss, Jr., president of Lancaster Pa. Theological Seminary, as president of the church.

Defiance Of Bible Ban Rule Sweeping Through Pennsylvania

CLAIRTON, Pa. (AP) — Open defiance of the Supreme Court rule banning Bible and prayer reading in the nation's schools is sweeping through Pennsylvania.

A grass-roots movement has so far brought a revival of Bible reading in four school districts comprising almost 18,000 children.

In several other communities requests to reinstate Bible reading are before school boards. And a bill that would allow Bible reading five minutes before the start of school has been introduced in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. It was sponsored by 53 House members.

"People are saying the day the Supreme Court banned God was the day that led to moral degeneracy in the country," says Dr. Robert LaFrankie, superintendent of schools in Clairton, a smoky, Monongahela River steel town near Pittsburgh.

He says he has received more than 1,000 letters from across the country commending the Clairton school board's unanimous decision to reinstate Bible reading earlier this year.

"The people here have taken so much from government over the past eight to 10 years in the form of mandates that they feel the individual is suffering at the expense of the majority," says LaFrankie, a 40-year-old former Englewood, N.J., school principal. "They're saying, 'Who's the state? The people are the state. Who's the Supreme Court to serve? It's to serve the people.'"

Morning prayer and Bible reading are also back in the Phillipsburg-Osceola School District in central Pennsylvania and the Albert-Gallatin and Brownsville school districts in Fayette County, which touches the West Virginia border.

While all four school boards voted to bring back the Bible against the advice of board attorneys, there has been little commotion. The American Civil Liberties Union in Pittsburgh says it has been trying for two months to find someone willing to file suit against the Clairton board. They say they can't, despite a 1964 case against a Lebanon, Pa., school board where a federal court upheld the Supreme Court Bible ruling.

Some of the school board resolutions made Bible and prayer reading mandatory. However, the school superintendents have interpreted the decisions as allowing teachers and students to be excused if they wish. Few have.

"I think if there were anybody against it, they would have come forth," LaFrankie says. "I'm sure I would have heard from religious leaders by now."

A minifundamentalism has apparently sprouted in Clairton since the resurgence of classroom Bible reading. "Welcome to Clairton—The City of Prayer" signs now dot entrances to the town of 19,000. And the first of a series of "Youth Crusade for Christ Days" packed about 1,000 persons into high school auditorium in March.

But to the south, on the edge of Appalachia, fundamentalism has always been a way of life.

Symposium On German Pastor Set

Eberhard Bethge, biographer of underground German preacher Dietrich Bonhoeffer, will be a participant Thursday, May 22, in a symposium on Bonhoeffer at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

Bethge, one of Bonhoeffer's students during the final years of the Hitler regime, is the author of the biography "Dietrich Bonhoeffer," published last year in Germany.

The scholar, who is married to Bonhoeffer's niece, also draws his expertise from letters smuggled to him from Bonhoeffer's prison cell, which later were included in the work, "Letters and Papers from Prison."

Joining Bethge in the afternoon-evening program will be Benjamin A. Reist, Stewart Professor of Systematic Theology, and author of "The Promise of Bonhoeffer."

The symposium, presented by the San Francisco Theological Seminary, will begin at 2 p.m. in the First Church Sanctuary. An evening session will start at 8.

Kid Giants Frolic, 11-1

CHICAGO (UPI)—The frisky youngsters of the San Francisco Giants love to play in the rain. They may get another chance to do it again today.

Rookie Bob Burda clubbed his first major league homer and drove in four runs and young Don Mason contributed three singles and three RBI's yesterday to pace the Giants to an 11-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs in a game that was delayed four times by rain for a total of two hours and three minutes.

San Francisco teed off on six Chicago pitchers for 16 hits with Ken Henderson and Hal Lanier each adding three to the totals of Burda and Mason.

With Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Bobby Bonds on the ailing list, manager Clyde King has been forced to go with the youngsters. They haven't disappointed.

Burda clouted his homer off reliever Phil Regan in the seventh to wind up a five-run inning for the Giants.

Bob Bolin worked seven innings and gained credit for the win, his second in four decisions. Joe Gibbon blanked the Cubs over the last two frames on two hits.

Juan Marichal, who was slated to start, suffered a slight muscle pull in the rib cage. The injury is not considered serious and he is expected to take his turn on the mound in the rotation.

Ray Sadecki (2-3) gets the San Francisco call today against Ken Holtzman (4-1).

The lone Cub run yesterday off Bolin was a leadoff homer in the fourth by Willie Smith. Bolin yielded to a pinch hitter in the eighth after giving up nine hits and fanning six.

"My arm got awfully tired and almost went to sleep after the last rain delay. That's why I didn't warm up. I threw a lot of pitches but still didn't get a complete game."

"I'm no home run hitter like McCovey," Burda said. "When Willie hits 'em they're gone. When I hit 'em, I just run and hope the ball goes over the fielder's head."

Ken Henderson slammed a two-run, bases-loaded single in the three-run sixth to knock out Cub starter Bill Hands.

Houston Fans Pick Their All-Time Team

Baseball writers will select the game's all-time team and the game's greatest player later in the year to commemorate Baesball's Centennial 1869-1969.

Houston fans have beaten the writers to the punch. They already are balloting on an all-time team and "The Greatest Player Ever." Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are dominating the balloting. The Houston balloting ends May 15.

Ruth, baseball's all-time home run champion (714), has received 432 votes as the No. 1 player and outfielder on the all-time team. Gehrig, baseball's Iron Man, dominated balloting for first base with 426 votes.

Ruth Leads Cobb In Voting

In the "Greatest Player Ever" vote, Ruth leads Ty Cobb 242-140. Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle received a sprinkling of votes for this unique honor.

Houston fans are voting for eight players, plus a righthanded and lefthanded pitcher. Six of the 10 positions have just about been clinched — Gehrig at first, Rogers Hornsby at second, Honus Wagner at short, Ruth and Cobb in the outfield and Sandy Koufax as the southpaw pitcher.

Balloting for catcher is especially close with Bill Dickey (162 votes) and Yogi Berra (153) running one-two. Leading, but not yet cinches, are Pie Traynor at third, Walter Johnson as the righthanded pitcher and Ted Williams as the third outfielder.

Tough Positions To Choose

Third base (where 17 players received at least one vote) and second base (with 16 getting votes) were the most difficult position for Astro fans to pick. By contrast, only six first basemen other than Gehrig received a single vote.
about that

The leaders in the Houston fan vote:

Third base — Traynor has 160 votes. His closest competitor is Brooks Robinson with 94. Pepper Martin is a distant third with 35.

Shortstop — Wagner is making it a runaway with 329 votes, far ahead of Pee Wee Reese (52) and Phil Rizzuto (38).

Willie Mays Running Fourth

Outfield — Ruth (432), Cobb (258), Williams (221). Mays (189), Joe DiMaggio (142), Mantle (73) and Stan Musial (68) also have their admirers in the Astrodome.

Catcher — A one-two race for the Yankees with Dickey holding only a nine-vote edge (162-153) over Berra. Mickey Cochrane (99) and Roy Campanella (62) received more than token acknowledgement.

Righthanded pitcher — Johnson with 253 votes has a solid margin over Bob Feller (91) Cy Young (57) and Dizzy Dean (48).

Invitational Golf Tourney On Tap

Eighth annual Marvelous Marin Men's Invitational golf tournament at Marin Country Club course in Novato is scheduled May 23-24 with 80 two-man teams scheduled to compete.

In addition to the golf, guest players will be given breakfast and lunch. There will be daily winners as well as low net and low gross events in the 36-hole tourney.

Following the tournament there will be an awards dinner dance.

REALIGNMENT TALKS

Pro Grid Owners Struggling On

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's tireless club owners struggled through the night with the problem of realignment, continuing past the 19th hour mark early today in an attempt to find three National Football League teams to move into the American Football League.

With dawn approaching, the owners still were closeted in pro football's plush Park Avenue offices trying to meet both the requirements of realignmnt and today's afternoon deadline set by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle said pointedly before the beginning of yesterday's session: "One way or another we'll have a decision by Saturday afternoon."

The owners went into session at 1 p.m. yesterday and were locked in virtually continuous meetings throughout the day in an attempt to break the impasse that now has lasted through 13 days of talk.

Rozelle had also said he might be forced to pick the three teams himself, but there was no indication that he had either asked or been given the power necessary to resolve the problem in that manner.

The problem revolved around the selection of the three teams that have to be moved from the 16-team NFL into what is now the 10-team AFL to force the two 13-team conferences that will make up the structure of pro football beginning in 1970.

The franchises most prominently mentioned as the leading candidates to shift are Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, Atlanta, Minnesota and St. Louis.

There was virtually no word whatsoever from the pro football offices during the entire day and night on what progress, if any, had been made or whether the stalemate could be broken.

But the fact the owners were staying at the conference table was interpreted as a sign that there had been movement.

We've got a couple of topless honeys that'll blow your mind! Are you man enough? Sure you are!

Take the Datsun 2000. Go with 135 horses! Stop with front discs. More acceleration, better handling, more trouble-free running. Plus driving's silkiest 5-speed and $300 worth of no-cost extras. The look-alike Datsun 1600 comes on with 96 HP and a 4-speed. Parts and service coast to coast. Even with their tops up, these honeys make other sports cars obsolete...and overpriced!

A's Tumble Wild Yanks

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Hank Bauer of the Oakland A's had to admit that the New York Yankees didn't play baseball when he was with them like they did at Oakland Coliseum last night.

The Yankees committed five errors—all in one inning—as the Oakland A's came from behind to win 3-2.

Bauer, who starred on nine Yankee pennant-winning teams was amazed the way his old team threw the ball wildly around the field.

"We wouldn't have been up there every year if we played like that," he said.

Rookie third-baseman Bobby Murcer made two of the errors and pitcher Mel Stottlemyre, first baseman Joe Pepitone, and second baseman Horace Clarke each made one.

Despite all the errors one of the two Oakland runs in the fifth inning was earned. Sandwiched in with all the goofs were a pair of singles and a walk. One of the singles came off the bat of Tommy Reynolds who has hit safely in 12 straight games.

The winning pitcher was Chuck Dobson who never before defeated the Yankees in his four seasons in the majors. He had lost three straight to New York.

"Sure, I knew I hadn't beaten them before," Dobson said. "Everytime I faced them I'm aware of it and usually try too hard. This time I was more relaxed."

Dobson gave up eight hits but did not walk a man in evening his season record at 3-3. Dobson couldn't recall any other game in his career in which he did not walk a batter.

Favorites Win In Table Tennis Championships

Competiton continues today with finals scheduled tomorrow.

National men's singles champion Dal-Joon Lee of Cleveland and formerly all-Asian champ from South Korea, joined other top seeds, including four-time Open winner Erwin Klein of Los Angeles.

Also remaining in contention were national junior titleholder Glenn Cowan of Los Angeles and the No. 2 and 3 seeds, Dell Sweeris of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Jack Howard of Los Angeles.

Novato Assured Of Tie For Title

Novato High School's baseball team is only a Dillon away from the 1969 Marin County Athletic League baseball title.

As it is, the Hornets have already clinched at least a share of the title as of yesterday, with only three games left, and Russ Dillon, their unbeaten (6-0) and stingy (0.00 earned run average) pitcher is bound to see duty in one of those games.

The Hornets clinched the title by stepping by San Marin, 6-3, yesterday, doing about enough hitting to win and letting the Mustangs do the rest. The win gave them a 10-1 record

Terra Linda kept some faint glimmer of hope alive by downing San Rafael, 3-1, to keep three games off the pace while Tamalpais fell right out of the picture and close to the second division, losing to Drake, 9-6. And in a battle for last place, Redwood's hitless wonders won without hitting, almost, getting a 4-3 win over luckless Marin Catholic, on just one hit.

The Novato—San Marin game was over after two innings, but they played the rest of the game anyway. That's when the Hornets scored all of their six runs, with run-scoring singles by Dee Federick and Barry Berring doing some of the damage and four San Marin errors finishing the job. The Mustangs came back with two runs themselves but it wasn't enough, although they outhit the Hornets, 9-5, Jim Morrow won it for Novato.

Jerry Goodrick came through with a clutch three-hit performance on the mound for the Trojans, who again waited until the seventh inning to win. The only breathers Trojan pitchers seem to have is the heavy kind.

This time, with the score tied 1-1, the Trojans got two runs in the top of the seventh inning on a walk, a stolen base, an error and a run-scoring single by Craig Logan. Gary Trono had stolen home to account for the first run.

Drake pounded out 10 hits against two Tamalpais pitchers as Clark Jamison scored four runs and got two hits while Dave Alvarado, Fred Westcott and Al Tyler drove in two runs each.

The Pirates got off to a 9-0 lead before the Indians woke up to score a run in the sixth and five big ones in a last-gasp rally in the seventh, capped by Mike Locati's three-run homer.

Meanwhile, Frank Pomilia is turning out to be the biggest kill-joy in the league and Redwood's one and only weapon at the plate. Pomilia, who ruined Novato pitcher Steve McNally's bid for a no-hitter earlier in the season with a two-out single in the seventh inning, did it again this time, getting a two-out two-strike single that drove in the winning run in the Giants' win over Marin Catholic. It was the only hit of Rick Thomas, who had a long day, throwing 112 pitches. The Giants had scored their first three runs on errors and walks.

Stars Next In Western Track Relays

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The "preliminaries" are over and the open and intercollegiate trackmen move onto center stage tonight for the final phase of the 43rd edition of the West Coast Relays.

Competition belongs to John Carlos, Bob Seagren, Willie Davenport, and relay teams from San Jose State and Villanova.

Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, set two meet records yesterday to edge Occidental, 45-41½, for the collegiate team title. Cal Poly's two-mile and 440-yard relay teams scooted to records with clockings of 7:34.4 and 40.8, respectively.

Carlos runs into a top field in his continuing quest for a sub-nine second victory. The San Jose State speedster logged a wind-aided nine-flat in the 100-yard dash last week and has predicted he eventually will get into the eight second bracket. The world record is 9.1.

Seagren, the world record holder at 17-9, faces a field of four other pole vaulters who have been over 17-feet this year, led by Dick Railbacks and Erkii Mustakari.

Davenport will be out for the oldest standing meet record, the 13.5 time in the 120-high hurdles, set in 1950. Davenport was a gold medal winner in the Olympic Games' 110-meter highs.

Villanova has been coming on strong in the mile and the two-mile relays. The Easterners will be pressed by UCLA in the mile and the University of Texas at el Paso in the two-mile.

'Withdrawal Pains' Brought Cousy Back

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bob Cousy, new coach of the Cincinnati Royals, says he intended to stay out of basketball when he left the Boston College helm—"but I was going through some horrendous withdrawal symptoms."

The withdrawal was short, beginning with the end of the past season after a six-year stretch with Boston College. His teams produced a 117-34 record.

Surprise registered on the faces of some reporters when Cousy strolled into the Cincinnati Club yesterday with Royals' owner Max Jacobs—who had said on several occasions there would be no changes within the year in the head coaching department.

Cousy said, "I can't tell you exactly when I changed my mind. I was kidding myself I could be out of it and be happy. I'm so damned competitive."

He said the Royals would sit on the bench less and would concentrate on a running game. Then he went into a huddle with players Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas.

RUNNING GAME

"I feel that the way this game is played, you've got to capitalize constantly on a running game. We've got the best middle man in the game today in Oscar," said the man who was known as the quarterback of the Boston Celtics' fast break.

Cousy replaced Ed Jucker, who had a year left on a three-year contract and whose salary was in the $25,000-a-year bracket.

Cousy's salary was not disclosed, but it was learned that his three-year contract has a clause dealing with stock options and gives him complete control over trades.

Another Snead Is Coming

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Turn back the clock a couple of decades, put a brightly-banned straw hat on his head and he'd look for all the world like his Uncle Sam.

"He's helped me quite a lot," Jesse Carlyle Snead said of his famous uncle, Sam Snead.

"He'd get kinda impatient at times, though, said it was kinda like trying to train a bear."

Snead, a husky, 200-pounder, who abandoned pro baseball for the golf tour, shot a three-under-par 68 yesterday and was just one shot off the pace of leading Steve Reid going into today's second round of the $100,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

The test, on the 7,138-yard, par 71 Pecan Valley Country Club course was passed up by most of the top names in the game, including Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Billy Casper and Julius Boros, with the younger pros leaping to the forefront.

STILL SOGGY

The course was still soggy, with casual water from the violent thunderstorm that forced postponement of the first round Thursday still puddling the fairways when Reid and Snead came in.

It was considerably more dry in the afternoon when 20-year-old South African Bobby Cole matched Snead's 68 and tied for second place.

Seven others, including veteran Doug Sanders, were tied at 69 going into today's second round. Because of the postponement, a 36-hole windup is scheduled Sunday.

Pre-tourney favorite Frank Beard still is in contention with a 71, while U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and Chi Chi Rodriguez, who won this event the last time it was played, in 1967, each had a 74, well back.

Snead hasn't made the cut yet this season, but said in his opening round "all the things my uncle Sam and others have told me kinda fell into place."

Saints' Owner Rejects Franchise Switch Offer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Times-Picayune reported last night in a dispatch from New York that New Orleans Saints' owner John W. Mecom Jr. had turned down a $3 million offer to move his team "lock, stock, crawds and halo" into pro football's new American Conference.

The story, by the newspaper's sports editor, Bob Roesler, also quoted Mecom as saying, "late Thursday night I was offered a sum of money comparable to what the Philadelphia franchise went for. It came from a non-New Orleans group which I believe would be acceptable to the commissioners.

I gave them an emphatic no," the story, which was copyrighted, quoted Mecom. The Philadelphia Eagles recently were purchased for $16.5 million. Mecom paid $9.5 million for the New Orleans franchise two years ago.

BASKETBALL

OAKLAND — Eleven Oakland Oaks players are $4,545 richer today as the result of winning the American Basketball Association championship.

The championship pot came to $50,195 which was 10 per cent higher than the 1967-68 payoff.

TRACK AND FIELD

COOS BAY, Ore. — Steve Prefonaine, holder of the national prep two-mile record, ran the mile in 4:06.9 yesterday fastest high school time in the nation this year.

The 5-9½, 145-pound runner from Marshfield High School in Coos Bay established the national prep mark in the two-mile two weeks ago with a time of 8:41.5. His mile time was the 16th best in prep history. Jim Rynu, now a senior at Kansas, holds the prep record of 3:55.3.

GOLF

DALLAS, Tex. — Sandra Palmer posted a five-under-par 66 for the first round lead in the Civitan Open.

ATLANTA — Bobbie Jo Gabrielsen of Athens, Ga. defeated Cameron Chapman, Yazoo City, Miss. 2 and 1 and Mrs. Mary Ann Rathmell, Houston, Tex. beat Mrs. Scott Probasco, Chattanooga, 1 up on the 20th hole in the match play semifinals of the Women's Southern Amateur Tournament.

BASKETBALL

They Love Kosco In Los Angeles

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Andy Kosco can finally unpack his bags. They love him in Los Angeles.

Kosco, who "hates to move around," staked a strong claim to permanent residence in the City of the Angels with two homers and a single last night as he paced the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 13-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In other, mostly rain-soaked, NL games, San Francisco whipped Chicago, 11-1, Cincinnati beat Montreal, 8-5, in an abbreviated 6½ inning game, and St. Louis edged San Diego, 7-6. Houston at New York and Atlanta at Philadelphia were postponed because of rain.

Kosco started a wild, nine-run second-inning Los Angeles uprising with a single. Key blows in the inning included back-to-back doubles by Bill Sudakis and Ron Fairly, and a bases-loaded triple by Ted Sizemore. Kosco ended the scoring on his second time at bat in the inning with a two-run homer. He hit his second homer of the game—a three-run shot—in the sixth. Bill Singer allowed five hits in a six-inning stint to boost his record to 5-2.

Bob Tolan batted in four runs with a homer, triple and single for Cincinnati against the Expos. His two-run triple in the second inning snapped a 2-2 tie and put the Reds ahead for good. He banged a two-run homer in the sixth.

Run-scoring singles by the Cardinals' Curt Flood, Joe Torre and Bill White highlighted a five-run sixth inning that wiped out a four-run San Diego lead. Shortstop Jose Arcia received severe lacerations and a broken nose on Torre's smash in the inning. Later in the game, catcher Tim McCarver split his middle finger. Both may be out about a week.

AL ROUNDUP

Lost Birds Return To Haunt Orioles

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of Baltimore's lost baby birds has come home to roost—and prey on the startled Orioles.

Mike Fiore, a promising young slugger who migrated from Baltimore to Kansas City in the American League expansion draft, pinch hit a two-run ninth inning double as the scrappy Royals rallied for three runs and a 4-2 victory over the Orioles last night.

The loss, third for the Orioles in as many games against West Division clubs, trimmed their East Division lead to one game over the streaking Boston Red Sox, who whipped California 7-2.

Fiore's double off reliever Dick Hall overcame a 2-1 Baltimore lead and pitcher Dick Drago squeezed home another run before finishing a fancy four-hitter for his second major league victory.

TWO-HITTER

Mike Marshall fired a two-hitter as Seattle blanked Washington 2-0, Minnesota slugged Detroit 6-2 and Oakland edged the fumbling New York Yankees 3-2 in other AL action. The Chicago White Sox' game at Cleveland was rained out.

Drago, a 23-year-old right-hander drafted from the Detroit organization, held the Orioles hitless until the seventh, when Paul Blair and Frank Robinson drilled singles and Boog Powell doubled them home for a 2-1 edge.

THREE HITS

"Hall pitched to Fiore exactly as he was told," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver. "Fiore played for me two years in Rochester, and he never went with the outside pitch."

The 24-year-old first baseman hit 19 homers for the Orioles' Rochester farm club last season, but with Powell entrenched at first he became expendable in the draft.

He had a .250 batting average and one RBI—having hit the Royals' first homer on April 13—before delivering in the pinch against his ex-mates.

Lou Piniella, another of the six former Orioles on the Kansas City roster, collected three hits as the Royals came from behind for the 13th time in 15 winning games.

Peace Hopes, Anti-Inflation Trends Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks got a helping hand this week from a new Viet Cong peace proposal to end the Vietnam war and closed higher although traders "cooled it" a bit when reports trickled in that the Nixon administration is beginning to win the war against domestic inflation.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said a slowdown in the booming economy is detectable from Commerce Department statistics during the past month on business spending and activity. However, it will "take a while" for any major downturn to show up in the wage-price picture, he cautioned.

Private economists, meanwhile, said plant and equipment spending this year will rise considerably less than a recent government estimate. They also looked for a slower increase in the current quarter's gross national product versus the first quarter.

A slower growth rate for consumer installment credit in March, and the sizable drop in new factory orders for the same period also strengthened the administration's view that the economy is slowing.

The nation's unemployment rate, another key economic indicator, also increased last month. But Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, refused to predict whether the figures might indicate a cooling of the economy.

European monetary jitters had little adverse impact on the market, especially since traders seemed pretty well satisfied that the dollar would escape unharmed.

In fact, International Monetary Fund Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer said the crisis is strictly centered on Germany, and does not reflect softness on the part of any other currency.

Pacific Basin Business Forum Due In Bay Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson heads speakers next week at a meeting of an Organization of the United States and four other Pacific nations which did nearly $50 billion worth of trading in 1968.

The second general meeting of the Pacific Basin Economic Cooperation Committee will being together more than 150 business leaders from this country and Australia, Canada, Japan and New Zealand.

The participants will explore ways to strengthen economical and cultural ties and generate greater economic activity in developing countries of the Pacific.

Shigeo Nagano, president of Fuji Iron and Steel Co. of Japan, is president. National committee chairmen are Sir Edward Warren of Australia, A. Olaf Wolff of Canada, R. G. Speirs of New Zealand and Ransom M. Cook of the United States.

The organization was founded in a two-day meeting in Sydney Australia, last year, and is supported by private firms.

Extra Hearing Offered On Flood Control Design

The next phase of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project will get an added public hearing June 16 before the Marin County Board of Supervisors, and that will be the opportunity for any who oppose the work to have their say.

It is to be hoped they will be present as the Civic Center that day, to argue their case rationally, and will not wait until bulldozers pull into their neighborhoods, then to stage futile demonstrations.

The third phase will take the flood control project through the College of Marin property and the remainder of Kentfield, and clear through Ross to the Ross-San Anselmo line. Besides the major work on Corte Madera Creek, it includes some work in Ross Creek similar to that under way in Tamalpais Creek. No other tributary stream is involved.

THERE ARE SEVERAL things to bear in mind regarding the project — things which some Marin residents seem to have forgotten or never learned:

1. The project has already been approved through Ross. It has the approval of the Ross Town Council, the Marin Junior College District trustees, and the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

2. Design for the concrete channel which will run through Ross was shown in drawings which were on exhibit at the Ross Town Hall prior to the town council's approval in 1966.

3. All the necessary legal procedures have been completed so the Army Corps of Engineers can go ahead with contracts for the third phase.

However, to put away all possibility of charges of proceeding without someone's knowing about it, the board of supervisors scheduled the June 16 hearing. The Army Corps of Engineers has agreed to participate.

4. The Corps of Engineers, at the insistence of Marin County, has allocated 7 per cent of the project cost to its esthetic improvement. The corps has agreed to fencing and plantings which will help to blend the creek with the landscape. This is quite radical departure from the corps' usual practice, and was forced upon it by Marin County.

Details of the appearance are still open for discussion. The Army Corps of Engineers, having departed from its hard stand of the past that esthetics was none of its affair, may be willing to go farther than it has already in trying to make the completed project inoffensive in appearance. It cannot do so, however, if this would increase the total cost, as it is limited by the funds made available by Congress.

THERE ARE SOME THINGS about the need for the project that also should be kept in mind — things which some Marin residents seem to have forgotten or never learned:

1. Flooding in Ross and Kentfield has been extensive and expensive. It is impossible for the meandering creek, with trees and brush growing down into it, to carry off the water during heavy rains.

2. The first two phases of the project can do little to alleviate flooding above College Avenue in Kentfield as long as the creek from there up remains in its present condition.

3. The project was sought by the county. It was not proposed by the Army. It came as result of long agitation. Federal funds were obtained because it appeared too great an expense for the property owners benefitted to bear. And because it is a federal project, it comes under jurisdiction of the Corps of Engineers, whose duties include flood control.

IT SHOULD BE OBVIOUS to all that, if Corte Madera Creek is to be kept from flooding Ross and Kentfield, its channel must be both enlarged and straightened. Talk of rip-rapping a few bends in the creek is just talk. While that might enhance the appearance, it would not solve the flood problem.

If the capacity of the stream is to be enlarged, it must be either widened or deepened — or both. The design in the part of the project already completed to considerable extent limits the depth to which the upper portion can be cut without causing a backup — and flooding.

If all these things are kept in mind, the question of how the appearance of the project might be improved can be approached rationally.

WE SINCERELY HOPE the Corps of Engineers can be prevailed upon to go farther than it has already in beautifying the project design — although, as mentioned before, it has gone much farther with esthetic considerations on this project than it does customarily.

We sincerely hope that those who appear at the June 16 hearing will do so prepared to offer constructive suggestions rather than emotional orations. We hope they will all recognize that the things at stake are the protection of life and property from flooding — as well as the protection of the landscape.

The Lazy Birdwatcher

There are birdwatchers and there are birdwatchers. Birdwatching was once regarded as a hobby of tweedy eccentrics. In the days between the two World Wars, it took a fairly rugged individualist to "waste one's time" in such a "useless" way. Golf was exercise; dancing and the movies were fun; reading was educational; birdwatching was nothing.

Today, most people recognize that birdwatching can be exercise, fun and educational. In our growing awareness that all living creatures are more closely related than we imagined, and that what afflicts one affects another, people have flocked to the banner of the birdwatchers in droves. Today, it is one of Marin's most popular hobbies.

Instead of venturing forth to meet the birds in the woods, most Marinites prefer to do their birdwatching while seated. Bird feeders and other means of attracting the birds are often favored over barging out into the forests and meadows in the dawn hours.

As charter members of the Lazy Birdwatchers Society, this is our preferred method. It may not be so good for the health as the hiking method, but it does permit a more intimate acquaintance to develop between man and bird.

Sports promoter Tex Rickard, sensing a good story, once cabled George Bernard Shaw, "Have just read interview in which you claimed French heavyweight George Carpentier is the superman of boxing. Would you also say that Babe Ruth is the superman of baseball? Shaw cabled back, "Never heard of Ruth. Whose baby is she?"

Do you think politicians' set speeches today leave something to be desired? Have a look at what Senator William McAdoo once said about the perorations of President Warren Harding: His speeches leave the impression of army of pompous phrases moving over the landscape in search of an idea. Somethimes these meandering words actually capture a straggling thought and bear it triumphantly, a prisoner in their midst, until it dies of servitude and overwork."

Fire Bond Issue Got Long Study

In your column of May 7 a letter referred to the special bond election next Tuesday in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District.

It is most interesting that the wirter (Mrs. Yobuo Tanaka) indicates, on the eve of election, that she is possessed with such expertese in the science and administration of fire protection that she could develop a superior program for providing the requirements of our fire department.

One wonders why this lady and the few others who, only now, voice their opposition to this proposal failed to appear at the regularly scheduled public meetings of the board of directors of the district where, during the past five years, their objections, recommendations and questions would have been considered along with those of the concerned residents and taxpayers of the district who took the trouble to attend.

The Citizens' Committee for Fire Protection are making every possible effort to bring the facts to the electorate, assured that an informed public will adopt this most practical method of meeting the needs of the fire district.

Poignant Concern Of Young People

It worries me when I read in the papers about the seals being washed with oil, our dying bay, creeks being filled and lined with cement, and marshes being killed. I am expressing the thoughts of a young confused person who feels that we are killing off nature's beauty and resourcefulness.

Everyone should stop and think twice, think about the air they are breathing; the water they are drinking, which is so filled with chlorine that we've forgotten what real spring water tastes like. Everyone is contributing to the death of themselves and the death of their own land (whichever comes first). I also feel very strongly that the young people of today want to work and they would rather work to save their country than contribute to its destruction. Not in war, but in the battle for its preservation.

The ocean provides much of the food we eat. The plants in the forests produce the oxygen we breathe. The uses of chemicals in tha air and water are killing them slowly but surely. This has to be stopped now before it's too late. There may not be places for all of the young people who want and need jobs in your commercial businesses, but there are many, many areas where we can help in saving the world for we who will live in it tomorrow. But we also need your help — you who are shaping the society for us to fulfill.

LINES ON LIVING

Man Alone Compelled To Spiritual Growth

By Rabbi
HAIM KEMELMAN

What is a person's greatest need in life? After satisfying his physiological being and biological needs, his greatest compulsion is growth: to become. But whereas a beast of burden, a flower, a tree, develop simply by existing, a person has to nourish the deepest roots of his being in order to become. To fulfill his destiny, he must transcend himself by extending his relationships beyond the narrow world and life of himself.

Fulfilling growth — in soul more than in body — is a necessary condition of human life and human happiness. And it is not measured in pounds and in inches but by the intangibles of the spirit.

IN A TRUE sense, this constantly new-found rediscovery of a person's hidden powers and his freshly gained perspectives are a process of continual rebirth and self-resurrection. The human elements, the potentials are always there; only by turning our visionary powers inwardly and by rearranging the kaleidoscopic bits and pieces, we design the ever-changing and ever-glinting mosaics of renewed beauty and ecstasy. It's as if we would turn the mind's light upon itself the way a cell would look at itself.

And this can prove to be the profoundest joy of all human experiences: the superlative qualities of human encounter that allow us not only to "be lived" like the lower forms of life but to live as gods; not only to love in the flesh but also to be loved in soul: not only to be creatures of God, but also to be creators with God, in fashioning things of beauty and in glimpsing moments of truth.

We can extend ourselves into the lives and loves of others. We can reason, not only know. We can feel with other, not only for ourselves. We have a soul, a conscience, an intelligence and an impulse, if not always the inclination, for good. We are personalities seeking not only God but also endeavoring to imitate His eternal qualities by being God-like. However, this kind of human being demands the uninterrupted growth of becoming.

OF ALL the animal kingdom, man is the only bored creature — the most restless and searching, the most curious and uninhibited. He would literally die from the boredom of keeping his own company, or turn insane by the maddening routine of daily chores, were it not for his powers of self-innovation. His ability to gain a sense of newness, a feeling of "being born again" in the revealing reality of change and revitalization, is his only mitigating redemption.

Man with an experiencing soul must have the power to re-create himself, daily. And when he does, he fulfills the destiny of that selfhood within him that cries out for redeeming growth — for the miracle of a personal exodus, free and unshackled.

Violence Serves No Cause Well

Thank you for your Saturday editorial (May 3) on the "unprintable" abuse used by extremists at the recent College of Marin meeting. You might have added, however, that white extremists on the college scene indulge themselves in the same manner — many of them wearing "peace" and "love" symbols, and apparently oblivious to the contradiction of their behavior and their symbolism. Dr. Hayakawa, the semanticist, could probably point out that the same kind of put-down can be and is practiced by some of our most socially correct citizens without the use of objectionable language: the snide remark will serve.

We should all observe that violence serves no cause well, whether it is verbal violence or physical.

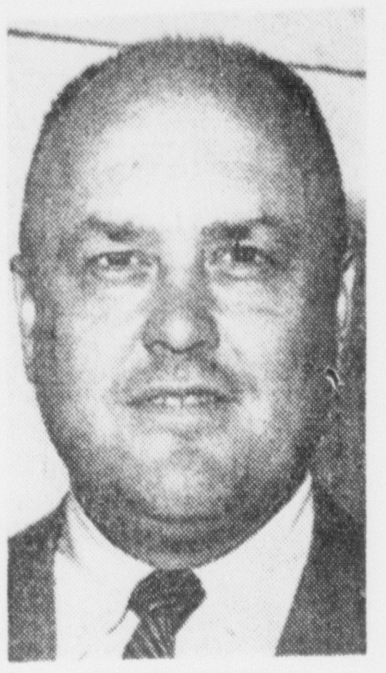
Simple Argument Serves Laird In Raging ABM Controversy



MELVIN LAIRD
Puckish?

WASHINGTON — Melvin Laird's round, cheerful face, which wears at times an expression that can be described only as Puckish, goes oddly with the pronouncements of threatening doom that come from him. The secretary of defense, a shrewd and able operator with the Republican minority in the House, is in the advance command post in the fight over the anti-ballistic missile and not altogether happy as the shot and shell burst over his head.

His is perhaps the most demanding position in the government next to the presidency itself. And, as Laird has been telling all and sundry from the first day he moved into the Pentagon, far from seeking the office he gave President Nixon 22 reasons why he should not get it.

He had thought, as one of the president-elect's hard-working arrangers, that the job would go to a Democrat, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington. But Jackson in the end declined the honor. He ranks fourth on the Senate Armed Services Committee, and from that vantage point he champions the advanced weapons systems the generals and admirals come up with.

FOR ALL HIS ability the defense assignment is for Laird cruel and unusual punishment. He must cope with issues so complex that they defy the understanding of even the most brilliant and knowledgeable scientist-technicians steeped in the lore of mass annihilation. The language they use is so esoteric that it is difficult, if not impossible, to translate it into terms the ordinary citizen comprehends. So narrow is the choice between life or death, not for a few million humans but for civilization itself, that the Archangel Gabriel might be hard pressed to come up with an answer.

In this bind Laird has developed a fundamental position which he steadfastly maintains both in public and private. The Soviet Union is building a first-strike capability with the deployment of giant 25 megaton (25 million tons of TNT) SS-9S. A first strike can destroy America's ability to retaliate and leave the Russians winners in the first all-out nuclear exchange. Therefore, the United States must build a missile defense, named Safeguard by the Nixon administration, to protect the intercontinental missiles that can hit back.

He brooks no argument on this score. American intelligence, above all the Samos satellites, has shown the SS-9S being put in place. That is the word Laird means to carry to every corner of the country as the crucial head count in the Senate on the ABM draws nearer with a mid-June date likely.

Laird's simple view of the matter has its advantages. It is familiar in that it poses the good guys, who want only to defend themselves, against the bad guys who want to reduce America to a desert. While the experts shoot holes in Laird's position, as Ralph Lapp did so effectively in a recent analysis, what it lacks in sophistication it makes up in emotional thrust.

THE SECRETARY of defense is vulnerable. That has been the history of the office. Nine men have occupied the post since it was created in 1947 — 10 with Laird — and the roster is hardly a reason for celebration.

The first secretary of defnse, James Forrestal, overwhelmed by service infighting and the effort to hold the defense establishment together at the end of the war, suffered a mental breakdown ending in suicide. The average tenure has been a year and a half to two years. Robert S. McNamara's seven years were a record.

Laird is unique — The first politican out of Congress to hold the office. If he can get on top of the job — and the head count on ABM in the Senate will not be the ultimate test — he will have demonstrated that Congress provides a more formidable conditioning than anyone suspected.

ART BUCHWALD

Younger Generation Loses All –The Mothers Have Revolted

WASHINGTON — My wife was writing furiously the other night, and I asked her what she was up to.

"I've been very much impressed by the student demonstrations and since Mother's Day is coming up I've decided to make certain demands for mothers that the country will have 24 hours to accept."

"But you can't do that," I said. "That's an ultimatum."

"Exactly," she replied, "and we're not fooling around."

"WHAT ARE the demands?"

"The first is that amnesty be given to all mothers for anything they have done in the past year which might have annoyed or offended their children. And since having children is punishment enough for all mothers, that no further penalties be imposed on us for any irrational acts we may have committed."

"I don't know if the kids will go for that," I said.

"WE FURTHER demand that mothers have an equal voice with their children in all decisions that affect the lives of the family and that teenagers may not arbitrarily make rules affecting their mothers without the mother's prior consent."

"That could lead to anarchy."

My wife continued reading from her list: "We demand that the continual testing of mothers by their children be abolished. Instead, a 'pass-fail system' for grading mothers must be adopted. This would be much fairer and would also take the pressure off us so far as competing with other mothers goes."

"You're asking for the moon."

"WE FURTHER demand a full Mother Studies Program at all schools, where they would emphasize the affirmative things about mothers and spell out the contributions they have made to the world. This program would be an answer to the lies put out by Philip Wylie and Philip Roth. The object of the course would be to give mothers new pride in themselves and prove once and for all that 'birth is beautiful'."

"What else?" I asked nervously.

"We demand that the system be changed so we can sleep in the morning once a week, stay out in the evening and have some time to ourselves on weekends."

"NOW YOU'RE GOING too far," I warned.

"We also believe that if we're the official chauffeurs of the family, society should provide parking space for us and all illegal-parking tickets should be rescinded so we can start out with a new slate."

"These demands are preposterous."

"In confrontations between mothers and children, we are serving notice that if fathers take the side of the children we will close the kitchen down until someone listens to us."

"You're putting fathers in a terrible spot," I said.

"WE ARE ALSO sick and tired of Mother's Day, which is just a form of tokenism to keep us in our place. We demand to be treated like mothers 365 days of the year."

"Is that all?"

"No. There's one more thing," she said, as she handed the paper to me. "These demands are not negotiable, and I expect an answer by Sunday."

See Page M2

1,500 Different Kinds Of Seashells

Dominican Biology Professor Has An Outstanding Scientific Collection

Two gifts back in 1942 were responsible, says Sister M. Aquinas, O.P., for the start of her now extensive collection of shells, a part of which is currently on display at Archibishop Alemany Library on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael.

One was a box of shells given her by Vice Adm. William Calhoun of the U. S. Navy.

The other was a copy of Hyatt Verrill's book, "Strange Sea Shells and Their Stories," given to her by her mother, Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz.

THESE LED, the Dominican College professor of biology recalls, to a visit to the U. S. National Museum to check the rare specimens. And from that blossomed a life-long interest in conchology.

Her shell collection grew rapidly from 1942 to 1952, she says, and she lists her sources including:

1. Beachcombing efforts by family and friends. And as the daughter of World War II hero Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, she had both acquaintances and kin who visited the farflung beaches of the world.

2. Exchanges with collectors overseas, many of them resulting from a picture of her collection in The National Geographic of July, 1949. These contacts, she says, included a Scottish school teacher "from whom I still hear," plus collectors in Uruguay, the Netherlands, Belgium and Germany. One of these was of particular value in that he had access to shells from the Congo.

3. A gift of the collection of shells of Christopher Holmes of Hawaii. "But, alas, he was not a scientific collector, and so many of these shells are without vital locality information."

4. Another gift of shells from the duplicate collection of W. J. Raymond of Southern California. "These," says Sister Aquinas, "plus the cabinet in which the entire collection is normally housed on the Guzman lecture hall balcony, came to me through the kindness of Allyn Smith, also a shell collector and my next-door neighbor for five years. Before the cabinet arrived, I kept the shells in my bureau drawers with clothing relegated to closet shelves."

5. And wages earned in the summer of 1947 working at the U. S. National Museum in Washington, D.C. "For every hour of work, I could choose three lots of shells from their collection of duplicates."

SISTER AQUINAS, to whom a book on shells was once so important, recommends for beginning collectors today "Sea Treasures" by Kathleen Johnstone, which, she notes, is available in the Archbishop Alemany Library.

And she adds: "Along with collecting shells, acquiring beautiful books about them is a very satisfactory side feature of the hobby. Many of the most beautiful are in Japanese (with Latin subtitles)."

Some of Sister Aquinas' books simply were purchased. But one came from a bombed-out library at Palau. And another, by Hirose, was found only after a two-year search through the Pacific.

Fleet Admiral Nimitz took an active interest in helping his daughter with her collection of shells and books.

THE CURRENT exhibit in the Dominican College library, which continues through May and is open daily to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., includes a rare Golden Cowry from the vicinity of Ponape in the South Pacific. Permission to wear such a cowry as an ornament is a mark of the highest distinction among Friendly Islanders.

The collection also includes a West Indian murex, the left-handed whelk, "Nautilus pompilius," "Spondylus" from the Gulf of California, tiger cowries, auger shells, the queen conch and pearl oyster, and various cones such as "Conus imperialis" and "marmoreus."

The shells come from nearby northern California beaches such as Bodega Bay, Monterey and Dillon Beach, as well as such diverse locations as Zeeland, Nassau, Belgium, Connecticut, Netherlands, Mexico, West Indies and other points around the globe.

nas, her huge collection includes some 1,500 species "which isn't so very many, considering that there are about 100,000 species."

However, it is impressive, even when only a part of it is on display as is the case now at Alemany Library. Each shell is identified and labeled with the genera and region (if known) from whence it came.

Sister Aquinas received her master's degree from the University of California at Berkeley and her bachelor and Ph. D degrees from Stanford University.

She is currently engaged in research on the relationship of nutrition to the reproductive cycles in marine invertebrates, working under a U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare grant.

IN HER LABORATORY on the Dominican College, the biologist, now in her fifth year of federally supported research, is seeking to localize fat and carbohydrate reserves in the tissues of two types of crabs and two species of starfish, while determining any changes in the amounts of reserve substances at various locations and their correlation with the reproductive cycle. The effects of long-term starvation on the quantity and quality of sperm and eggs is a key part of the study.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department funds enabled the college to purchase needed equipment and supplies for the project, and to provide salaries for two students working 10 hours a week as "micro-technical" assistants.

For Sister Aquinas, her profession is a continuation of the same scientific interest and curiosity that demonstrated itself back in 1942 when gifts of shells and a book sent her scurrying to the museum to learn still more about the fascinating subject of conchology.

Her Special Cake For Mother's Day

Popular Dessert Had Its Beginnings In Hawaii Trip

LADY BALTIMORE cake decorator Werner Schmidt gets some help with one of the firm's specialties, the Fruit Basket Cake, in special demand at Mother's Day time, from Mrs. Ted Weitzel, who originated the fruit-filled dessert. Mrs. Weitzel is the wife of the Lady Baltimore Bakery Corp. founder and is herself the firm's secretary-treasurer. (Independent-Journal photos)

A host of memories, a few rolls of film, a mumu; these are the usual souvenirs most tourists bring back from Hawaii.

Mrs. Ted Weitzel acquired these, but she also brought back a dream.

Formless and fragile, it had to do with the islands' lush plentitude of fruits and coconuts. What was ordinary fare for Hawaiians would seem a tropical fantasy to Mainlanders, she reasoned. It should be a dessert, probably a cake. But how?

For months the dream was forgotten. Evie Weitzel had more pressing demands.

Besides running a home and raising two daughters, she was the secretary - treasurer for her husband's bakery business in San Francisco. Still, the dream refused to be ignored. One night it awakened her from a sound sleep.

"THAT'S THE honest truth," she says. "I'll never forget it".

Even though it was 2 a.m., she had to tell her husband. Dutifully, Weitzel listened. He listened again over his morning coffee. Conceding that his wife's recipe was a great idea, he agreed to try it that day. The whole staff tasted it and loved it.

They could have called it Evie's Dream, instead they named it the Fruit Basket Cake.

That was 16 years ago. It was first introduced to Marinites in 1955 when Weitzel opened the first Lady Baltimore Bakery at 1914 Fourth Street, San Rafael. Today, it's the firm's leading item, out-selling all other cakes. Because of its universal appeal, the Fruit Basket is baked daily in seven and eight-inch sizes, but is easily adapted to larger layers and the popular sheet cake form for birthdays.

TOMORROW, the Fruit Basket cake will be the sweet treat at hundreds of Mother's Day celebrations, not only in Marin, but all over the Bay Area. Former Weitzel customers still list it as their favorite and willingly make a special trip to this county for their order.

The Fruit Basket eschews the traditional sugar and spice combination to make it nice. Rather, it begins and ends with lavish amounts of whipped cream.

Starting with four layers of gold chiffon, each heavily laden with cream, the cake takes on an island magic with the addition of pineapple filling, fresh strawberries or fresh frozen peaches, depending on the season, and bananas. It's then wrapped in a cloud of moist coconut.

MORE FRESH fruit and whipped cream swirls decorate the top.

"We never dreamed the Fruit Basket would be so popular," Mrs. Weitzel comments. "It caught on instantly. Sometimes it's called the Fruit Bowl or the Fruit Cake, but once a customer mentions 'the cake with the fresh fruits' we know what she wants."

A frank and forthright person, Evie lives by and believes in her creed: "I like to work hard and play hard." And she has a ball doing both.

Still a slim size 10, auburn haired and a model's height of five feet seven inches, the former Evelyn Mefford was born and raised in San Francisco. As a youngster her main interest was competitive swimming.

BEGINNING with the playground at North Beach, Evie swam with the Crystal Palace, Fleishhacker, Fairmont Hotel and Neptune Beach clubs. Six years later, at 17, she set the record for the Golden Gate long-distance swim from Lime Point to Fort Point.

A brief career in the trust department of the Bank of America followed. By 1931 Evelyn had met and married Ted Weitzel. It has been a long and happy marriage. Two weeks ago the Weitzels celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary.

"My business career was brief because in the depression days married women weren't allowed to work. But on the day I lost my job Ted also lost his. We went back to Ted's hometown of Walla Walla, Wash., and started our first bakery. Two years later we opened a store in San Francisco's Mission District."

LEARNING ALL the facets of her husband's business, Evie began the day at 6 o'clock by opening the store, served a shift as a counter girl and helped Ted close up at midnight. A session with the books kept her busy until 3 a.m.

"It had to be that way so I did it" is the realistic way Evie sums up those years.

As their business grew to include a chain of bakeries, so too did the Weitzel family. After their two daughters, Kitty and Teddy, arrived, Ted and Evelyn moved to Fairfax where they resided for 20 years. Both girls are married now.

Kitty (Mrs. Rod McKnew) lives in Blackburg, Va., and is the mother of two girls. Teddy and her husband, Bruce Rosentreter, who recently joined the family firm, are the parents of 3-year-old Jeffery.

IN 1953, WEITZEL retired. Restless after two idle months, he decided to launch a whole new career, and with Evie's help, began planning Marin's first drive-in bakery. As president of the Lady Baltimore Bakery Corp., which in 14 years has grown to eight branches, Weitzel is now in semi-retirement. Evie is also. But as corporation secretary - treasurer, she still manages the books. So their time is divided between a Lake County home and an apartment

'What Made The Yellow Streaks On My White Dress?"

Your concern frequently occurs. The streaking results from contact with dye from another acetate garment. This is observed, often, after a white or light-colored garment is stored in a closet next to a dark colored acetate fiber. Wet or dampness has nothing to do with the streaking.

In most instances your drycleaner can remove the streaks. However, if the dye in the light-colored garment is "fugitive" it would be impossible to remove the yellow streaks without damaging the entire garment. The same would be true if the garment has a special finish such as a white satin in which the delusterizing finish would be removed in treating the streaks.

Be careful not to store colored and white acetates next to each other for any period of time.

Working Mother, But No Neglect In Weitzel Home

in Ignacio.

Still, Mrs. Weitzel has energy to spare. As sports-minded as ever, she's an avid golfer with a 16-stroke handicap, and she prefers dominoes or cribbage to bridge. Sewing is another avocation.

Mastering the difficult craft of tailoring came naturally to Evie. "I love the detail work, it offers more of a challenge," she says.

At this point daughter Teddy asked to be heard. "There's a lot of discussion these days about working mothers. May I say that my mom worked from the day she brought me home from the hospital. Yet never once did I ever know a feeling of neglect. Mom was always there, always involved in our lives. Don't ask me how she did it, she just did."

Her mother smiled, looking very pleased. Then Teddy teased, "I really don't like you very much, mom."

OBVIOUSLY, every day is Mother's Day in the Weitzel family circle. Ted and his brother Bing, Lady Baltimore vice president, describe Evie as their balance wheel. "Before we get too carried away with an idea we ask Evie's opinion. Thank heavens she's vetoed a lot of them."

Matter-of-factly, Evie counters that she's the bookkeeper, not the baker of the family. And as she turns back to balance a ledger or type a letter at a fast-paced 80 words a minute, she adds, "It's been a great and fulfilling life. If I could do it all over again, I wouldn't change a bit."

And how will the Weitzels celebrate Mother's Day? Their dinner plans are still indefinite, but there's no doubt about their choice of dessert. "Of course we'll have a Fruit Basket. Even if we go to a restaurant, we always take one with us."

Scores of Marinites echo the sentiment.

A Report On The Seashore

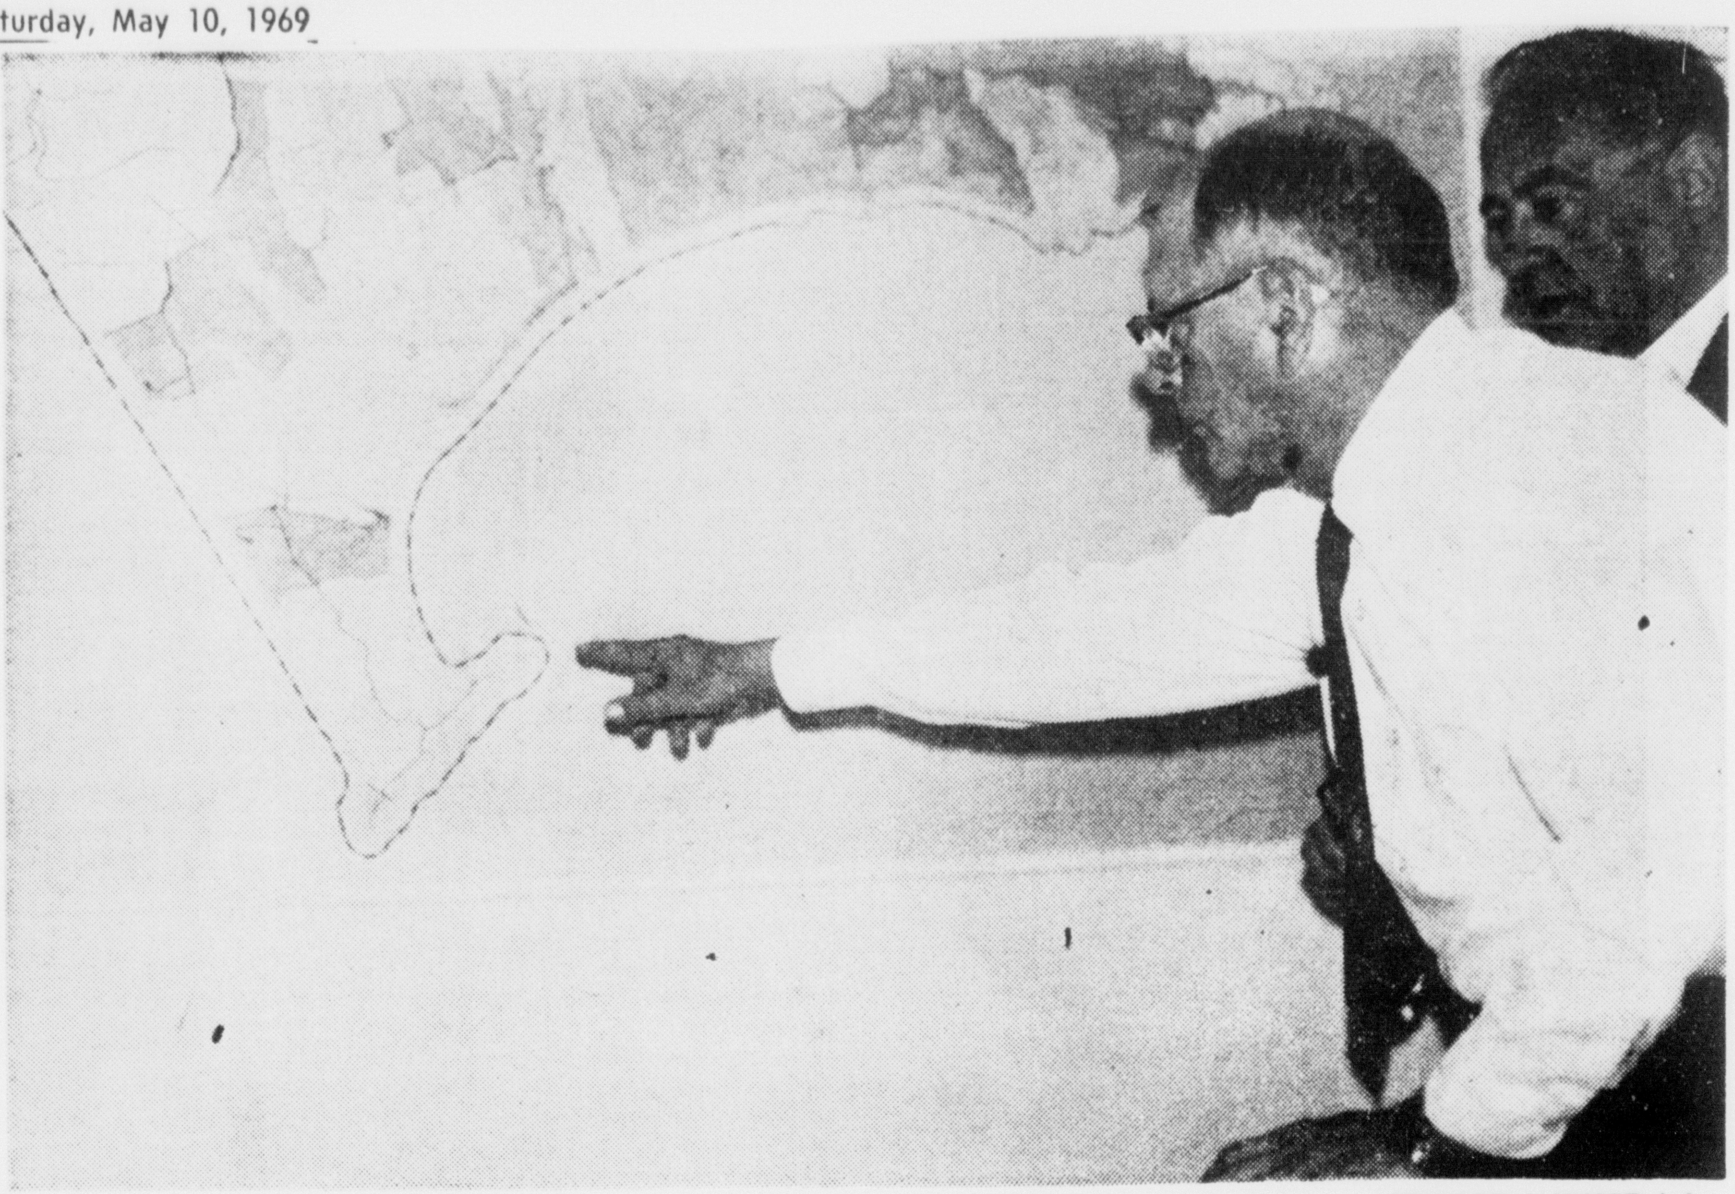
Point Reyes Is Awaiting More Funds

By GIL PEARSON

The assignment — "pin down the current situation at Point Reyes National Seashore" — touched off twinges of nostalgia in this reporter.

The idea of meeting with Point Reyes rangers and other personnel was especially stimulating, for 40 years ago, this writer was himself a Yellowstone National Park ranger.

By way of comparison, Yellowstone, established in 1872, is our oldest National Park Service administered facility, whereas Point Reyes National Seashore, created in 1962, is one of our youngest.



EDWARD J. KURTZ, left, superintendent of the Point Reyes National Seashore and a career man with the National Park Service, points out to writer Gil Pearson, himself a former ranger, an area on the point of the peninsula where history has been enlivened by explorations, shipwrecks and bootlegging.

BUT FOR national parks, seashores, monuments and forests, young and old, large and small, the matter of funds, particularly for land acquisition, is always a major hurdle. This has been particularly so at Point Reyes.

Asked to list recent progress and improvements, Edward J. Kurtz, superintendent of the national seashore, ticked these off:

"Two and a half years ago we completed access roads from the Sir Francis Drake Highway to Point Reyes Beach North and to Point Reyes Beach South.

"TWO YEARS ago we provided a bathhouse with shower facilities at Drake Beach and developed parking for 450 cars.

"Eighteen months ago we constructed three 'back-country' campgrounds in the Bear Valley area. These include restrooms, fireplaces, picnic tables and water. Visitors hike in to reach these facilities. The hiking distance along the Bear Valley trail to the Pacific coastline is four and four-tenths miles.

"And that is it — there will be no more improvements until we get more land."

THERE IS some hope (but not much) that hearings will be held at the current session of Congress on bills to increase the spending-limit previously set for Point Reyes land acquisitions, according to Rep. Jeffery Cohelan of Berkeley.

The 1962 legislation which created the seashore established a 14 million dollar spending limit. In 1966 Congress raised the limit by another five million plus — to 19 million dollars — to buy additional lands whose purchase was mandatory under court order.

Cohelan's present bill would add another 38 million dollars to boost the total authorization to 57.5 million dollars — hopefully enough to buy the still-private portions of the 53,000 acre peninsula on the Marin coastline north of Bolinas. The government now holds about 20,000 acres.

THE USUAL July appropriation for the operating costs for Point Reyes is about $250,000, with slight increases each year.

Superintendent Kurtz, who majored in forestry at Colorado State University, is a career man who worked up from ranger to chief ranger to superintendent over 22 years at various national parks across the nation. Six rangers and nine maintenance personnel assist him in area management.

He reports that visitations to Point Reyes National Seashore increase annually at the rate of 10 to 20 per cent. The total for 1968 was about 600,000 visitors.

Of these, 127,000 hiked on 60 miles of trails. Some 11,000 used the campgrounds.

The trails are the main attraction and are used by horseback riders as well as hikers. Bicycles are suitable on the Bear Valley and Coast trails.

New paths include Earthquake Trail which follows the St. Andreas Fault line, and the Woodpecker Trail, noted for flowers and birds.

There are three backpack camps. Each camp has 12 campsites, each of which can serve 10 people with water and cooking pits.

SOME SIX beaches are accessible by the trail system or by public roads.

Picnicking and surf fishing are enjoyed at all beaches. A California fishing license is required. Since the stream waters are not potable, visitors should carry canteens.

Drake's Beach and Tomales Bay State Park have lifeguards on duty in summer only. Visitors are cautioned that Point Reyes Beach is pounded by a surf which is too dangerous for water activities.

The ocean strongly influences the weather of Point Reyes. Its ocean beaches are frequently foggy and windy enough to make warm clothing very welcome indeed. Throughout the summer these beaches experience more days of fog than sunshine, but spring and autumn can be mild and pleasant.

The country east of Inverness Ridge, accessible by hiking trails, is free of summer fog but it does have heavy rains in winter and spring.

The spring flower season lasts from February to late July, reflecting the mild temperatures and the considerable moisture from fogs and winter storms.

WHEN YOU decide to explore these treasures of scenery and nature you can approach Point Reyes National Seashore from various routes. Only an hour's drive from the Golden Gate, you take the Panoramic Highway to Stinson Beach then along Route 1 to the Point Reyes headquarters just beyond Olema.

GRASSY MEADOWS and green forests line the Bear Valley Trail, the most popular of the several hiking trails that lure outdoor-lovers to Point Reyes National Seashore.

Come To Cymru, Invite The Welsh

By DON KEOWN

Too many visitors to the United Kingdom omit Wales from their itineraries.

There will be fewer tourists making that mistake this year, for the July 1 investiture by which Prince Charles accepts his responsibilities as the Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, plus attendant festivities, are certain to attract throngs from the United States and other countries.

Wales, however, has a lot to offer its guests besides this year's special pageantry.

IT IS A land of green valleys and gushing streams, of wooded mountains and picturesque seacoast, of impressive castles and charming villages.

We spent some time in North Wales a year ago, and our stay provided some of the most pleasant memories of a six-weeks tour.

Our sightseeing included a visit to Caernarvon Castle in the town of Caernarvon where the July ceremonies will take place. It is a mighty fortress, fully restored, and houses among other things an interesting military museum of the Welsh Fusiliers.

SOMEHOW, however, the nearby castle at Conway impressed us more. Those fortifications have been only partially restored. But the semi-ruin state of the ramparts and dungeons lends a romantic and historic touch.

Conway, itself, is an enchanting old town of narrow streets and a harbor that looks very much like a small Mediterranean fishing village.

Edward I, 1272 to 1397, was the monarch responsible for most of the formidable castles or strongholds that dot Wales. Most famous of all is Harlech, which we did not get to see.

What we did tour at length was Snowdonia National Park with its Snowdon Mountain, the highest peak in Wales.

WE SIGNED up for a bus tour of the huge national park, and our fellow passengers proved to be members of an "over 60" club from Aberdeen, Scotland. A jolly lot they were, giving the lie to the old chestnut of the dour Scot. They enjoyed themselves wholeheartedly, and were most anxious that the two Americans who had joined them temporarily do the same.

When the scenery was not all-engrossing, which was rare, they broke out in songfests that included spirited renditions of "California, Here I Come" as a salute to the Yankee couple.

The bus carried us past small azure lakes and emerald meadows, along side rushing rivers (not even Scotland can equal Wales when it comes to the beauty of its streams), through peaceful villages with colorful names such as Bettws y-Coed and Ffestiniog where the neat cottages were wholly or predominately slate.

OCCASIONALLY, just occasionally, there was a jarring note as the bus passed through a town whose hillsides had been mined and reduced to ugly slag, a reminder that Americans don't have a monopoly on spoiling nature although they do it oftener and more completely.

All the time the bus was winding its way up Mount Snowdon on lightly trafficked roads. Then at a little country station everybody piled out of the bus and boarded a fairyland narrow gauge railway train that carried us to the 3,360-foot crest through magnificent wooded and craggy terrain.

IT'S LONG, sandy beach and blue waters would do any Riviera resort proud. There's a promenade along the ocean front, and a rather sedate boardwalk or entertainment area that manages not to intrude upon the natural beauty, since it sits upon a high cliff overlooking the water.

All along the beach, fronting on the ocean, are several blocks of big, old, handsome hotels.

Llandudno, itself, is a pretty city with a wide main thoroughfare and lots of flowers.

DESPITE ITS beauty, its shoreline, its proximity to the national park and to history, Llandudno is not an expensive resort. This, no doubt, is because it is scarcely known to Americans. Most of its tourist trade comes from other sections of Great Britain and from Ireland. Prices range somewhat higher than in Ireland, but lower than in England and on most of the continent.

It is great sports country with its fishing, hunting, golf, riding, hiking, climbing, boating and swimming. There are good shops, too, for such purchases as the delicate Welsh love spoons, carved wood, basketry, textiles, dolls, etc.

Wales is not great gourmet country. The food tends to be plain though substantial. We can, however, personally recommend the dining room of the North Western Hotel in Llandudo where both the meals and service were outstanding.

WE MADE certain Wales was on our itinerary because of ancestral ties. And everywhere we went, there were Joneses (grandmother's family) and Hughses (grandfather's side). In some villages it seemed like two of every three storefronts bore the name of Jones. But you need not have Welsh lineage to justify and enjoy a visit to this jewel of a country which is well worth several days of anybody's time.

One last tip: To the Welsh themselves, their country is not Wales but Cymru (pronounced cumry), meaning the land of comrades or friends. And friendly people they are.

And the tongue-twisting Welsh names you sometimes encounter are just an added fillip to remind you that you are not in your own country, but in a land with rich traditions, history and culture all its own.

THE SANTA CRUZ Small Craft Harbor, maintained by the city, is bidding for the attention of boat-loving vacationers. The sheltered harbor on Monterey Bay has 334 berth and a six-lane launching ramp. It also offers complete repair, maintenance and storage facilities. Because the channel is subject to shoaling, kippers are advised to ask for local instructions in entering.

Two New Highways Await Visitor To British Columbia This Year

By BARRY BROADFOOT

Two brand new highways, slicing through a vast and untapped recreationland, open up new opportunities for tourists to British Columbia this year.

The major new highway is called the Yellowhead Route, running about 215 miles north from the interior hub city of Kamloops to a juncture with the northern Trans-Provincial Highway running west from the famous mountain resort of Jasper.

The second route is the completion of the northern Trans-Provincial Highway from its juncture with the Yellowhead Route and running west about 160 miles to the booming central interior city of Prince George.

SEEN ON A map, the two new routes joining 66 miles west of Jasper appear as a great sloppily-drawn letter "Y" enclosing about 150,000 square miles of towering mountain ranges, miles upon miles of forest land, lakes and streams beyond count — a vacationer's paradise.

The Yellowhead Route has been partially paved for about half its route for years, but the finishing touches of new blacktop and the bridges have only recently been completed.

The northern Trans-Provincial — also known as Highway 16 and running to Prince Rupert on the Pacific Ocean — has only recently been completed in its middle sections, and is now open to travel.

SO NEW ARE these two routes — vital to the economy of the province and to tourism — that they have not yet been officially dedicated.

However, they are in excellent condition and speeds of 60 miles per hour (the legal limit) are as comfortable as on any freeway.

The traveler wishing to pass through new country could break his journey into one of two trips assuming he makes his headquarters at Kamloops, a city with many excellent motels, hotels and restaurants Each trip would be three days in length, and take the visitor through a wide variety of country and experiences.

TRIP NO. 1 could be from Kamloops up the Yellowhead Route, through its pass and into the resort town of Jasper in one day. The second day would be an exciting drive south on the Jasper-Banff Highway through the grey ramparts of the Rockies and past the Columbia Ice Fields to Lake Louise. End of second day.

The third day would consist of a run through Yoho National Park and over the famed Rogers Pass, down through Glacier National Park, along Shuswap Lake and into Kamloops again that evening.

Trip No. 2 is shorter on spectacular scenery, but heavy on gentler beauty.

TRIP NO. 2 follows No. 1 to the juncture of Highway 16 and then turns northwest, roughly following the famous Fraser River, a small and placid stream there compared to rivers nearer the coast. The new highway runs through logging country and vast areas untouched by progress until it reaches Prince George, a hustling, bustling city very much aware of progress.

After a night in one of the city's numerous motels and hotels, take Highway 97 south 260 miles to Cache Creek and then turn east on the Trans-Canada Highway through 50 miles of ranching and lake country back into Kamloops on the third day.

On Trip No. 1, the traveler could continue east from Jasper into Alberta or south from Golden at the east end of the Rogers Pass, down the infinitely interesting Windermere Valley, or one could turn south into the Okanagan Valley, called the California of Canada.

OR ON TRIP No. 2, Highway 16 leads 467 miles west to Prince Rupert through an amazing variety of scenery. From Prince Rupert, an ultra-modern ferry connects thrice-weekly with Vancouver Island. But arrange reservations first.

Or at Cache Creek, the highway continues south down the Thompson and Fraser Valleys and through the Fraser Valley to the exciting, cosmopolitan waterfront city of Vancouver.

On Trip 1, the traveler need have no fear of a lack or shortage of first class accommodation or dining. On Trip 2, the link between the Highway 16 junction,and Prince George will be short on good accommodations until the supply catches up to the demand.

Things They Leave Behind

It's not unusual for the traveling American to leave a toothbrush or some other item behind, particularly on overnight stops. But a wife, two children, and an ocelot?

It happened last year, according to reports from motor lodge managers to the Howard Johnson Co. headquarters.

The lost-and-found rooms of hotels and motels across the country are usually crammed with cameras, purses, gloves, earrings, hats, glasses, neckties and pajamas, just to name a few of the ordinary items left behind by guests. Most eventually are returned to their owners.

BUT WHAT COULD have been on the mind of the woman who left behind an expensive full-length sable coat? Or those who forget mink stoles and jackets?

The winter months see lodges in New England and the western states with an oversupply of skis. But one guest was only half forgetful, or had only one leg—he left behind only one. Then there was the Californian who was on a surfing holiday and had to drive back 100 miles to pick up his surfboard.

Who are the most forgetful travelers? In general, men can't seem to remember hats and sunglasses, and often—as their mumbles over the phone indicate—their dentures.

CHILDREN USUALLY leave toys and favorite blankets.

But, according to Howard Johnson, it's the women who take top honors when it comes to forgetting.

Aside from leaving behind hair curlers by the dozens, cosmetics, wigs, falls—and even falsies—the female traveler can't seem to remember sundry other items that one would think are hard to forget. Diapers, bottles, portable cribs, garment bags filled with new clothing, fully packed lunch baskets, etc. etc. etc.

THE TRAVELING salesman is another breed of forgetters and it's almost unbelievable some of the things he leaves behind. One motor lodge manager reported searching for the owner of four huge crates of pots and pans and another had to track down the guest who forgot 300 pounds of biscuit flour.

The number of books left behind would probably fill another Library of Congress. Most are paperbacks, apparently read to the finish and left for the next guest.

But there are lots of others. Most managers hold on to a particular type until called for in person by the owner. It's an unwritten rule in the hotel trade never to forward the classic "little black book" to the guest's home address. It could mean trouble if the little woman gets her hands on it.

THE GREAT 12th Century Prambanan Hindu Temple in Jogjakarta on Java is only a few minutes away from an air conditioned hotel room and but two hours flying time from Djakarta. Tourists come there from all over the world to see the performances of the famed Ramayana Ballet over the four nights of the full moon of each summer and autumn month. The 1969 performances: June 27, 28, 29, and 30; July 26, 27, 28, and 29; Aug. 27, 28, 29 and 30; Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27, and Oct. 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Sequel Surpasses The Original

MR. BRIDGE by Evan S. Connell; Knopf, 369 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

"Mrs. Bridge" appeared in 1959, and Evan Connell's Kansas City heroine, shielded from a world she scarcely realized was there, shortly became a classic.

Her rigid, righteous husband, who labored long hours at his law office to maintain her in proper emptiness, played only a minor role in her drama.

Now Connell examines their life again, in the big house in the nice part of Kansas City. The time is in the Thirties, and there are the same daily little happenings we read about before, the same annoyances, the same cast, but now with Mr. Bridge at center stage.

It is a masterful work; in fact, Connell has brought off that rarity, a sequel better than the original book; better it seems to me, because Mr. Bridge is a more complex person than his ineffectual little wife.

Connell builds, usually with formidable effect, in brief, fragmentary little episodes, that mirrored exactly the trival bits and pieces that made up Mrs. Bridge's day, and the reader may find, as this one did, that there are places where this approach seems contrived in Mr. Bridge's larger world.

Much more is going on in his life; he moves in the big world of finance, politics, the law, as it is in Kansas City. Far more people, his secretary, clients, colleagues, employees, in addition to the family, make claims on him.

Through Mr. Bridge's eyes we come to see the three children, more clearly than we ever did, filtered through their mother's fond gaze. For determined as he is to keep on viewing the world the way he wants it to be, he cannot help but see shrewdly into his children, and what he sees is often bewildering, and painful.

He does not think of expressing his anguish as the distance widens between himself and the growing children, nor for that matter can he express the deep tenderness he feels toward his childish wife. Characteristically, he deals with such feelings by working even longer hours away from them all.

By his unrelenting labor he has accomplished the American dream, and yet something, somehow, has gone wrong, and it can not all be put on the Roosevelt administration. All the uptight, reticent Midwestern virtues are his — courage, honesty, hard work, endurance to the point of obstinancy, and also the avarice, narrowness and bigotry that so often accompany them. (It is interesting that the Negro maid has become a drinker in "Mr. Bridge." Problems of race are far more vexing to him, than to Mrs. Bridge, more naive as we all were in 1959.)

It is typical of the man that he can reflect, with no trace of selfpity, that in his well-ordered life he has never known joy— " . . . satisfaction, yes, and a pleasure of several sorts, and pride, and possibly a feeling which might be called 'rejoicing' . . . There were many such feelings, but none of them should be called 'joy'."

EVAN S. CONNELL
The Bridges are back

Mr. Bridge seems destined to haunt the American consciousness as persistently as Mrs. Bridges has done.

Krishnamurti On Freeing Of The Mind

FREEDOM FROM THE KNOWN by J. Krishnamurti; Harper & Row, 124 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

J. Krishnamurti, India-born lecturer, writer and teacher, burst upon the Bay Area scene with a series of addresses carried by television station KQED (Channel 9).

The series is over, but interest in the man and his beliefs no doubt continues.

Those persuaded or intrigued by his TV lectures will be interested in his new book, "Freedom from the Known," subtitled "A Synthesis of what Krishnamurti has to say about the human predicament and the eternal problems of living."

What he is saying is that people are the prisoners of their own past. It is there that all the violence and the dishonesties and other problems that are plaguing the world have their roots. As long as we are so instituted, we cannot escape our personal responsibility for the wars, the intolerance, the injustice. The world as it exists today is not a pretty place as Krishnamurti sees it.

What can we do about it? We must each of us break with our past individually, not gradually, but suddenly and completely. What we need, he says, "is a mind completely free of society . . . (that) can see the truth of a life in which there is no conflict at all." We must shed principles, beliefs and ideals for, since we invariably act contradictorily, these only lead to confusion and conflict and to hypocrisy and a dishonest life.

"To come upon truth the mind must be completely free, without a spot of distortion," he says.

And: "There is no leader, there is no teacher, there is nobody to tell you what to do. You are alone in this mad and brutal world."

Also: "A living mind is a still mind, a living mind is a mind that has no center and therefore no space and time. Such a mind is limitless and that is the only truth, that is the only reality."

It is interesting to note that this sage from Madras and the group of Western psychiatrists who have embraced Transactional Analysis — see the review of Dr. Thomas Harris' "I'm OK — You're OK" on these pages in the April 26 issue of the Marin Magazine — have reached remarkably similar conclusions.

Both stress the responsibility of the individual for his own conduct and spiritual health. Both emphasize the importance of the present over past or future. Both tell us that we can change ourselves. Transactional Analysis says by freeing the Adult within us from contamination by the Child or Parent. Krishnamurti says by liberating our minds by rejecting the inward authority (Child and Parent?) that has been built up within us by our experiences, ideas, ideals, etc.

"When we look at ourselves with the dead authority of yesterday," he advises, "we will fail to understand the living movement (of the moment) and the beauty and quality of that movement."

Whereas the Transactional Analysis proponents have striven for a simplicity of language and explanation of their movement, Krishnamurti is extremely subtle in his expressions and sometimes difficult to follow, commanding the total meditation and awareness which he says are so vital.

Meditation, he says, in differing with some other Eastern teachers, is not simply concentration: "Meditation is not following any system; it is not constant repetition and imitation . . . Meditation demands an astonishingly alert mind . . . Meditation is to be aware of every thought and of every feeling, never to say it is right or wrong, but just to watch it and move with it . . . To observe in such a way is discipline, and that kind of discipline is fluid, free, not the discipline of conformity."

A Human Being From A Legend

HOUDINI: THE UNTOLD STORY by Milbourne Christopher; Crowell, 281 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Christopher, a magician of renown, manages to perform the literary trick of transforming a legend into a human being.

Houdini, world famed as a magician and escape artist, is described in all his facets . . . a flop in vaudeville, the first man to fly an airplane in Australia, and a fiery debunker of spiritualism.

Christopher, who has the largest collection of Houdini memorabilia in the world, spent years compiling his story — talking to those who knew Houdini, playing theaters that Houdini played, and referring to Houdini's unpublished letters, documents and scrapbooks.

What Christopher shows is the determination, study and physical strain that made these performances possible.

The rise of the son of a poor Hungarian immigrant from poverty to a world-wide attraction is as dramatic as one of Houdini's escapes, and Christopher captures it all, particularly Houdini's triumphs in Europe, land of his birth.

In true storybook style, Houdini was on the brink of giving up his vaudeville career when success came and stayed until his death.

One of the interesting side issues is the running feud between Houdini and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, over spiritualism, that developed into a bitter rift between the two.

The Engineering Mentality And The Devastation It Has Wrought

By DON KEOWN

AMERICA THE RAPED by Gene Marine; Simon and Schuster, 312 pages, $5.95.

Given the definition that "a weed is a form of life that crowds out others by moving in and taking over the room and nutrients," Gene Marine then goes on to label the human race "the worst, most persistent, most ubiquitous weed in the history of the planet."

In his brilliantly conceived and angrily executed book, "America the Raped," Marine, a veteran and skilled muckraker, charges that "the biggest problem America faces from within is that Engineers do its thinking."

He explains that "Engineers" with a capital E does not (necessarily) mean engineers alone or all engineers.

"The rape of America is being perpetrated not merely by men with hard hats and surveying instruments (though such men are by no means excluded), but by men in a number of professions who have in common an 'engineering mentality,' the capacity to approach problems only in the way that the least imaginative and most robotic of engineers approach them."

They are men who continue blindly to plan for an automatic growth rate and who never pause to question the advisability of or necessity for that growth, he says.

And they are men utterly lacking in any understanding of or appreciation for ecology.

They are men who react almost instinctively with quick and usually costly solutions to small problems, and thereby very often create greater problems. And they are experts, thereafter, in persuading the public that the "fractures" they have inflicted "are good for society."

Behind Marine's wrath are a lot of travel, research and careful documentation of evidence supporting the indictment in his subtitle: "The Engineering Mentality and the Devastation of a Continent."

Man's basic and perhaps fatal error, according to Marine, is his inability to comprehend the importance to him of his relationship with other living things and resources.

He writes: "Few people have yet reached the idea of the conservation of genetic information — the idea that we ought to keep every species of animal or plant alive, and in its own ectosystem, because we have no way of knowing what characteristics of that animal or plant or microbe may some day prove to be in some way valuable. . . .

"Everything fits together. Everything. And nobody seems to care, least of all the Engineers."

And: "No one . . . seems to understand that the best reason for the preservation of wilderness areas is not esthetics but ecology; the need, not just the desirability, of preserving ectosystems, and sometimes vast ones, for study."

He is not denouncing all logging, all bridge-building, all highway construction. But, he claims, we can have our buildings, our power, our transportation, etc., without ruining essential environmental areas if we at least pause to consider the side effects of our grand, often grandiose, engineering schemes and exercise some sense of objectivity and selectivity.

Marine puts it this way: "We should save — not everything we can't replace, for we can't replace a single stone or blade of grass — but everything that is ecologically meaningful, every living species, every remaining essentially undisturbed ectosystem, from Redwood Creek to the Great Basin to the Great Swamp."

Instead, he says, we have swallowed the line of the Engineers that concepts like ecology, beauty and history have little or no place in the construction of a technological society.

Marine has compiled a horrifying and absolutely damning list of examples of the Engineering mentality at work, eliminating species, ruining streams, devastating beaches, polluting lakes, razing forests, leveling terrain.

"When there is a buck," he charges, "someone will do his best to find a way; and if he's caught, he'll find a way to tell you that it's all, really, good for you." Consequently, "it becomes difficult to convince people that the forests were larger, not smaller, before the lumbermen came."

Who are these Engineers with a capital E?

The federal government with its Bureau of Reclamation and its Army Corps of Engineers harbors some of the worst, he says. Even Former Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall emerges as something far short of the hero admired by many conservationists. Then there are the Engineers employed by lesser governments, by utilities, by other private industries. Local politicians, developers, chambers of commerce, sometimes even conservationists fall into the trap.

They are men, says Marine, "who can't think straight, (who) succeed in convincing Americans that there is some sort of determinism about the way things grow — when in fact we can control automobiles, and even populations, far more easily than we can control rivers or estuaries."

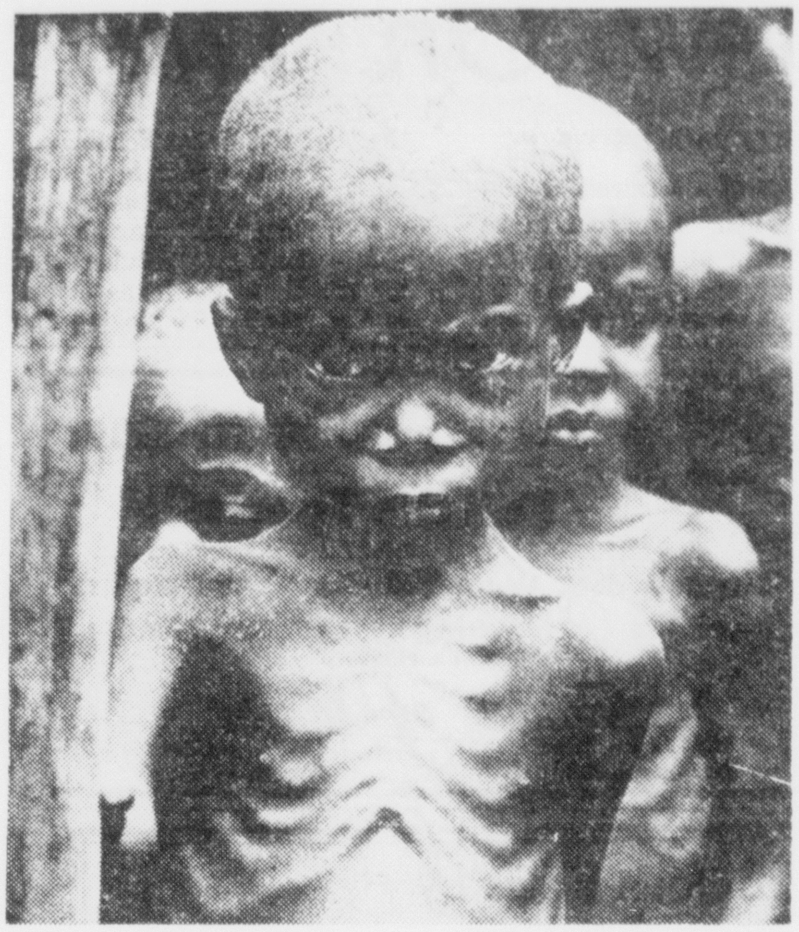
We would not tolerate a madman roaming the world's libraries and randomly destroying books with their precious information. Yet we do tolerate the wanton destruction of species and ecological systems that are an even more valuable and irreplaceable source of knowledge.

The time to stop, says Gene Marine, is now.

He says it sometimes in savage anger and sometimes with slashing satire, and he says it also out of sadness over the immense damage that has already been done and can never be repaired.

He repeats Herbert J. Muller's accusation: "No animal is so stupid as a human fool." But he hopes, without any great amount of supporting evidence, that the time of the fool and wastrel is coming to an end — that we are about to depart the era of the Engineer for the era of the Ecologist.

Marine's well-written and compelling book might prove the very instrument to turn the tide. If so, it will be easily the most important volume to appear in the 1960s.



THE TRAGEDY and horror of what has taken place in Biafra is mirrored in the haunting faces and shriveled bodies of these children without hope in a refugee camp near Aba. The photograph is from "Biafra Journal" by Michael Mok, a veteran war correspondent, who writes: "Nothing I had seen in Korea, Vietnam or during the Arab-Israeli War was adequate preparation for the agony that waited in the rain forest." Along with Mok's moving and informative "personal report on a people in agony," the book contains 60 photographs of the kind you will not soon forget. Time-Life Books is the publisher of the book that sells for $3.95 hardcover, $1.95 softcover.

"YOUR PERSONAL Guide to Successful Retirement" (Random House, $3.95) is a softcover manual prepared by Sidney Margolius, the finance expert and author of "Consumer's Guide to Better Buying."

In his new book Margolius covers such topics as retirement planning, amount and sources of income including social security and other benefits, health care, living cost controls, wills and other personal affairs, and the use of the new leisure time.

It is much like other manuals that have been published in the field, done in considerable detail by a highly regarded authority and completely up-to-date.

YOUNG SAN Francisco poet Charles Upton describes his "Panic Grass," just published by City Lights as part of its softcover Pocket Poets Series, as "the late 1967 section of my life" and as "a ceremonial declaration extending the major empowering blindness of the world to the threshold of its own consummation." He also calls it a "secessionist poem."

It is a summation and a warning of both physical and spiritual disasters, an indictment of our present sins, a prediction of worse to come:

"The hammer is falling!/ Prophecies of the ravaged nightfall stalk the muttering wardens of dawn!/ Look to the forgotten among you, if you want more gambling time in this arena."

"The course is mapped in bedrock, the timetable is in the air," he concludes.

Not a hopeful or soothing poem, but an excellent example of the anger and alienation of so many of our young people.

THE UNIVERSITY of Wisconsin Press, which has been especially active in the publication of translations of novels and other literature by Scandinavians, has added "World Light" by Iceland's Nobel Prize for Literature winner, Halldor Laxness, to its Nordic lists. Set in Iceland in the early 20th Century, the big novel tells of one man's search in a poverty-stricken land for beauty and meaning in life. The price: $7.95.

THE LATEST in McGraw-Hill's Color Slide Program of the Great Masters series is "Picasso."

Like its predecessors, it contains a comparatively brief but authoritative and informative text (this one by John Galloway of Oakland University's department of art), a portfolio of 20 color slides of the subject artist's finest work keyed into pointed discussions of each painting, and additional illustrations in black and white accompanying the text.

The color slide idea remains one of the most imaginative and effective methods of presenting an art subject in book form yet devised.

Of Picasso, Galloway writes: "Few artists have equalled Picasso's impact upon our way of seeing. . . . Picasso's leadership as both pioneer and activist of modern art is indisputable . . ." He notes the once revolutionary Picasso is now subjected to criticism for his "conservative" adherence "to themes rooted in visual reality instead of creating totally abstract forms," but adds: "But no later art . . . has more stridently challenged us than did (Picasso's) Cubism."

Sleuths & Suspense

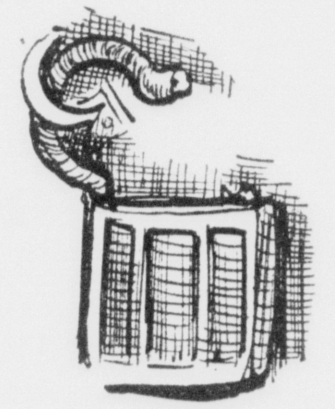
Julian Symons demonstrates again that he is one of the very best of Britain's many fine writers of suspense fiction.

"The Man Whose Dreams Came True" is Tony, a rogue, clever and opportunistic, but without the courage to become a real criminal. Then he encounters a scheming woman who proves to be the cataylist that catapults him into the more serious sins.

Symons weaves an engaging and convincing plot as he records the total deterioration of an already weak character.



No doubt there are many, many Tonys around, ambitious and amoral, but lacking the steel to make their dreams come true. And many women anxious to use them for their own ends. And many dreams that turn into nightmares.

New On The Stereo Scene

By DELOS SMITH

A recorded reconstruction of a "Schubertiad" turns out to be an excellent pianist and an excellent soprano playing and singing a well chosen selection from the works of Franz Schubert.

The pianist was Jorg Demus, the soprano, Elly Ameling.

A "Schubertiad" was an evening gathering of Schubert and his friends in the home of one of the friends, for singing and piano-playing amidst warm conviviality.

Demus, playing an 1835 Viennese piano accompanies Miss Ameling through her singing of six Schubert familiars and then plays 12 Schubert piano pieces classified as "landler." They performed expertly but simply, which can be accepted to mean "intimately," and so the illusion of "Schubertiad" was conjured (Victrola-1405).

From Schubert one may jump to Conlon Nancarrow, if one has the stomach for it. He is, you may know a dabbler among contemporary composers whose thing is to compose for player piano directly onto piano rolls. This he does by punching the rolls with a puncher.

His audiences are necessarily limited. Player pianos were never common and not very many survive.

A recording to 12 of his "Studies for Player Piano" was made from his own player piano in his studio in Mexico City, and there is no doubt the man is both resourceful and clever. As the record jacket says, he produced "unbelievable sounds."

From Nancarrow it is hardly any jump at all to John Pfeiffer whose thing is "electronomusic," meaning music made by no musical instrument whether conventional or improvised but by manipulating electronic sounds into satires of traditional forms and styles. Hence his nine pieces are called "Images" and they are, he feels, an advance beyond mere "electronic music." (Victrola-1371).

This reviewer found it easy and pleasant to go from Pfeiffer to Jean Sebelius, a name not often mentioned any more. His last two symphonies, the Sixth and the Seventh, have been earnestly recorded by Herbert von Karajan with the Berlin Philharmonic. If "electronic music" is the future, Karajan makes the past magnetically attractive. (Deutsche - Grammophon Ampex tape version-9032).

ONE OF THE LEAST OF THESE

White hair of thin untidy strands
Tied back with feeble shaking hands
Atop each wav'ring wrinkled head
Has marked the life of care they led.

Dark sockets outline vacant stares
Of old ones crumpled on their chairs
With lips apart in soundless hums
That reveal their toothless gums.

Almost forgotten souls are they
Whom relatives have put away;
Almost neglected, left to die,
While nurses carefully hide a sigh.

Yet children came that blessed day,
Their flowers made to give away,
While singing of the One above
Who gave both young and old His love.

New light sparked in those sightless eyes:
Lined faces creased with pleased surprise,
As hoary heads nod to the tune
Which told that Christ was coming soon.

Who knows what joy a deed may bring
To those who've lost the youth of spring,
When those who follow Christ's command
Extend a loving helping hand?

Some Plants That Lend A Tropical Flair

Marin's climate is close enough to the borderline between temperate and tropical that its gardeners can choose from among the plants that thrive in both temperature zones.

True, in selecting tropical trees, shrubs and plants, they sometimes run the risk of losing out to a hard frost.

But, compensating for that element of risk, is the exotic appearance of many of these tropical plantings. They add a perfect touch of distinction to the landscape that sets it apart from neighboring yards.

A FEW well-chosen, lush tropical plants properly placed convert the most simply-designed house into a showplace.

One of the more popular tropicals with Californians is the big-leafed Tropical Philodendron. It comes in a number of varieties with differing leaf structures, but all sport a deep green foliage with massive elephant-ear like leaves.

Medium-sized tropical shrubs which do very well in Marin County are the glossy-leafed Aralia, the Gold Dust Plant and the Egyptian Reed. Also the Dracaena Palm.

THE YUCCA and the Banana Tree are somewhat less hardy and more subject to frost and wind damage, but can be, and are, grown in sheltered locations. Don't expect fruit from your banana tree. In Marin, it is purely an ornamental, but a most attractive one.

Aralias have a soft green foliage. Their large leaves are deeply lobed. And the growth habit is most striking.

Gold Dust Plants are shade lovers and boast pointed leaves that are speckled or spotted with gold. It is an excellent landscape plant.

EGYPTIAN REED or Cyperus papyrus has tall, reed-like stems with unique umbrella-like heads.

The Dracaena Palms have narow, lance-like leaves of a soft green color on upright stalks.

Ornamental bananas have great long leaves with red mid-ribs, reaching 12 to 15 feet. Yuccas have rigid fronds that are a lighter shade of green than the Dracaena Palm leaves. Landscapers sometimes group a few Yuccas together at different angles to attain an interesting effect.

NO DISCUSSION of tropical plantings would be complete without a mention of the Hibiscus.

It, too, may conk out on you if the winter is severe. But its special beauty makes it well worth the risk. Nothing seems to spell out more attractively the romantic flavor and fragrance of the tropics than does the Hibiscus.

Marinites Are Discovering Beauty Of The Tree Rose

More Tree Roses than ever before are going into the ground in Marin this spring.

For one thing, container rose sales generally are up because the excessively wet winter prohibited most gardeners from planting new shrubs during the bareroot or dormant season.

FOR ANOTHER, more and more Marinites have discovered in recent years the beauty and fragrance of the Tree Rose, particularly as an accent plant.

Some of the loveliest and most popular rose varieties are available in tree form, including All-American winners and the almost unbelievable bi-color introductions of recent years.

You can use Tree Roses in striking border plantings along driveway and walks, or tuck one or more of the taller-growing plants in a background planting where the huge head of bright blooms will add a color accent to surrounding shrubbery.

OR YOU CAN plant Tree Roses in containers for up-close enjoyment — or highlight an entryway through the yard to your door with the color bearers.

Nurserymen, besides having a good selection of Tree Roses, also have climbers and bush-form roses in containers.

Plant roses as you would any container-grown plant by preparing a planting hole larger than the soil around the roots.

Stake Tree Roses to prevent wind damage and water and feed regularly so the plants can continue to provide spring to winter beauty.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓There is still plenty of time to plant tomato plants, as well as the seeds for such hot weather vegetables as corn, beans, cucumbers and squash.

✓Visit your neighborhood nursery now for a flower show. Shrubs, vines, annuals, perennials are all in bloom, and can be transferred to your garden for immediate color.

✓After spring flowering bulbs such as tulips, hyacinths and daffodils stop blooming, water them occasionally and allow the tops to die naturally. Do not remove the green leaves if you want good flowers next year.

✓Don't tease your plants with light sprinkling. Water deeply.

✓For a Mother's Day gift, consider a flowering plant or blooming shrub, and remember that nurseries are open on Sunday.

✓As azaleas, rhododendrons and camellias complete their blooming, apply an acid-type plant food. Fuchsias and tuberous begonias, heavy feeders, should be fertilized regularly.

Fir Isn't The Only Plywood

Handyman's Page

Because fir plywood is the kind you usually get when you walk into a lumberyard and ask merely for plywood, most persons are unaware of the many varieties of this material.

The two basic kinds of plywood are interior and exterior. Both are made in the same manner: by gluing together sheets of veneer, usually at right angles to one another. But the exterior type is bonded with a special adhesive designed for permanent outside exposure.

The two basic classes of plywood are softwood and hardwood.

THE POPULAR fir falls into the softwood category, along with pine, cedar, redwood, larch, cypress and many others. The hardwoods include walnut, oak, birch, maple, mahognay and cherry.

Incidentally, the designation depends on the kind of wood used for the face or top veneer.

Within the types and classes of plywood are several grades, most of which refer to the appearance of the face and back. A-A grade is tops; A-B indicates an excellent face, with a slightly less perfect appearance on the back; A-C and A-D grades are used where only one side of the panel will be seen in the finished project.

WHY is fir plywood the best seller?

BECAUSE IT is the least expensive yet has tremendous strength. However, it requires the use of a special sealer to prevent its wild grain from coming through the finish coat.

There are two kinds of fir plywood sealer: one for use on wood which is to be finished with a transparent material, such as varnish, shellac or lacquer; the other for wood which is to be painted. Hardwood plywoods are treated in the same manner as solid hardwood.

Those who have worked with regular lumber are surprised to find, when they make their first purchase of plywood, that the dimensions are exact. That is, if you buy a piece of half-inch plywood four feet by eight feet, those are its measurements.

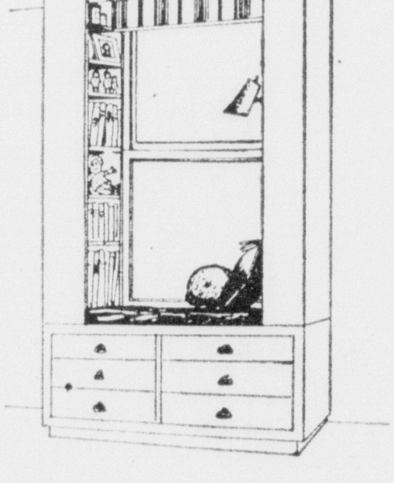
A BIG advantage of plywood is that it is not susceptible to splitting, even when nails and screws are driven close to the panel edges.

When cutting plywood with a table or radial saw, the good side of the plywood should be face up. When using a portable power saw, the good side should be face down. With a handsaw, it should be face up.

In drilling small-diameter holes in plywood with either hand or power drills, use a piece of wood behind the panel to avoid splintering if the appearance of that side of the panel is important.

For large holes, using a brace and bit, employ the same technique, but instead of going straight through, stop as soon as the point of the bit appears. Reverse the panel and work from the other side to complete the hole.

Fancy Sitting



THE KIDS will love this useful window seat. With bookcase sides turned toward the seat, it becomes a private hideaway. Underneath, 18-inch-deep drawers serve as a standard dresser. Use two 10-inch pine boards for the sides, one-by-12s for the remainder.

The only medication that

Gets to a Major Cause of Hemorrhoids

Now! Most complete 3-way relief!

Important development: unlike every other hemorrhoid product, Counternoid™ works in 3 ways:
1. Lessens pain fast.
2. Coats, soothes and protects injured tissue.
3. Gets to a major cause of hemorrhoids: painful hard constipation.

In hospital X-ray tests, doctors have demonstrated that the exclusive Counternoid formulation with DSS₃₀™ penetrates in minutes to the top of the rectal area to soften the stool and ease the bowel movement, to make natural healing possible.
Remember: Counternoid. For temporary relief of minor hemorrhoid troubles. The most complete 3-way relief you can get without a prescription or without surgery. At all drug counters.

MARINITES will have two opportunities to view the work of one of their county's resident artists, Pearl Drob, whose painting are currently on display at Rubin's restaurant in Fairfax and will be shown next month at Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo. Above, she is seen in the studio with her husband, Harold Drob, who makes her frames as well as the special hardwood rollers she uses instead of brushes. At left is one of her untitled abstracts. Mrs. Drob was born in Houston, Tex., and reared in Los Angeles, studying ceramics at the Hollywood Art Center and as a private student of Glen Lukins. For several years she decorated and glazed pottery at Heath Ceramics in Sausalito while studying design and composition at the Patri School and the California School of Fine Arts. She has also modeled, performed creative dances and spent a year in the Caribbean studying local culture while teaching ceramics. She describes her work as "mercurial" to signify its characteristic rhythmic flow and continuity of movement. Her tools include the rollers, cork and fur. Her husband is a University of California departmental business manager. They have two daughters. (Photos by Richard Beindorf)
